THE Lists of the Antiquarian Remains in the Bombay Presidency, Sindh and Berar contained in this volume have been prepared in compliance with the orders of the Government of India (Circular letter No. 34-1888 to 1897 of 12th November 1875). Owing to frequent interruptions they have been for a long time in the press, and are not of equal merit throughout. But in most cases the materials have been supplied by subordinate district officers, always hard-wrought, and but rarely with any very clear ideas what exactly should be entered and what omitted from their returns. These returns were mostly made in tabular form; but to have printed them in this form would have been a work of needless extra expense and bulk. In preparing the Lists from such returns I have had often to deal with most untractable materials. A constantly recurring entry was, "The temple consists of stones placed one upon another." Where two returns for the same place were available, their unsatisfactoriness became most palpable: one described a temple of Mailarlinga as 271 feet long by 20 wide and the roof supported by 60 pillars; the other made it "85 feet long and 37 wide" with 96 pillars. A temple at Kaginelli is said in one return to be 31 feet by 16 and 11 high, with 20 columns; the other says it is 195 feet by 65 and 24 feet high, with 36 columns. Of a temple at Kalkeri it is said, "the temple is 66 feet long and 48 feet wide. The temple contains 361 stone pillars," the narrator being seemingly unconscious that so many pillars would fill up the whole space and leave no floor area. A temple is described as "about 500 years old," and yet in another place we are told it was built in 1530 A.D. Whatever else is omitted (and the position of the place was very frequently not given) we are generally told, even of temples six hundred years old, what they cost: "This temple" (at Hangal) "cost three lakhs of rupees in building," says the writer, though evidently he knew nothing whatever about it. Fortunately some of the returns were creditable, and personal knowledge and references to the higher officers have supplied many details. The delays in carrying the Lists through the press has further enabled me to fill up blanks and add to the information contained in the returns.

The inscriptions given from various places are not critically edited, but are simply copied from the returns. Those in the Appendix from Girnâr have been to some extent revised through the kindness of Colonel J. W. Watson; the Persian and Arabic series from Ahmadâbâd and other places in Gujarât, however, have all been prepared by E. Rehatsek, Esq., from facsimiles made by the Archæological Survey and forwarded to that scholar.

Some additions will doubtless have to be made to the Lists in the following pages, and some entries probably ought not to have been made; but it is believed they include nearly all that is at present known as deserving of any special notice. Of only a small proportion of these monuments is conservation or restoration desirable and possible; of very many of them an archæological survey and delineation might be desirable, but even of these only a selection can be made.

The Government of India in a Resolution of the Home Department (Archæology), under date Calcutta, the 26th November 1883, No. 3—168-83, gave the following orders:—

- "3. The Governor General in Council desires that each local Government will now, with as little delay as possible, take up the lists of ancient monuments for its province as given in Major Cole's report for the year 1882-83, and, as regards Northern, Eastern and Central India, in communication with General Cunningham, and as regards Madras and Bombay, in communication with the Archæological Surveyor of Southern and Western India, prepare classified lists and a detailed report showing—
 - I.—Those monuments which from their present condition and historical or archæological value ought to be maintained in permanent good repair.
 - II.—Those monuments which it is now only possible or desirable to save from further decay by such minor measures as the eradication of vegetation, the exclusion of water from the walls, and the like.
 - III.—Those monuments which from their advanced stage of decay or comparative unimportance it is impossible or unnecessary to preserve.
 - "4. The monuments in classes I and II should be further sub-divided, thus-
 - I (a) and II (a).—Monuments in the possession or charge of Government, or in respect of which Government must undertake the cost of all measures of conservation.
 - I (b) and II (b).—Monuments in the possession or charge of private bodies or individuals.
- "In respect of classes I (a) and II (a), the report should show what arrangements it is proposed to make for the due carrying out of the necessary measures of conservation. Definite provision should be made for the proper custody and upkeep of each monument in these classes. The Government of India do not wish to interfere in the details of these arrangements, but they desire to be satisfied that each local Government has at its disposal the means for the intelligent and judicious treatment of any questions that may arise in connection with the preservation of buildings of such importance. The Governor General in Council considers that the cost of these measures is a legitimate charge upon the Public Works allotment of each province, but will be prepared to consider in very special cases whether any further assistance should be granted from Imperial funds.
- "In respect of classes I (b) and II (b), it should be reported what funds are available for their conservation; and whether the custodians can be induced to allow the inspection, direction, and control of Government officers in such matters. It may be advisable in some instances to offer small subsidies in view to securing the necessary amount of supervision, but this should only be proposed where the monument is one of primary importance and its due conservation cannot be otherwise secured. In general, it may be hoped that the local officers and the local Government will be able to induce those interested to take proper steps for maintaining the buildings in their charge.
- "5. If hereafter it should become apparent that the local Governments require advice or instructions with reference to the proper mode of preserving or treating any monument, the Government of India will be happy to arrange for procuring this from the best available authorities......
- "6. In the annual administration reports of each province full information should be given as to the measures of conservation carried out during the year and as to the condition of all monuments in classes I and II."

Without great trouble it was found practically impossible to comply fully with this order for the Bombay Presidency, but provisional lists were supplied in January 1884, pending the completion of the present volume.

Again in the Resolution of the Home Department (Archæology) No. 5—170-82 of 22nd August 1885, the Government of India minutes as follows:—

"Lists of objects of antiquarian interest were called for with a view to the preparation of a general amalgamated list for the whole of India. As, however, the lists submitted by the several local Governments and Administrations have not been drawn up in any uniform plan, it has been found impracticable to amalgamate them in a satisfactory manner, and it has accordingly been decided to abandon the attempt, especially as the preparation of a general list appears now to be unnecessary, in view of the instructions contained in Home Department Resolution of the 26th November 1883. Under the operation of those instructions, detailed and properly classified lists will be prepared of the ancient monuments which exist in the several provinces. The Governor General in Council is accordingly pleased to direct that all the lists received in manuscript be returned to the local Governments and Administrations concerned, as they may be found useful in the compilation of the lists to be prepared in accordance with the orders above cited.

"2. The Government of India will now wait until the local Governments and Administrations, in consultation with the newly constituted Archæological Department, can prepare classified lists for each province in Upper India and Bengal in accordance with the instructions contained in the Resolution of November 1883. These lists should be drawn up in the form* annexed to this Resolution.

"The lists for the Madras and Bombay Presidencies and for the Hyderabad Assigned Districts should be prepared under the direction of Dr. Burgess, and be edited by that officer.

"Ordered, that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to local Governments and Administrations for information and guidance, manuscript lists being returned; and that a copy be forwarded to the Director General of the Archeological Survey of India for information.

"Also that a copy be forwarded to the Foreign Department, with a request that that Department will be good enough to consider whether similar lists might not with advantage be obtained from Native States."

The Lists now printed will render practicable the preparation of classified lists of monuments for conservation, whether in the tabular form now proposed or in that suggested in the former Resolution quoted above. The insertion, however, of a column calling for "any local history or tradition" may well be omitted: it has appeared in so many previous returns that its claim to a place may itself be regarded as traditional rather than important. But much local information as to the claimants, custody or present use and precise state of preservation will still have to be collected in order to render further lists worth publication. The present show how wealthy the Bombay Presidency is in Ancient Remains.

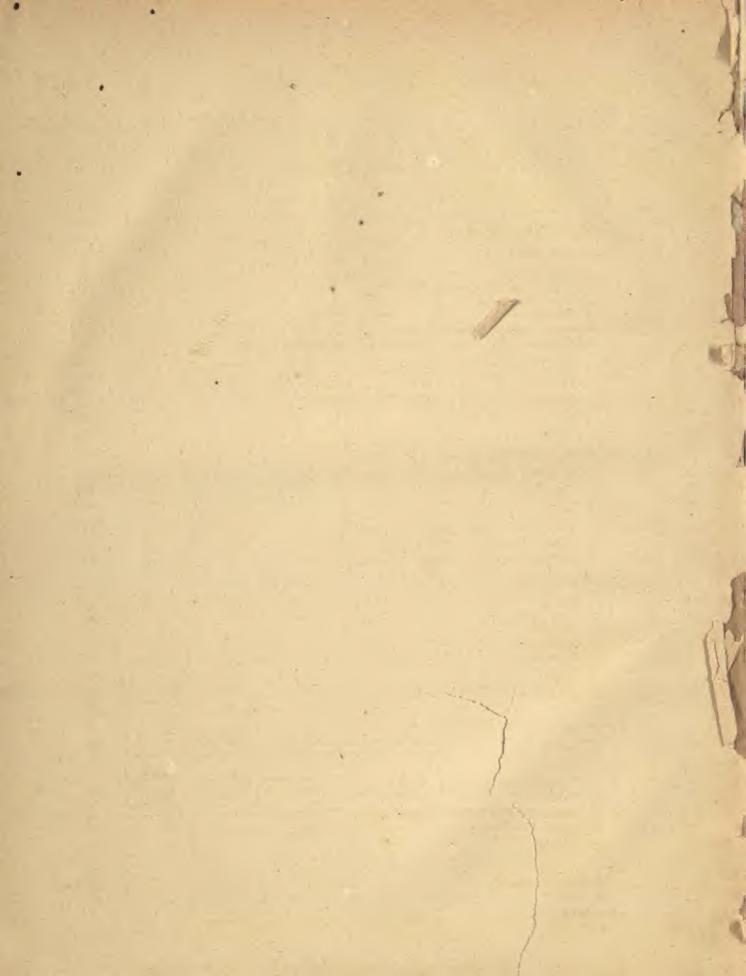

J. BURGESS, Archæological Surveyor, Western and Southern India.

BOMBAY PRESIDENCY.

L-NORTH CANARA.

1. Gokarna, tâlukâ Kumtâ, (lat. 14° 32' N., long. 74° 23' E.) on the coast about 10 miles north of Kumtâ. The most famous tirtha or place of pilgrimage in this part of India(a). It contains several temples built probably about A.D. 1400. (1.) The temple of Mahâbalêśvara. This has two courts, an outer and an inner, with corridors inside the walls for the accommodation of pilgrims and devotees. The temple itself consists of a mandapa and shrine, the latter surmounted by a low spire. Thousands of pilgrims flock to the annual fair held in the month of Mâgha, which concludes with the drawing of a huge idol car elaborately carved.

Legend accounts for the origin of this tirtha in the following way: Siva, pleased with the austerity of Ravana, king of Lanka, allowed him to ask a boon, and he asked his Atmalinga, which was granted. Râvaņa was told that if he worshipped it for three successive years, he would be equal with Mahâdeva. but he was not to set it down till he should reach his capital. Vishnu, alarmed at this, resolved to outwit him. While Ravana was passing Gokarna, Vishnu hid the sun behind his weapon Sudarsana, at which Ravana, supposing it to be sunset, went to the shere to perform his devotions. Seeing a boy tending a herd of cows he asked him to hold the linga till he should return. The boy, who was Ganapati in disguise, promised to hold it as long as he was able, and then to call out his name three times before placing it on the ground. No sooner was he gone, however, than the boy called his name thrice and set down the linga. Returning, the giant saw the trick that had been played him, and applied his utmost strength to pull it up, but in vain; so he called it Mahabalesvara. He is said to have broken off four pieces and thrown them towards Murdeśvara, Ganwanteśvara, Dareśvara, and Śhajeśvara, where there are also temples (see Buchanan's Mysore, &c). Annual allowances are paid to the temple.

(2.) The temple of Bhadrakâlî in the east of the town is a small one in a courtyard, entered by a single doorway from the north. (3.) Temple of Venkataramana of black stone. (4.) Ahalyâbâi's temple built by the princess of Indor about a century ago. (5.) Koṭi-tîrtha a large, dirty, oblong pond surrounded by a decaying flight of steps. (6.) Ballâla-tîrtha near the beach.

Places and inscriptions marked (a) seem to be of primary importance, and will be included in the Archeological Survey; those marked (b) rank next in order, and as many of them will be examined as circumstances will allow. Inscriptions marked (c) are either small or much effaced.

Satśringa and Maninaga are two hills close to Gokarna, and the Tamraparni is a small stream that falls into the sea here. In the vicinity there are some natural caverns in the laterite. There are no Jaina remains in Gokarna.

Inscriptions:—There are said to be several inscriptions: (1) in Narasimha's temple; (2) in the house of Můliman Timana Adi; (3) in Hire Kuppa Bhat's house; (4) in the temple of Mâruti; (5) in Vighnésvara Bhat's house; (6) in temple of Srî Tamra Gaurî; (7) at the side of the door in the maṇḍapa of Mahâbalésvara temple; (8) in Viṭhal's temple.

Prasad Narayana Bhat has a copper-plate.

- 2. Chaṇḍâwar, Honâwar Tâlukâ, about 5 miles south-east from Kumtâ (lat. 14° 24′ N., long. 74° 33′ E.), is a deserted city, said to have been built by a king Sarpanmalika, by birth a cowherd, who rose to rank by magic. It passed from the possession of the Svâdî kings to that of the Muhammadans. The last Muhammadan prince dying without issue in A.D. 1686, it declined and is now deserted, and the stones are being carried away for building purposes.
- 3. Dhâreśvar, Kumtâ Tâlukâ, about 4½ miles S.S.E. of it (lat. 14° 22 N., long. 74° 29′ E.). A temple in a courtyard 105 feet by 69. The temple is of black stone with sculptures on the walls. An allowance of Rs. 1,440 is made to it annually by Government.

Inscriptions: - Four stone tablets, from one of which it appears that it was founded by Rudroji Pandit, son of Nagoji, and built by Sanappa.

- 4. Honawar seems to have no remains of note. There is an old ruined fort, on the west side of which the Portuguese had their warehouses in early times. Basavarajadurga to the north is said to have been built by the same king as built Chandawar. The temple of Ramalinga, about 1½ miles north of the town, is said to be two or three centuries old.
- 5. Haigudha, a village about 12 miles from Honawar: near it, on an island in the Saravati are some sacrificial kundas. The Haiga Brahmans are said to have come from the north at the invitation of a Berad king to perform a sacrifice for him here. Haiga in Old-Canarese means 'sacrifice.'
- 6. Bailûr, 12 miles south of Honawar, (lat. 16° 8' N., long. 74° 32′ E.), has a very old temple of Markandeśvara. The Nayars who ruled over Barkur repaired the old temple and made grants of land for its support. Some documents relating to this grant are said to exist dated Saka 1356 (A.D. 1434).
- 7. Murdeśvar, 3 miles south of Bailûr and 15 miles north of Bhatkal, bas a temple on a promontory called Kandugiri, said to have been built by the Jaina rajas or of Kaikuri (†) In Fasli 1221, Government arranged to grant an endowment of Rs. 1,440 annually.

Inscriptions:—There are at least thirty Vîragals and inscriptions (one dated Saka 1336, and another Saka 1380) near this place. (1) About 150 yards west from the school is a Jaina one of 54 or more lines each of about 50 letters; (2) two miles N.E. from the Bangalow, at Basti Maki a ruined Jaina temple; (3) at the foot of a Kâju tree E. from the school is a Vîragal with some lines of inscription; (4, 5) opposite the school in a small cell are two Vîragals; (6) beside this at the foot of a tree is another; (7) at the left side of Archolle basti is a fine slab, 5' by 2' 3' in 64 lines; (8) another against the wall, 6' 3" by 2' 3\frac{1}{2}, with at least 61 lines; (9) near the bridge a slab, much effaced; (10—28) a collection of beautifully carved stones at the same place, some Jaina and others Saiva—all with inscriptions; (29, 30) two satt stones at the same place.

- 8. Bhatkal or Susagadi, about 24 miles south of Honawar (lat. 15° 59' N., long. 74° 36'). Formerly it was called Manipur, and was an important place in old Jaina times, during which very fine Bastis or temples were erected. They usually consist of an agraśala, or hall, and a shrine with a dhvajastambha (a).
- (1.) Khetapai-Narayaṇa-Devasthan is built of black stone, with a good deal of sculpture on its walls. On the door-lintel is a figure of Srî. On the base of the temple, and on the inside of the court wall are numerous scenes, some quaint, some indecent, said to be illustrative of the Râmâyaṇa. The four pillars inside are short and clumsy. The temple contains an image of Nârâyaṇa of black basalt; it is partly in ruins: it measures about 34½ feet by 18 feet. The base of the wall enclosing the courtyard is pretty entire. Two brick Tulast kuṇḍas stand by the sides of the entrance. The dhvajastambha, a fine fluted column, is just outside the court, and is sculptured with effigies of the founder and his family. To the north-west of it is a śilaśāsanam. The temple enjoys an endowment from Government.
- (2.) Såntappå Nåyaka Tirumal Devasthån is built entirely of black basalt, according to an inscription in it in Saka 1477 by Såntappå. It measures about 32 feet by 16, is much after the plan of No. 1, with a sloping stone roof, but not so richly carved.—The doors are elaborately sculptured; as is also the inner base round the court. The dhvajastambha is about 18 feet high, but has lost the top.
- (3.) Narasimha Devasthân, built about Saka 1460, the date given in an inscription. It measures about 36½ feet by 19, and has a small dhvajastambha wanting the capital. It is supported by lands granted by the founder and by a Government allowance.
- (4.) Jośi Śamkar-Nârâyana Devasthân, is a plain temple built, according to an inscription, in A.D. 1554. It consists of a sandhyâmandapa in front; about 32 feet by 13 over all, and behind it an agraśâlâ about 12 feet by 10. The roofs are formed of slabs sloping down. The dhvajastambha is about 14 feet high but has lost the top. It enjoys private grants and a Government allowance.
- (5.) Cholesvara-Devasthan is also of black basalt, two storeys in height, the lower roofed with stone slabs, the upper with tiles. It has dwarapalas at the door jambs, standing on snakes and in front a canopy over the Nandi supported on four pillars. There is also a good dhvajastambha and a small temple of Ganesa. Legend says, a king of Cholamandala lost all his children by snakebite, and coming to the village of Hadili, his queen was delivered of a son, which a snake immediately bit; but a Brahmana of the place skilled in the mantrus for curing snake-bite, forced the snake to suck back its own poison: whereupon the child revived and the king erected this temple to commemorate the event. On the jambs of the door are two short Tamil inscriptions.
- (6.) Raghunâth-Devasthân is said to have been built by Balkini, son of Anantakini, about Saka 1512, Virodhi Samvatsara. The agraśâlâ is separated from the shrine or temple proper by an open verandah or sandhyâmandapa. The Vimâna is built somewhat like a Ratha or car, and is covered with carving: it is a small temple in the Dravidian style. It is supported by private donations and a Government endowment.
- (7.) Lakars Kamati Nârâyana Devasthân, built about 330 years ago, is a small stone temple out of repair. (8.) Adikê Nârâyana Devasthân is similar to the last, but more ruined; the eight dikpálas are represented on the roof, and Srì on the lintel. The dhvajastambha is a small one. (9.) Virûpâksha-Nûrâyana Devasthân is a small temple like the last two, built in Saka 1487 by Jîvana Nûyaka. It is out of repair, but is said to enjoy a Government endowment. (10.) Venkataramana is said to be about 300 years old, and resembles No. 6 above, being ornamented by sculptures. It is surrounded by a verandah called chandraśdlâ. The agraśdlâ is of brick. The car ceremony is celebrated every year, and has a good endowment and considerable land. (11.) Sirâle Sambhulinga Devasthân is a modern temple built on the site of an older one. Legend accounts for its origin as for that of many others by the story of a man who accused his herd boy for milking his cow. The boy protested his innocence, but watched the cow, who went into a thicket and poured her milk upon a burrow. The owner, being informed of this, dug up the place and found a linga, over which he built a temple.

- (12.) Jattapa Naikana Chandranathesvara-Basti is the largest Jaina temple here. It stands in an open space not surrounded by a wall, and consists of an agrasala, bhogamandapa and basti; the latter is of two storeys, the lower being of larger area than the one above. Each storey has three rooms, which are said to have contained images of Ara, Malli, Munisuvrata, Nama, Nemi, and Parsva, but only fragments of them are left. The walls of the bhogamandapa on the west of the basti are pierced with beautiful windows; the agrasala or shrine is of two storeys each of two rooms, which contained images of Vrishabha, Ajakasambhava, Abhinanda, and Chandranathesvara. There are also dwarapalas at the door. The total length is about 112 feet and breadth of the shrine 40, of the basti 50 feet. The dhvajastambha is a very elegant pillar and stands on a platform about 14 feet square: the shaft is of a single block 21 feet in height, and is surmounted by a quadrangular capital. Behind the basti is a smaller pillar called Yakshabrahmakambha, the shaft of which is 19 feet in length. It stands on a platform with four smaller pillars at the corners, with lintels laid over them. Jattapa Nayaka made over lands for the support of the temple, but they are said to have been confiscated by Tipu Sultan. This is the finest old temple at Bhatkal, and should be preserved: the villagers carry off the fine stone slabs at pleasure.
- (13.) Pârśvanātheśvara-Basti is 58 feet long by 18 wide. According to an inscription it was built in Saka 1465. The dhvajastambha is a fine pillar on a lofty moulded base, and the small mandapa atop contains a four-headed image. (14.) Sânteśvara-Basti is somewhat like No. 12. Other remains of Jaina temples and inscriptions are said to exist. (15.) The Jumã' Masjid is tile-roofed, but said to be very old. It enjoys a Government allowance of Rs. 400 a year. 16.) Sultân Palle Masjid is about 200 years old. The buildings here have all sloping roofs.

Inscriptions:—(1) At Jattapa Nâyakana Chandranâtha Basti, on the east side, 7'0" by 3'1½", containing 70 lines; (2) beside the first, 7'11" by 3'6", in 79 lines; the back of this stone is also covered by an inscription in 63 lines, dated Saka 1479, Nala Samvatsara; (3) in the south-east corner of the court is another also bearing Jaina symbols, 6'0" by 2'6½"; (4) at Pârśvanâtha basti, a slab 5'9" by 2'5", Saka 1468, Viścávasu Samvatsara; (5) another at the same place; (6) inside the porch 5'9" by 2'4", Saka 1465, Plava Samvatsara; (7,8) behind the same temple, sunk into the earth, one 1'10" broad and the other

1' 9",-the inscriptions faintly traceable; (9) in the court of Santesvara temple a fine carved Virakshatrepála, 6' 1" by 2' 8", with a good deal of inscription upon it, Saka 1465; (10) a small damaged one beside it, 3' 1' by 1' 10'; (11) near the same place deeply sunk in the earth are two large slabs, which should be preserved; (12) in the court of Khetapai Narayana temple is one 6' 6' by 2' 71', Saka 1468, Viśvávasu Samvatsara; (13) behind the same is one of Saka 1489, Kshaya Samvatsara; (14) outside the court of Josi Sankara Narayana's temple and sunk deep in the earth is a slab 3 feet wide, which should be cared for; (15) at Santappa Nâyaka's temple is a slab, with a grahastha bearing an umbrella in the centre, to the right a rakshasa or demon, and to the left a cow and calf, 4'9" by 2'9," Saka. 1478, Raktakshi Samvatsara; (16) in Murgopinatha Krishnadeva's temple is an old slab with linga at the top; (17) another close by is broken and buried; (18) at Chatturmukha basti (now wholly carried away by the villagers) in a jâmbul bush is a fine large śâsanam with Jaina symbols, 5' 10" by 2' 8"; (19) another close beside it, 6' 9" by 2' 4\frac{1}{2}"; (20) at Lakars Kamati Lakshmî Nârâyana temple, 6' 9' by 2' 4\frac{1}{2}", of which 1' 9\frac{1}{2}" is covered with inscription partially effaced; (21) on a pillar on the right side of the entrance to Raghunatha's temple, 27 lines, Saka 1512, Virodhi Samvatsara; (22) in a watercourse in the street 150 yards from the bangalow, a Jaina inscription, 4' 11" by 1' 10", -ought to be removed to a place of safety; (23) on the door-jambs of Chôlesvara temple are two short Tamil inscriptions; (24) about a quarter of a mile behind the Dharmasala, one with Saiva emblems, 6'0" by 2' 5", 61 lines. And at Sunkadagoli, a mile E. from Bhatkal, is Râmalinga Vîrabhadradeva temple, with two inscription slabs.

Copper-plates:—Four: (1) belonging to Virûpâkshadeva Joši Śankara Nârâyana temple; (2) to Pasupati Śambhu Linga temple; (3 and 4) not stated,

-in Bhatkal.

9. Hådawalli, 11 miles E.N.E. from Bhatkal,—a Jaina basti and several inscriptions.

10. Gêrsappe, Honâwar Tâlukâ, is about 15 miles east of Honâwar (lat. 14° 12' N., long. 74° 44' E.) A mile and a half east of the village and of Någankûrå, are extensive ruins called Nagarbastikeri. Among them is a Jaina temple called Chatturmukha-Basti, having four doors and a four-faced image in the centre. A small sum was expended by Government about 10 years ago in clearing away grass and bushes; the place is again overgrown. It has been a fine large cruciform temple, 63' 8" from door to door inside, the shrine is 22' 9" square inside and 24' 11" outside; the walls are all thin. There are four thick round pillars with square bases in each hall with the overhanging brackets of the southern style. The dwarapalas cut on slabs on each side the doors both of the mandapa and of the shrine have high mukutas and each holds a club and a snake. The temple is built of grey granite, but the roof of the verandah, the stones of the sikhara, the slabs of the floor, &c., were carried off some 15 years ago, it is said, by a Mâmlatdâr at Honâwar who was building a temple there. Inscription slabs, &c., were also carried off by road contractors and others to make culverts, &c.

The other temples here are all of laterite, and are only of interest on account of the images and inscriptions which have still escaped the spoilers. The temple of Varddhamana Swami, now deserted, still contains a fine black stone image of the Tirthankara, almost perfect. Across the foot-path from it is the temple of Nemi, also deserted, but with a fine large image on a circular dsana, the back of which is composed of three pieces neatly jointed and elaborately carved. Round the edge of the asana are two ślokas in Canarese letters. In Parśvanatha's temple many images have been collected from other shrines,—one of them is cast of an alloy of five metals. To the west of it is a large stone building with long stone beams, and in a corner of it are nearly a dozen neglected figures of standing Digambara Jinas huddled together. Kade basti wants the roof and contains a neglected black stone figure of Parśvanatha 4' 4½' high, with the seshaphana beautifully carved. And at Vîrabhadra deval, a large tree has grown up on what was once the back wall of the shrine, where is a fine image of Vîrabhadra with arrow, sword, shield, and bow, and wearing high wooden sandals, kadava. Many of these images are well worth preserving and should be removed to a place of safety, before they are destroyed.

Inscriptions, &c.:-At Varddhamânswâmi temple (1) a slab 6' 3" by 2' 5" with a Jina at the top, two worshippers, and cow and calf, under which is a long inscription; (2) another with a Jina and attendants above, in the second line two male worshippers on each side a cross-legged table, and in the third compartment below, two female worshippers on each side a similar table. The stone measures 4' 8" by 2' 21"; (3) a slab 5' 2" by 2' 2" with, first, a Jina in a temple, next, below a male seated, a table, two females squatting and one standing, and third, three females, a temple and female image, and three females, below which are 61 lines of inscription; (4) behind the temple and sunk in the earth is a small stone about a foot broad and an inscription partially effaced. In the east corner of the area round Parsvanatha's temple are three carved stones similar to those described above but much weatherworn; (5) one 7' 2" by 2' 31" with an inscription a good deal obliterated; (6) outside the the wall of Kade basti is an inscription slab 4' 3" above ground and 2' 5" broad; (7) in the south-west corner of Trimalla Devasthan, a Vaishnava temple, is a slab 5' 6" by 2' 3", with a man in a robe and carrying a vessel, and the cow and calf beside him: The inscription is covered with lichen but very distinct.

Between 5 and 6 miles up the Ghat from Gersappe there is an Old-Canarese inscription stone standing at a corner of the road.

11. Bilgi, Siddapur Taluka, about 8 miles from Siddapur (lat. 14° 22' N., long. 74° 52' E.) It was formerly known by the name of Svetapur, and is said to have been founded by a son of Narasimha, a Jaina prince, who ruled at Hosûr (near Siddhapur) about Saka 1515. (1.) The Jaina basti of Parsvanatha is said to have been built by the founder of the town and afterwards extended by a Jaina prince, Ghantewadia, the son of Raghapparaja in Saka 1573, when images of Neminatha, Parsvanatha and Vardhamana were consecrated. It is in the Dravidian style: the shrine walls are formed of slabs the whole height of the walls, with square pillars at the corners and in the middle to give them support. The upper part of the walls of the mandapa are formed in the same way, set on a carved screen wall. The outer mandapa has four round black stone pillars somewhat of the style of those at Belgaum; at each side of this mandapa is a small shrine. From the two Silásasanas still standing it appears that a grant was made of the revenues of 9 villages amounting to Rs. 1,772-7-8, and lands yielding 300 khandis of rice were allotted to it. It has a flat roof supported by carved basalt pillars. (2.) There is also a temple of Virûpâksha near the town, a very plain building.

Inscriptions, &c.:—(1) At Virûpâksha temple to the right of the entrance is a slab 5' 10" by 3' 1" with a linga at the top attended by a female on the left with damru and bell, and with cow and calf to the right, the usual figures of sun, moon and katar above. The inscription is in 42 lines dated Saka 1493 (in words) Pramodhi Samvatsara. (2) Inside the door of Pârśvanâtha basti are two large slabs with the usual Jaina symbol, and in excellent preservation, one measures 6' 9" by 2' 6" in 78½ lines, Saka 1510, Sarvajita Samvatsara; (3) the other 6' 10" by 2' 7" in 84½ lines, Saka 1550, Nandana Samvatsara. (4) On the other side of the road at a temple of Hanumân is a smaller inscription much defaced.

At Bidarkanni on the road from Bîlgi to Siddhâpur, and a quarter of a mile east of the village, a little south from the road, is a group of 15 carved stones (two of them broken), some of them very tall and covered with carving of worship, festivity, and war. Near a small basti a little to the south-east from these are two more; and in the mud wall of the basti are four with linga emblems at the top, a fifth is a little way off in front on a small platform, and a sixth at the foot of a tree close to the basti.

12. Ittige, Siddâpur Tâlukâ, 3 miles west of Bîlgi. Temple of Râmêśvara, a building of the usual modern construction, enjoys an annual cash allowance of Rs. 1,000. This is a place of considerable repute, and has a large annual fair attended by numerous devotees.

- 13. Siddhâpur. Inscriptions, &c.—A mile west from the town at Hosûr at a small rude temple near the wayside are two carved stones: two more stand about a dozen yards west of it, one of them very elaborately carved; at the bottom is a man carried in a litter, with traces of inscription, and a fifth stands close to the road leading to Jog. At the temple of Ganapati in Siddhâpur is a Canarese inscription, 5' 6" by 2' 10", in 43 lines, dated Saka 1574, Khara Samvatsara. And at Rameśvara, the side of an old temple in the jungle 1½ miles N.E. from the town are two carved slabs, one 4' 7" by 2' 10", with short inscriptions much obliterated.
- 14. Banawasî, tâlukâ Sirsi, and about 15 miles E. by S. from it, (lat. 14° 32′ E., long. 75° 5′ N.,) on the river Varada, a very ancient place, mentioned in the Bauddha records as a place of note in the 3rd century B.C. and by Ptolemy, the geographer, in the 2nd century A.D. It had also the name of Jayantipura. (1.) The temple of Madhukêśvara is attributed to the mythic architect Jakhanacharya. It is in a courtyard containing also smaller temples to Ganapati, Narasimba, Kadambêśvara, &c. The temple is of considerable size and ornamented with sculptures, with a short Dravidian spire. The large Nandi in front is under a canopy or outer mandapa supported by four pillars. A king of Sonda, about 250 years ago, is said to have found it surrounded by forest, and to have assigned lands for its maintenance and instituted the car ceremony. A fine stone mandapa was presented, according to an inscription, by Raghuraja, king of Svadi: the date is obliterated, but it was in the Vibhava Samvatsara, -probably Saka 1550. Anannual allowance of Rs. 4,000 is paid by Government. The place is one of great repute among the Smartta Brahmans. It was the old capital of the Kadambas, whose power was restored if not founded by Mayûravarmâ who formed an alliance with the Châlukya kings, perhaps in the 5th century A.D. In the 11th and 12th centuries they were feudatories of the Kalyana Chalukyas. The succession of the different chiefs, however, has not yet been clearly made out, and it is possible there were two or three branches of the family. The examination of more of their inscriptions would probably clear this up and throw light on the history of the district. In 1075 the province was under Udayaditya the general of Bhuvanaikamalla. He was displaced in 1076 by Vikramâditya, who gave the province to his brother Jayasimha, who soon after rebelled, and the district was bestowed on Barmadêva. When the Kalachuryas, in 1157, rose against the Châlukyas the latter maintained himself at this place.

Inscriptions:—Four are on stones set upright in the ground right and left of the portice of the great temple, and four lean against the enclosing wall: (1) on the left is one of the Châlukya king Vibhu-Vikramadhavala-Permâdideva, and a Kâdamba chieftain, -38 lines only are above ground (a); (2) of the time of Vîra-Bukkarâya of Anêgundi, Saka 1290; this is also partly buried (a); (3) of the Kâdamba chieftain Kîrttivarmadeva, Saka 990; (4) to the right of the temple an inscription of 37 lines of about 25 large but scarcely legible letters (a); (5) against the northern wall of the court an inscription of Sadasivadevaraya of Vidyanagari, Saka 1474: (6) against the same wall, another inscription of the same king; (7) near the east wall, one of 22 lines, each of about 23 letters, not easily read; (8) against the same wall, an inscription very much defaced; (9) in one of the smaller shrines in the court is a handsomely carved cot, litter, or throne, and on it is an inscription of Raghunatha Nayaka of Sonda (Saka 1550); 1 (10) on a pillar in the Nandi mandapa; (11) on a pilaster to the right of the entrance of the small temple of Trimalladeva in 49 lines. And (12) on a slab carved with a five-headed snake (Nagendra) in a little modern shrine on the east side of the court of the great temple is a Pâli inscription. It begins at the top of the left side of the slab with the words Sidham Rano Haritiputasa and a line and a half are on the right side of the slab (a). This is an early Andhra inscription, and is dated in the 12th year of the 'century' of Sâtâkarni Hâritiputa. Careful search at Banavâsi might lead to other discoveries.

Nine miles east from Banavâsi, and 6 south-west from Tiliwalli is Anawaţţi (lat. 14° 35′ N., long. 75° 13′ E.), where is a fine temple of Kaiṭabheśvara with 16 pillars in the great mandapa and 22 on the screen wall, and the following—Inscriptions:—(1) On the right of the god in the temple of Kaitabheśvara, dated Saka 1152(b); (2) on a pillar in the Madhyaranga of the same temple, Saka 1163(b); (3) on another pillar in, the same temple, Saka 1163(b); (4) on another pillar, dated Saka 1171(b); two of these cover two sides of the bases of the columns; (5, 6) two on the edge of the Madhyaranga—one much effaced, Saka 992; (7) another on the opposite side; (8) on the lintel of the antichamber of a small temple of Pârvatî. Outside to the south are two Vîragals, the inscriptions much effaced.

And at the neighbouring village of Kubtûr about a mile from Annawațti, there are, 1st, at the sluice of the talâo, four Viragals in front of a small ruined temple; behind the sluice two more and a long slab carved with mythological figures and worth preserving; built into the sluice itself is a śilâsâsanam in much older characters than usual (a). 2nd, on the way from the tank to the village Pipal tree are a sati stone and another on the left side of the road nearly buried. 3rd, at the tree—(1) a thick stone with an elephant on it and five lines of inscription; (2) a sati stone with a short inscription, faintly cut; (3) a Viragal, with three females, the middle one on a couch, below them four dancing or flying off with a man, and a man on horseback fighting with one on foot, one slain, and a fourth with hands clasped; (4) another with Linga above, next a Devi and attendants, and below a fight, and with 16 lines of inscription. 4th, at an old Jaina basti, are four stones all partially weathered and one of the two largest split; each has a Jina with two chauris and sun and moon at the top; the two large ones have long inscriptions; inside is a section of an inscription partially effaced by grinding kesar on it :- there are also four black stone Jinas, one with a short inscription on the base. 5th, at Isvaradeva's temple is (1) a sort of double Vîragal, there being two compartments across and three vertically with 11 lines of inscription; (2) inside on the base of a pillar is one of 14 lines (the roof has an elaborately carved slab over the central area with Siva in the Tandava attitude in the centre and the 8 Dikpalas on the sides. In the left aisle of the mandapa, on a long vedi are the Saptamatris with Ganapati and Siva, also a spirited Mahishasuri to the right of the shrine door, in which she has got the Asura by the arm and has made a great gash in his side with a broad pointed spear); (3) outside to the right is a stone with a kalasa on it and 4 lines of inscription; and (4) a split śilaśasanam. 6th, at Mailardeva's temple is a thick slab with an elephant and 5 lines of inscription.

- 15. Sôndâ în Sirsi Tâlukâ (lat. 14° 44' N., long. 74° 52' E.). (1.) Three miles west of the Sônda station is the temple of Trivikrama said to be about 400 years old. It consists of one central room with surrounding verandahs. The central room is in the shape of a car with four wheels (two of which are broken), drawn by two elephants. It has a tall dhvajastambha in front. Tradition says that one of the eight monks of the Udapi matha in South Canara, called Waddirâja Swâmi, of great repute for his austerity, was aided by a spirit named Nârâyana-Bhût, who removed this temple entire from Bhadrikâśrama to Sôndâ, and the monk installed Trivikramadeva therein. A car festival is celebrated every year: the temple is also endowed. (2.) At Hunasehond, half a mile from the Sonda station, is Kalmath or Rajendramath, a Lingayat monastery, founded some three or four hundred years ago by the Sonda rajas. It is constructed with very large stone slabs.
- 16. Ulavi, Supâ Peţâ (lat. 15° 0' N., long. 74° 34' E.) The temple of Basaveśvara is built of laterite in a court surrounded by a high wall. It is of no architectural pretensions, but is of great repute among the Lingayats, and the original building is said to be of great antiquity. In front of it is a tall handsome granite dhvajastambha, and outside, in a hollow beneath the outer wall, is a large cistern with a perennial supply of water. This was the principal place of devotion for the Lingayat rajas of Sonda, who were usually buried here. Traces of old buildings and caves, said to have been occupied by Lingayat devotees, are still pointed out.
- 17. Supâ, tâlukâ Haliyâl (lat. 15° 16' N., long. 74° 34' E.), about 60 miles from Cârwâr, has a temple of Râmalinga built on an island at the confluence of the Kâlinadî and the Ujalî or Pândrî. It is supposed to be about 700 years old, and is not in good repair though it enjoys an allowance of Rs. 600 per annum.

The two following places are given on the authority of Mr. Hope's map in the Architecture of Mysore and Dharwar :-

Kiruwatti, Yellapûr Tâlukâ, (lat. 15° 4' N., long. 74° 54' E.) The temple of Kiruwatti is "nearly identical in style with that of Haralhalli" and probably belongs to the same age. "If anything, the details of the Kiruwatti temple are sharper and better, and this would indicate a somewhat greater age; but the difference of locality and stone may account for this;"—we want more information about this temple; it is not mentioned in the returns.

Inscription of the Western Châlukya king Vikramâditya-Tribhuvanamalla, dated in the 24th year of his reign, the Pramâthi Samvatsara (i.e., Saka 1021), the day of the full moon in Jyaishtha at the time of a lunar eclipse (a.)

'Mungoor,' (lat. 14° 59½' N., long. 75° 6′ E.) 13 miles E.S.E. from Kiruwatti. The temple of Mungoor is "interesting as illustrating a mode of roofing common in Northern and Eastern India. Most of the temples in Orissa have this form of roof over their porches. It is different from the storeyed roofs of the southern style, having no appearance of cells or dwellings, and affords great play of light and shade. Where used with numerous breaks, as in this case, it is as effective a mode of roofing as any to be found elsewhere, especially in India. The pillars of the porch are sharply and effectively modelled, and of sufficient strength to bear the heavy roof they support. The porch has a cell of its own on the left, and is detached from the principal temple on the right" (Arch., Mysore and Dharwar, Phot. No. 46).

1 Two photographs are given in Arch. of Mys. and Dhar.; Nos. 36 and 37.

1.-KOD TALUKA.

1. Mêdûr village, 14 miles south-east from Kôd or (?) 10 miles south-east from Rattehalli, has a temple of the goddess Nilamma.

Inscriptions:—(1) On the south of the shrine of Nîlamma at the temple of Basappa, dated Saka 967 (a); (2) on the north of the same shrine, Saka 969; (3) a Viragal in the temple of Billesvara, near the temple of Basappa, Saka 1186 (b).

- 2. Kôd, the chief town of the tâlukâ, (lat. 14° 32' N., long. 75° 30' E.). Inscription:—In the temple of Hanumân is an old Canarese one.
- 3. Nidanêgal, 3½ miles north-west from Madak and 11 miles south from Kod (lat. 14° 28′ N., long. 75° 27′E.). The temple of Kâleśvar here is regarded as 500 or 600 years old, and is like those ascribed to Jakhanâchârya. It contains two images of Basava and one of Kâleśvar.

Inscriptions :- Near the temple are 15 carved stones, some (?) with inscrip-

4. Kodamoggi, 1 mile S. W. from Masur. Temples of Siddharamesvar and Bayala.

Inscriptions:—(1) In the temple of Siddharameśvara, Saka 1012 (b); (2) in front of the same temple, Saka.....; (3) in front of (the god, or temple of) Bayala Basappa, Saka 1080 (c).

 Waraha, 2 miles W.N.W. of Nidanegal, and 7 miles W. from Masar, has a temple of Kallesvara.

Inscriptions:—A Viragal at the temple of Kallesvara, Saka 1210 (c); (2) a Māstīkal in the land belonging to Mallārappa Dēsāyi, Saka 1368 (c).

6. Chhaparadahalli, 2 miles S.W. of Rattihalli, has a temple of Hanuman said to be very old.

There is an inscription slab outside the village to the north.

7. Kanavišidhagëri or Pura,(?) 2½ miles S. of Rattihalli; temple of Kanavi Siddheśvar.

Inscriptions:—(1) On one of a row of stones on the south of the temple of Siddhappa, Saka 1030; (2) in the temple of Siddhappa, Saka 1074 (b); (3) on a pillar in the temple of Siddhappa, Saka 1191 (b); (4) on a pillar in the temple of Siddhappa, Saka 1187 (b).

8. Rattihalli, 10 miles S.S.E. from Kôd on the Choardi River (lat. 14° 25′ N., long. 75° 35′E.). Temple of Kadambesvar in the Jakhanacharya style, built about 700 years ago. It is built of sculptured slabs, and has three domes supported by 36 pillars (a).

Inscriptions:—(1) In the temple of Kadambeśvara, on the right of the god, Saka 1096 (a); (2) in the same temple, on the left of the god, Saka 1160 (a); (3) in the same temple, on a pillar in the madhyaranga, Saka 1160 (a); (4) in the same temple, on another pillar, Saka 1220 (b); (5) on the right hand as you enter the gate of the fort, Saka 1469 (b); (6) another on the right hand as you enter the gate of the fort, Saka 1479 (b); (7) on the left hand as you enter the village gateway, Saka 1472 (c).

9. Hirê-Kerûr, 7 miles S.S.W. of Kôd (lat. 14° 28' N., long. 74° 27' E.), has a large tank ascribed to Janamêjaya (whom the return places in the 10th century A. D.). An inscribed slab near the temple of Viśaparihareśvar is said to give some account of its construction. There is a copper-plate with one Chandi-Sivabasapa. The temples of Viśaparihareśvar (who is reputed to cure snake-bites), of Varahakâleśvar, and of Durgà are returned as of no antiquarian note.

Inscriptions:—(1) In the burial ground, Saka 984 (a); (2) at the temple of Tôṭada Vîrabhadra, Saka 987 (b); (3) at the same temple, Saka 1021 (b); (4) in front of the door of the same temple, Saka 1094 (c); (5) standing near the eastern wall of the same temple, Rudhirôdgâri (c); (6) standing to the west of the Gajalakshmi stone on the north of the garden-land of Kâlappa-Sânbhôga on the bank of the tank, Saka 1031 or 1053 (a); (7) on a stone to the east of a Gajalakshmi stone on the bank of the tank, Saka 1018 (c); (8) on a stone to the south of the said Gajalakshmi stone, Saka 1025 (c); (9) on a stone lying on the bank of the tank, Saka 1023; (10) near the house of Angadi-Ninganna on the east of the mosque near the village gate, Saka 1065 (b); (11) on a stone in the burning ground near the tank near the house of Sarayadava in the street, Saka 997 to 1045 (a).

10. Hosahalli, 2 miles E. from Hirê-Kerûr.

Inscriptions: -(1) In the pávuli or open place in the temple of Mallappa, Saka 1164 (c); (2) on the south wall in the temple of Mallamma on the road, on the west of the village, Prabhava (c).

11. Bâlambîd, 1½ miles N.W. of Hirê-Kerûr, has a temple of Vishaparihareśvar and Basava, in the Jakhanacharya style, said to be 300 years old; but part of the stones have been used to build the Hirê-Kerûr tank.

Inscriptions:—(1) On the left of the god in the temple of Vishaparihare-svara, Saka 979 (a); (2) in the same temple, Saka 1001 (a); (3) on the south of the door of the same temple, Saka 1009 (b); (4) at the same temple, Saka 1040 (c); (5) at the same temple, Saka 1150.

12. Chik-Kerûr, 121 miles W. from Kôd.

Inscriptions:—(1) On the bank of the tank called Hirikere, Saka 1016 (a):
(2) at the temple of Someśvara on the bank of the tank, Saka 1023 (b); (3) on the bank of the tank, Saka 1085 (b); (4) at the temple of Hanumanta, Saka 1023 (b); (5) in front of the temple of Banaśańkari, Saka 975 (b); a Viragal in the village gateway, Saka 1144 (c); (7) a Viragal near the village gate, Saka 999 (c); (8) lying on an anthill in the field of Kanibadiya Yagarêru, Saka 1047; (9) on one of a row of stones in a ditch at the end of the Agalapanavu, Saka 1051 (b).

13. Sitikond, 2 miles S.E. from Chik-Kerûr. Inscription on the edge of a paddy field to the east of the tank, dated Saka 970 (a); and a Viragal or a sati stone just below the preceding (c). 14. Chin-Mulgund, 6 miles N.N.W. from Kôd. To the N.E. of this village is a temple to Chikeśvar, 'in the Jaina style,' of black granite. The walls are carved with figures and the roof supported on 44 columns. On a small hillock to the east of the village is a svayambhu linga called Siddheśvar. At some distance to the left of it is a cave, which is said to lead underground to a fabulous distance. The village is said to have been the hermitage of Machhakandarâya, from whom the village was called Mulgund (!); also that gold dust is found in the neighbouring hills, and therefore it is called Chin-Mulgund.

Inscriptions:—(1) On the left side of the central door of the temple of Chikesvar is an inscription in 18 lines, each containing about 25 letters in old Canarese characters; (2) lying outside the temple of Isvara outside the village,

- 15. Abbalûr, 2 miles W. from Kôd. Temple of Basappa.

 Inscriptions:—(1) In the temple of Basappa, Saka 1022 (b); (2) in the same temple, Saka 1066 (b); (3) a Viragal in the same temple, Saka 1141; (4) in the temple of Sômanâtha, on the right of the god, about Saka 1090 (b).
- Arlekaţţi, 5 miles N. of Kôd. There are three inscriptions in the village in Old-Canarese characters.
 - 17. Sidenur, 4 miles N. of Arlekațți; -temple and inscription slab.
- 18. Tadas, 3 miles N.W. of Arlekatti (lat. 14° 37' N., long. 75° 28' E). There are four inscription slabs in this village on the band of the tank, two of them very much weather-worn.
- 19. Bannihațți, 9 miles N.E. from Kôd; an inscription in the field of Kallideva, dated Saka 1236.
- 20. Hamsabhavi, 7 miles N.W. from Kôd; a Vîragal on the bank of the tank, Saka 1128 (b.)
- 21. Odenpur (Vadenpur), 2 miles E. from Chin-Mulgund;—to the north of the village is a śilasâśana dated Saka 1422 Dandubhi Samvatsara, Kārtika Suddha 12th, Somavāra, granting Maypur to the Lingâyats as an atonement made by Linga-Kunteyavadar Kenidsamnaknayak (?) for the murder of a women named Kapite.
- 22. Muttur, 3 miles W. of Tadas: a temple of Siva in the Jaina style, about 30 feet long by 15 wide, with a small shrine. It is of black granite, and the walls are carved with numerous figures; but it has been repaired with brick. The roof is supported by 32 pillars. The Gauravas are supported by inam lands.

dated Saka 1304. It is a Viragal.

- 23. Hirêhalli, 4 miles N.W. of Muttur and 5 miles S.W. of Kâginelli;—old temple and an inscription slab.
- 24. Kâgineli, 13 miles N.N.W. from Kôd and 11 miles N.E. from Tiliwalli (lat. 14° 41′ N., long. 75° 25′ E.) In the same enclosure are two very plain stone temples dedicated to Âdikeśava and Lakshmînarasimha. The former measures 66 feet long, by 23 wide, with 12 columns in the outer open mandapa. That of Narasimha has a wooden-pillared front mandapa. The temples are said to have been built by two persons named Kondapa and Venkapa. Kanakdâs, the Canarese poet, is said to have brought the image of Adikesava from the village of Bad near Bankapur. He was a devotee, obtained the village of Dasanakop and much land in adjoining villages as an inam from the Bijyanagar kings. The priests are both Lingayats and Brahmans, and have an allowance of Rs. 494 for the celebration of the car festival. In the court is a shrine of Bhandarigiri Svami, into which are built four finely carved old pillars; other fragments lie about with excellent carving on them. There is a slab at the temple of Kalahastesvara carved with figures of Siva and Parvatî and small ones of Ganapati and Kartika Svami, in entire relief: in the same temple the pillars are carved with figures and festoons, the outer wall of the mandapa is of mud and small stones, the śikhara however is old.

Inscriptions:—(1) On the east of the temple of Kalahasteśvara on the north of the village, sunk in the earth, 6' 10" above ground by 3' 9\frac{1}{2}", Saka 1042 (b); (2) a Vîragal at the same temple, Saka 1204 (b); (3) on the dhvajastambha at the same place; (4) one nearly quite covered, in front of the same; (5) on the north side of the temple of Vîrabhadra at the same place are three stones sunk deep in the earth; (6) about twenty yards S.E. from Someśvara's temple, one over 6' high by 3' 2' broad, in good preservation except where the villagers have been sharpening their knives, &c., on the edge of it; (7) between this and the temple is another entirely sunk in the earth:—it should be removed and preserved; (8) west from the same a Vîragal, 2' 1" broad and inscription deeply sunk in the earth; (9) at Sangameśvara's shrine is an inscription sunk in a mud platform—not very legible; (10) on three finely carved old pillars in the shrine of Bandârigiri Svâmi at Lakshmî Nârâyaṇa's temple are five short inscriptions.

- 25. Ingalgondi, 8 miles S. from Kôd (?). Inscription at the temple of Kalleśvar on the bank of the tank, dated Saka 971 (a); and a Mástikal on the edge of a small tank in the temple, Bahudhánya (c).
- 26. Nagawand, 9 miles S. by E. from Rattihalli; inscription on the bank of the tank, Saka 1042.
- 27. Hallûr on the Tungabhadrû, 10 mîles S.E. of Rattihalli (lat. 14° 21' N., long. 75° 41' E.), has a temple and an inscription.
- 28. Bhairavanpad. This village was the northern limit of Hallûr, formerly called Sindhunagara, the capital of the Sindhu Ballâla dynasty, whose kuladevata is said to have been Bhairava. The great temple was ruined by Tipu Sultân; and the present one built by the Svâmi of Kudalgi, to whom the village was granted by Hanmant Gauda, Paligar of Havanur.

Hallûr, Harihar, Hampi and Śri Śaila are considered holy places, and the scenery on the Tungabhadra at them is said to be fine.

To the west of the village is an inscription of the Sindhu Ballala kings.

29. Kukigeri or Kirgeri, 9 miles E. of Raţṭihaḷḷi;—temple of Hanumân built by one Konappa Sunkad, a Collector of Customs, who grew rich, about 300 years ago. The roof is supported by 16 pillars.

30. Sátěnhalli, 10 miles W.N.W. of Kôd and 8 miles S.E. from Tiliwalli

(lat. 14° 35' N., long. 75° 23' E.) Temple of Ramalinga.

Inscriptions:—(1) On the south of the temple of Râmalinga, Saka 1036; 2) on one of a row of stones on the south of the temple of Râmalinga, Saka (125; (3) a Viragal at the temple of Râmalinga, Saka 1125 (b); (4) in front of the temple Kallappa on the bank of the Chikkôṇati tank, a quarter of a kos from the village, Saka 1064; (5) near the temple of Harihara, Saka 1125(b); (6) a Viragal in arow of stones outside the village, Saka 1125(b); (7) in the temple of Narayaṇa, Saka 1162(b); (8) standing against the wall on the east of the temple of Hanumanta, Saka 1502.

31. Kachivi, 5 miles S. by E. from Tiliwalli.

Inscriptions:—(1) A Viragal in front of the temple of Râmeśvara, Saka 1176 (c); (2) on the south front of the temple of Ganappa, Saka 1673 (c):

32. Yammiganûr, 7 miles S. from Tiliwalli.

Inscriptions:—(1) At the temple of Parameśvara, Saka 1070(b); (2) a Viragal lying on the left of the temple of Parameśvara outside the village, Saka 1095 (b); (3) a Viragal at the temple of Basavanna outside the village, Saka 1098 (b).

Kadûr, 3 miles E. of Rattihalli:—temple and inscription.

34. Madak, 12 miles south from Kôd (lat. 14° 22' N., long. 75° 29' E.) on the borders of Maisur, has a large artificial tank, of which the following account is supplied by Lieutenant-Colonel Playfair, R.E.

"The so-called Madak Tank is a legacy to us from the ancient rulers of that part of the country. It was probably a work of the Anagundi kings, who appear to have been great tank-builders; at any rate, they have the credit of most of the fine tanks with which the southern part of the Dharwad Collectorate is dotted. In this particular case they failed from errors of construction. The site selected was, apparently, very favourable one: a considerable river, after passing through an extensive plain, entered a gorge in the hills of no great breadth, which it was comparatively easy to close. This they did, and on a magnificent scale, by an earthen dam, about 800 feet thick at the base and 100 feet in height. The hills in the neighbourhood still present clear traces of the vast excavations for material, and of the roads by which it was brought to the site, while a fort of considerable pretension on a hill commanding the tank is stated by tradition to have been erected for the protection of the work-people. Not content with the mass of earth thrown up, as an additional precaution they faced it, particularly at the point where it crossed the river, with enormous blocks of stone. The sluices were conceived on a similar magnificent scale. The same principle was adopted as is general throughout the Collectorate, viz., a rectangular masonry channel through the dam, closed with a perforated stone fitted with a wooden stopper; but the tank being large these sluices were in proportion, and where in ordinary practice small stone pillars would carry the platform over the stopper, here the supports formed of a single stone weighed about 20 tons each. To the upper sluice a tradition of human sacrifice is attached; it runs as follows: Being the crowning point or finishing touch to this great work, the king and all his courtiers had assembled to witness the erection of the first of the above mentioned monolith pillars, but all the efforts of the workmen were in vain. Day after day passed, still the pillar was obdurate. A rumour became current that the goddess was angry, and that nothing save a human sacrifice would appease her. The beautiful Lakshmi, the virgin daughter of the chief Waddar (or tank-digger)

then stepped forward and offered herself, which the brutes accepted, and she was buried alive below the site of the stone, which was then erected without further trouble. I mention this anecdote as curious, and because I believe it founded on fact. The sluice is now a temple, and I have been informed that it

"The tank was finished and gradually filled, when to the utter discomfiture of its constructors it burst, not through the valley they had so carefully closed, but through the hill side itself. It is difficult now to ascertain the exact cause. Tradition says that there was a third sluice on the hill where the breach now is; if so, it must have been the waste weir, and utterly insufficient for its purpose as the native weirs generally are. The river in flood, of course, after filling the tank sought an outlet and found it here, but being too small blew it up, and a vast body of water passed over the saddle of the hill in a deep groove with a fall down to the old bed of the river of nearly 100 feet. The result was a chasm which looks as fresh now almost as the day it was made, with sides nearly perpendicular and as if cut with a knife. As the water decreased in volume and fall, and the strata to be cut through became harder, the erosion ceased and a certain quantity of water remained in the tank. Its surplus escapes now over the point where the cutting of the water ceased, and forms a pretty little water-fall. Such is the state we found it in, still, in comparison with the other tanks in the Collectorate, a very large one. The original builders appear, however, to have been thoroughly disheartened, and to have taken no steps to utilize the smaller quantity of stored up water yet left them. They abandoned the whole undertaking, and to our day the unfinished channels and the dam with all its appendages remained overgrown with jungle, the haunt of various wild animals, the main sluice on account of its vast monoliths being still a show place, and the upper one as before mentioned a temple.

"As may be supposed, after the English gained possession of the country, and the value of the irrigation from other tanks became known, the large area of water still held up by this ruined work was looked at covetously, and various schemes were suggested for its utilization; there were difficulties in the way, however, viz:—(1). The lowest of the old native sluices which offered the only channel for drawing water through the enormously thick dam was left, when the breach occurred, just too high above the surface of the tank to be of any value:—(2). Any proposition to dam up the chasm where the outlet now is, and so raise the level of the tank sufficiently to use the old sluices, was met not only by the great expense inherent to it, but by the opposition of the Mysore villagers, whose lands lay on the margin of the tank, and would be swamped by any rise in its level; for I omitted to state that the boundary between the Bombay Presidency and Mysore runs along the top of the old dam, so that the tank itself is in Mysore, while the lands below it are in Bombay.

"Owing to the above named difficulties nothing was done until I took the matter in hand when Executive Engineer, Dharwad. After long consideration, and abandoning, owing to its difficulty, the plan I first entertained of drawing the water off by a channel through the breach, it occurred to me that if a culvert could be laid below the old sluice the tank could be successfully tapped. This was done under my own immediate supervision, and was a very interesting piece of work, not unattended with danger. The old native sluice had first to be cleared out, as it was filled up with dirt, the accumulation of centuries. Clear-

"The culvert below the floor of the old work was then proceeded with, the latter acting as a ventilator as well as roof till the new tunnel was arched in. All went on well enough till towards the centre, where rock of very hardest nature was met with, which could, as it were, be only scraped away by our tools. Blasting was out of the question with such a ricketty mass of old masonry above, and the remaining work was literally taken out in powder.

"The rayats, who had watched our efforts with interest not unmixed with grave doubts as to the water-goddess who had frustrated the original builder, ever allowing any one else to succeed, are now contentedly irrigating their lands with the plentiful stream issuing from the new culvert. A considerable length of canal has been made and more is making, and a very fine expanse of garden land is in course of creation. The sketches annexed (Plates I and II) sufficiently illustrate the work without requiring further description. The key to the whole was the tapping the long imprisoned water by the low level tunnel, which, though an insignificant work in England, was not so in that far off corner of the Bombay Presidency, with no means or appliances but the unskilled cooly with his pawrah."

About four hundred years ago the Patil of Masur, whose family lived at Para Tarkeri in the Simoga Taluka, had a beautiful daughter called Kenchava, whom the king of Aneguadi wished to marry; but she objected to him as a Kshatriya, and fled. The Tungabhadra River made way for her. Her parents wished to marry her to the Patil of Isar, Sikharpura Taluka, and set out to b, b represent enormous stone pillars carrying the stone roof on which the natives would stand to open the old sluice.

References to Plate II: -a, a, a represent the wooden rods furnished with wooden stopple at c, which opened or closed the irrigation outlets at d, d, d, on the top of the old native sluices. These rods would be drawn up or shut down by the natives standing on the stone roof above.

E, E, entrance to old native sluice. These entrances, according to the native fashion of irrigation, would be kept closed till the water was low in the tank ; till then the irrigation would be effected by means of staff and stopple.

celebrate the marriage; but passing a temple which stood where now the Madak tank is, she entered it and devoted herself to the god. Her sister was married to the Isûr Pâtil, and the Anegundi king made the tank, when the temple was submerged. The rain-fall was so abundant the year that the tank was built, that it was watched lest it should burst. The Talavar on guard became possessed of Kenchavâ, who told him to inform Mallangauda of Mâsur, that she would not remain any longer where she was, unless a woman in the ninth month of pregnancy were sacrificed to her. The Talavar said he was afraid to leave the tank, for if it burst while he was away the Pâtil would punish him. Kenchavâ, however, promised that the embankment should not break, but if he were long in returning the water would burst through the hills but not through the band. The Pâtil, annoyed at the man leaving his post, had him tied up and punished, and did not offer the sacrifice. Kenchavâ consequently broke through the hill and the embankment as well.

Legend further says that poor people used to go to the tank and beg for a loan of nose- and ear-rings to use at marriage ceremonies, and found them on the bank. Once, a man without returning the ornaments went and called Kenchavâ by name, to which she answered. He exclaimed, "Why, they say you are dead, and yet here you answer me." Since then she has been mute.

Twelve years ago a fisherman's tackle got entangled in the roof of the submerged temple. Diving down to disentangle it, he entered the temple and saw a golden image of Kenchava. She warned him that if he revealed to any one, that she was alive, he would burst a blood-vessel and die. He asked her how he would get away, whereon she pushed him up to the surface. Two years after he went to Harihar and divulged the secret, but died from the bursting of a blood-vessel.

In times of drought the heads of the temples in Sikharpur Tâlukâ, Maisur, come to this tank with a tali or round piece of gold and a nose-ring, which they obtain from the Pâtil of Masur. They place food on a small raft, and pushing it off into the tank pray to Kenchavâ for rain.

2.—RANIBENNUR TALUKA.

35. Kadarmandaligî, 9 miles W. of Rânîbennûr (lat. 14° 38' N., long. 75° 35' E.). There is a temple of Mâruti Kanteśa in the village. The image is said to have been established by Janamêjaya (a).

Inscriptions:-(1) On the dhvajastambha of the temple of Hanumanta, Saka 1498; and (2) another weather-worn in a field.

36. Asundi, 5 miles W. of Ranîbennûr.

Inscriptions:—(1) At the temple of Kalleśvar, outside the village, dated Saka 1034 (b); (2) near the same temple, Saka 1065; (3) another much obliterated.

- 37. Ukund, 3 miles S. of Kadarmandalgî. At the temple of Kâleśvar is an old Canarese inscription slab 5 feet high by 2½ broad. Sankara Ningapa Bâjar has a copper-plate grant.
- 38. Harogop, 8 miles from Ranibennur (lat. 14° 29' N., long. 75° 38' E.) Inscription of 12 lines, much effaced, near the temple of Hanuman.
- Benakanakond, 3 miles N. of Harôgop, and 5 miles S.S.W. of Ranibennur. Temple of Kalmeśvar.

Inscriptions:—(1) On the south of the temple of Kalleśvara, Saka 955 (b); (2) again on the south of the same temple, Saka 1124 (b); (3) on the lamp-pillar (dîpada kambha) at the same temple, Saka 1031 (c); (4) a Vîragal below the tank, Saka 1206.

40. Rånîbennîr (lat. 14° 37' N., long. 75° 42' E.). The Dargah of Hazrat Jamal Shâh Wali was rebuilt about 30 years ago by Amîn Shâh Husainî alias Kamalshâh Husain at a cost, it is said, of only Rs. 5,000. The roof is supported by 40 stone pillars and numerous wooden ones. Jamal Shâh is said to have led in one halter a mouse, a cat, a dog, a stag, a snake, and a mungoose, one not molesting another; and he wore bangles up to his elbows. These were among his titles to sanctity. There is a great scene at the Dargah during Muharram.

Inscriptions:—One near the Dipmâla pillar at the temple of Siddheśvara is dated Saka 1411 Sadharana, Jyeshiha Vadya 5th, and contains the names of some of the Bijyanagar kings.

Harihar is 14 miles south-east from Ranibennur (see P. S. and O. C. Inscriptions Nos. 17, 22, 116-135).

- 41. Hirê Bidari, 8 miles north of Harihar on the Tungabhadrâ, has an old temple and three inscriptions, one dated Saka 1205, in 50 lines.
- 42. Guddagudapur or Devargad, 6 miles north of Ranîbennar. Temple of Mailaralinga or Khandobâ of great celebrity in all the surrounding districts. It is built of black stone, polished; the roof is supported by 20 pillars, of which 4 are round and the rest square. The outer walls are ornamented with carved figures, but the spire is of brick. There is a great annual fair on the 9th of Aświna Śuddha, when self-torture is practised by dovotees, &c., to the present time. The temple is supported by inâm lands. Near it is a temple to Khandobâ's wife Mâlasâbâî, or Gangi Malawâ, and six (?) other minor temples.
- 43. Chaudadampur, or Pura, 13 miles north of Ranibennur (lat. 14° 47′ N., long. 76° 43′ N.) Temple of Mukteśvara of black stone (a). The temple here is "less graceful than that at Dambal, but it is fine, bold temple of the same age and style, with all its details more completely finished than they are in that example. As a design, its principal defects are the form of its dome, and the insignificance of its crowning member (the kalaśa), which is much two small for its position. In these respects it forms a very marked contrast with the Dambal example, where these part are in as perfect proportion to the other part of the design as in any example" in the country.

Inscriptions:—(1) In the temple of Muktesvar is a very short but important inscription, dated Saka 821, Siddharthi (a); (2) an old Canarese inscription of king Vikramaditya Tribhuvanamalla (a.d. 1076-1127) (b); (3) in the same temple a stone slab with three inscriptions dated Saka 1181, 1148 and 1184 (b); (4) in the temple of Isvara on the bank of the Tungabhadra an inscription of the great chieftain Vikramaditya of the lineage of Chandragupta, dated Saka 1113, at the time of a solar eclipse at the new moon of Margasirsha (b); (5) a slab, also bearing three Yadava inscriptions dated Saka 1185, 1185 and 1164

 (6) one dated Saka 1186 (at the back of No. 1?);
 (7) another, Saka 1213;
 (8) behind the image of Vîrabhadra in the temple of Gopâdêvamuni, Saka 1184.

44. Heggêri, 4 miles S. W. from Hallur, which is 23 miles S. from Rânîbennûr.

about Saka 1104 (b).

- 45. Hirê Kabbâr, 3 miles W. by N. from Hallur. Inscription:—In the field of Badagunda, Saka 1094.
- 46. Anivêri, 12 miles S. by E. from Rânîbennûr.

 Inscription:—In an open space in the temple of Kallapa, Saka 1104.
- 47. Bidarakundi, (?) 10 miles S. W. from Rånîbennûr.

 Inscription:—In the temple of Sangameśvara, Śaka 954 (b).
- 48. Byådige, 12 miles N. W. from Rånîbennûr.

49. Hûlihalli, 3 miles W. by N. from Rânîbennûr.

Inscriptions:—(1) On the south of the temple of Kallesvara in the fort, Saka 1065; (2) on the right of the temple of Râmesvara outside the village, Saka 1104.

3 .- KARAJAGI TALUKA.

- 50. Haralahalli on the Tungabhadra, 3 miles east of Guttal (lat. 14° 50′ N., long. 75° 44′ E.) Temples of Someśvara of black stone and of Kaleśvara, and three inscriptions (a) of 94, 110, and 76 lines respectively.
- 51. Gûtal (lat. 14° 50' N., long. 75° 41½ E.) Temple of Chudaśekhara of black stone (a), and two inscriptions, one of 95 lines the other of 24.
- 52. Galaganâth, 6 miles north of Haralahalli, and 20 E. by N. from Karajagi, on the Tungabhadrâ. The temple of Gârgeśvar to the north of the village is of black granite, about 80 feet by 40, with 4 pillars supporting the roof, the walls carved with mythological figures (a).

Inscriptions:—(1) A Viragal standing on the right of the god in the temple of Hanumanta in the village, Saka 933 (a); (2) in the temple of Galagesvara Saka 1069; (3) in the enclosure of the temple of Gargesvara (?—Galagesvara).

Saka 1002 (a).

53. Kanawalli, 8 miles west by south from Guttal (lat. 14° 48' N., long. 75° 35' E.) Old temple of Parameśvara, built of stone and brick, the spire destroyed, contains also images of other dévas. It is considered as very old and is about 50 feet by 17, with 4 pillars. Temple of Bhogésa is a similar structure.

Inscriptions: - Three of 24, 16 and 70 lines respectively.

54. Håveri, 6 miles S.W. of Karajagi (lat. 14° 47' N., long. 75° 27' E.); Math (or monastery) of Råghavendra Svami, and old temple of Kalappa. Four inscriptions—one, broken, of 63 lines, and the others of 58, 18 and 48 lines respectively.

Inscriptions:—(1) Near the mantapa on the north of the temple of Halévûra Basavanna, Saka 1056 (a); (2) near the same temple, Saka 1079 (b); and other two.

- 55. Kotur, 3 miles west from Karajagi; —Temple of Basavanna in the Jakhanacharya style with 12 pillars. Two inscriptions.
- 56. Devagiri, 6 miles west by south of Karajagi and 4 miles N.W. from Hâvêri (lat. 14° 51' N., long. 75° 26' N.) Temples of Hanumân, Basavanna, and Ellavvâ or Yellammâ, one attributed to Jakhanachârya (a?). In the last is an inscription dated "Saka 1460, Vilambi Samvatsara, Ashâdha Suddha, Monday." Three sets of copper-plates found here are published in the Indian Antiquary, vol. VII., pp. 33, 35, 37 (see also Pâli, Sanskrit and old Canarese Insc. Nos. 1, 3, and 4).
- 57. Dêvîhosûr, 4½ miles S.W. of Devagiri (lat. 14° 48' N., long.75° 24' E.) Inscriptions:—An ordinary village temple of Bâṇaśańkar to the north of the village contains four inscription slabs. In the temple of Bhogeśvara are two, one of about 20 lines and the other of 11. In the temple of Basavaṇṇa is one. An eighth inscription is on the band of the tank to the east of the village. A ninth is in a field. And two inscriptions are by "the dunghill in the compound of one Kajaniwali."
- 58. Didgur, 4 miles south-west of Dêvîhosûr. Six inscriptions in the temple of Hanuman, one in Pujar Bandiya's compound, and an eighth on the waste-weir of the talâv.
- 59. Sangur, 2 miles north of Didgur, on the Varada. A small temple of Îśvara, with a roof supported by 2 octagonal columns; the outer walls carved with mythological subjects.

Inscriptions :- Four in the village.

60. Karajagi: - stone temple of the Jakhanacharya style (a?).

- 61. "Agree," 4 miles N.E. from Haveri: -Old temple of the Jakhana-charya class (a?).
- 62. Mallûr, 12 miles south of Karajagi:—Temple of Vîrabhadra in the Jakanacharya style, and three inscriptions.

4.—HANGAL TALUKA.

63. Kallukêri, 6 miles N. by E. of Tiliwalli (lat. 14° 42′ N., long. 75° 19′ E.) (1) Temple of Basaveśvar, a Lińgâyat shrine 69 feet by 48 in the Jaina style, with beautiful images and walls ornamented with carving. (2) Temples of Lakshmî, Someśvar and Sarasvatî, ascribed to Jakhanâchârya, but plain.

Inscriptions :- Seven outside to the east of the temple of Basavesvara, varying in size from 6' by 3' to 3' by 11'.

- 64. Herûr, 7 miles N. by E. from Tiliwalli:—A Viragal at the temple of Basappa near the tank, Saka 1079 (c).
- 65. Hirê Bâsûr, 4 miles S.E. of Kallukêri. There is a cave in a rising ground near the village and said to go a fabulous distance underground.

Inscriptions: - One in front of the temple of Visvesvara, 41 feet by 11 feet; another standing in front of the temple of Hanuman, 3 feet by 11 feet.

66. Tiliwalli, 12 miles S.E. from Hångal (lat. 14° 37' N., long. 75° 18' E.) The temple of Santesvara in the middle of the village, about 75 feet long by 57 in breadth, with 44 columns inside,—partly ruinous, is a fine specimen of a Brahmanical temple in the Châlukya style, with much mythological carving, Dikpalas, &c. The roof is supported by highly polished stone pillars and has a fine carved lotus (a). (2) Temple of Sankoli Basappa.

Inscriptions: -(1) One on a pillar inside the temple of Santesvar of 13 lines; (2) one, 7 ft. by 31, outside the temple on the south of the Yadava king Simhana, dated Saka 1160, Thursday, 3rd Phalgun Suddha (P. S. and O. C. Inscriptions No. 112); (3) one Viragal near the south door; (4) at the temple of Basavesvar in front of the Churachi Math, Saka 975 (b); (5-7) three-each 5 feet high-at the west wall of Churachi Ayya's Math, two of them illegible and the third damaged; (8) one, much obliterated, at the east gate of the town, 5 feet by 2½ feet; (9) one behind the Kalyana Math, 2' 6" by 1' 10"; (10, 11) an inscription and a Viragal behind the Kalla Math—one 4' 2" by 1' 8" and one 3' by 1' 10"; (12) a Viragal on the right of the temple of Îśvara, Saka 1160 (c); (13) one on the four sides of a dipmala lying at the foot of the Pipal tree; (14) one built into the coping of the wall of the new sluice in the band (this ought to be removed); (15,16) at the temple of Basavanna are two Viragals.

67. Kyâsanûr, 7 miles S.S.W. from Hângal. Inscriptions: -(1) On the road, on the north of the village, Saka 1054 (b); (2) a Viragal on a mound on the same road, Saka 1163; (3) a Viragal among a row of stones on the same road, Saka 1098; (4) in a row of stones (? at the same place) Saka 867 in words:-this is an important inscription, and should be photographed (a). There is also one inscription in the village 11 feet square, and two others outside.

68. Bâlehalli, 6 miles S.W. of Hangal, close to Siragod. Inscriptions: -(1) In front of the temple of Mailaradeva, Saka 1066 (b); (2) in front of the temple of Mallikarjuna, Saka 1070 (b); (3) a Viragal at the same place, Saka 998 (b). There are altogether eleven inscriptions in the village and one in Survey No. 136,

69. Hångal (lat. 14° 45' N., long. 75° 11' E.), the ancient Panungal. Temple of Tarakesvar belonging to the Smarttas: a very large and elegant one built of black granite, and the walls carved with mythological sculptures (a). Tradition ascribes it to Vîra Ballâla (about A. D. 1192-1211). "The roof of the temple has been thoroughly church-wardened in modern times, and so covered with plaster that it is impossible to say what its original form may have been; but, as Colonel M. Taylor remarks, 'it serves to protect the interior, which is in perfect preservation. In one part of the temple (the sabha mandapa) is the celebrated Padma or lotos of Hangal, a solid octagon stone, nearly thirty feet in diameter, carved in the form of a lotos flower, and supported by eight rightly sculptured columns. It seems impossible to account for the manner in which this great mass of rock was lifted up and placed in its present position.' The roof of the porch is supported by 108(?) pillars, with the lotosdome in the centre. The doorway of the detached temple, though similar in design to those of the temple at Lakkundi, shows a strong tendency towards the border style of decoration which was employed by the Ballala architects at Halabid and elsewhere." For plan and elevation of the temple see Ind. Ant., vol. V., p. 179.

The temple of Bilesvar, half a mile to the south of Hangal, said to be

Tribhuvanamalla dated Saka 1035; two of king Nurmadi-Taila; one in the temple of Târakeśvara of the time of the Hoysala king Ballâla and the Kadamba Kâmadeva, Saka 1118; also another of Kâma (P. S. and O. C. Insc. Nos. 103-107; see also Ind. Ant., vol. IV., p. 205). (1) On a dunghill in front of the temple of Mailâradeva, Khara (b); (2) a Viragal in the temple of Târakeśvara, Nala (b); (3) on the left hand in the door of the temple of Târakeśvara, Saka 1101 (b); (4) in the temple of Îśvara inside the fort, Saka 1111 (b); (5) at he Bûdîmatha, Saka 1097 (b).

At the temple of Hanumandeva at Halekoti (close to Hangal on the west side) is an inscription 3 feet by 2 feet, that would repay examination (a). Near this is a small temple with some curious and interesting sculptures of Naga men and women, &c. (Ind. Ant., vol. IV., p. 205).

5.—SIGGAUM OR BANKAPUR TALUKA.

101. Såbalůr, (?) 8 miles west of Bankåpur and 7 miles east of Mundagod (lat. 14° 57′ N., long. 75° 12′). Temple of Îśvara.

Inscriptions:—(1) At the temple of Îśvara on the north of the village, Saka 1033 (b); (2) at the same temple, Saka 1037.

102. Hunagund, 3 miles S.S.E. from Sabal. A broken inscription.

103. Nidagundi, 5 miles west of Bankapur.

Inscriptions:—(1) In the court of the house Andanigouda, 3 ft. by 2 ft.; (2) in the field Survey No. 57, 3' by 1 9"; (3) in Survey No. 58, 4' 9" by 2'; (4) in the same, 4 ft. by 1½ ft.; (5) in Survey No. 84, 2 ft. by 1½ ft.

104. Bankâpur (lat. 14° 55', long. 75° 20'). Fine, large old temple of Rangasvāmi, usually called Arvattukambhada-basti or temple of the sixty columns, partially ruined, and a good deal buried in rubbish (a). It is built of polished stone, and the walls are carved with figures. The roof has an octagonal dome in the centre. " The form of the pillars, and more so the encircling wall which surrounds them, are simple and uniform to a degree very seldom found in buildings of this class in this part of the country. Except the form of the cornice, the whole looks exceptional, and partakes more of the northern style than of the wild exuberance of the south."2 "It may be remembered, perhaps, that when king Firuz Shah Bahmani invaded the Bijyanagar dominions in 1406, he demanded the daughter of the raja of that kingdom in marriage, with the fort of Bankapur as a dowry; and eventually, when Bijyanagar had been reduced to sore straits obtained both. Bankapur had previously belonged exclusively to the Hindus, and on account of the rich districts dependent upon it, and its valuable local produce, was a much-desired possession. It was, therefore, surrendered only under circumstances of great distress. Henceforward, it continued subject to the Muhammadans, and was dependent upon Belgaum." All the carved work of this exquisite temple was smashed by workmen and engineers connected with some cotton presses established here about 18 years ago.

The temple of Siddheśvar is smaller and not so old. It is built of black stone with three doors on the east side, and has some carved figures on the walls. The roof is supported by eight pillars. Inám lands belong to the temple, and the Desai of Handiganur supports the priest and executes the repairs.

Inscriptions.—(1.) Leaning against a wall to the right of the east entrance to the fort is a large silasasana of 59 lines, each of about 37 letters, in old Canarese. For the most part it is in fine order; but the 4th line has been deliberately cut out and almost entirely obliterated, and there are fissures in the tablet, which would probably result in its falling to pieces if an attempt were made to remove it to a safer place of custody. The emblems at the top of the tablet have been wilfully defaced; but traces of them can be made out. The inscription is dated Saka

977 (A.D. 1055-56), while the Châlukya king Gangapêrmanadi Vikramâdityadeva, —the son of Trailokyamalladeva, the supreme lord of the city of Kuvalâlapura the lord of Naudagiri, he whose crest was an infuriated elephant,—was ruling the Gangavâdit ninety-six thousand and the Banavâsi twelve thousand, and while the great chieftain, the glory of the family of the Kâdamba emperor Mayûravarmâ was governing the Banavâsi twelve thousand as his subordinate. It records a grant of land to a Jaina temple by Harikesarideva, his wife Sachchaladevî, the assemblage of the five religious colleges of Bankâpur, the guild of the Nagara, mahâjana and 'The Sixteen.' (a)

(2, 3.) On the wall to the left of the south entrance to the shrine of the Arvattukambhada-basti of Nagareśvar are short and very well preserved old Canarese inscriptions: the one apparently a repetition of part of No. 1; the other is not dated and "consists of six lines of poetry, each line containing about 23 letters, and 2 letters over in the 7th line. The verses are in praise of a certain Simha or Singa."

- (4-7.) In the interior of the same temple there are three inscriptions let into the wall on the right of the shrine door, and one on the left. No. 4, the uppermost on the right, contains 39 lines of about 12 letters each, recording a grant to the god Narakeśvaradeva in the 12th year of the Châlukya king Bhûlôkamalla or Someśvaradeva II. (Saka 1060). No. 5, under it, is of 16 lines of about 23 letters each, and records another grant made the same year by a private person. No. 6, the lowest, has 12 lines of about 23 letters each, and records a grant made by an official in the reign of Tribhuvanamalla (Vikramâditya II., Saka 1013). No. 7, on the left, has 37 lines of about 16 letters each, and records a grant to the Jaina temple of Kiriya-Bankâpur in the 45th year of king Vikrama (Saka 1042).

6.-Jaghies of Sirhatti, Lakshmesvar, Savanur and Jamkhandi.

119. Lakshmeśvar (a), 21 miles N.E. of Siggånw and 20 miles north of Karajagi (lat. 15° 7', long. 75° 21'), the ancient Pulikeri, contains a group of extremely interesting temples, but "so completely ruined that it is almost impossible to make out their history with anything like certainty." One of them "is of the great age contemporary with the temples of Haralhalli and Kiruwatti ... and belonging, therefore, most probably, to the thirteenth century." 1 The principal temples are (1.) that of Someśvardeva in the south of the town, built of black granite and white stone, and is of very considerable size. Instead of the invariable linga, it contains an image of Siva riding on Nandi, with Parvatî behind him. The walls inside and out are decorated with numerous figures, -much of the carving is regarded as illustrative of the Mahabharata. In the mandapa are four lines of columns supporting the roof, the central compartment of which is beautifully carved. It measures about 80' by 42'. To the west of the temple is a beautiful stone well with an inscription in a small room belonging to it. (2.) The temple of Srî Lakshmîlinga in the west of the town is also a large one, and the walls are sculptured with mythological figures; near it is a tank. (3.) Sankhabasti, an old Jaina temple in the middle of the town, recently repaired with brick. The roof is supported by 36 pillars. (4.) Hala-basti, a smaller Jaina temple. (5.) The temple of Kodiyellama. Beautifully carved stones abound in walls, drains, &c. The Mamlatdar has saved such as attracted his attention, and built them up in a pile in the court of the Kacheri.

The Kala Masjid 65' by 35' is noted for its chains cut out of stone and beautiful traceries, which are copied as excellent patterns by silversmiths, &c. It is one of the prettiest mosques in the peninsula. It was built in 1617 A.D.

Inscriptions.—These are numerous. Twenty-nine have been collected by the Mâmlatdâr in front of the Kacheri. Two are at the temple of Lakshmîlinga; three in that of Someśvara; one near the Dêsâî's well; six at the Sankhabasti; two near the Agarkatti Agaśi have been removed to the Kacheri; one near the Sankhatīrtha; one near the Sahasralinga temple; and three Persian and Arabic ones are in the mosques. The dates read on some of them are Saka 1354, "Châlukya Vikrama Sanvatsara Sarvajita;" Saka 1168 (a Yâdava inscription); the tenth year of Jagadêkamalla, Prabhava Sanvatsara, Thursday, 12th Ashâdha Suddha (P. S. and O. C. Ins. No. 97); two in Saka 890, Vibhava Sanvatsara; two of Sadâśivarâya of Bijyanagar (A.D. 1542-1564); one dated Saka 1469, Plavanga Sanvatsara; a Virakal of Saka 1000, Kaliyukta Sanvatsara Saha-kritu Sanvatsara, Saka 48; in the reign of Tribhuvanamalla, Bhânu Sanvatsara, Saka 27; in the reign of the Yâdava king of Sinihana (A.D. 1132-1169); Vilambi Sanvatsara 1460; and one contains the Châlukya genealogy to Jagadêkamalla, "the elder brother (?) of Bijala."

120. Sirhatti (a), 10 miles N.E. of Lakshmeśvar (lat. 15°14', long. 75°39'). "The palace at Sirhatti is, though less magnificent (than that at Bijyanagar), a much more favourable specimen of the style. It is built in stone, and both artistically and constructively is well proportioned and elegant. Though the windows are pointed there are probably no real arches in the building; and the sculptures, though sufficient to authenticate its Hindu origin, are kept so subdued as not to interfere with its Muhammadan outline. It is easy to see that the building is a direct copy of one of the palaces of Bijâpûr, most probably the Ashar Mubârak, of which it is, in fact, little more than a reduced repetition; but it is copied with a degree of taste seldom found in such examples, and therefore more than usually pleasing."

121. Kundgol (a) Jamkhandi, 20 miles S.E. from Dhârwâd (lat. 15° 15′, long. 75° 19′). There is a fine old temple, more within the limits of the village of Par than Kundgol; it is built without lime, of highly polished stones, which are dovetailed into one another. The carvings and images on the pillars and roof are well cut, but have been injured by Muhammadans. It was repaired by a former chief in 1808-9, and dedicated to Siva and Pârvatî.

7. - HUBRALLI TALUKA.

- 122. Chikka-narti, 19 miles east of Sirhatti (lat. 15° 17', long. 75° 22') (on the Bennihallâ). Temple of Kalameśvara, in which is a stone inscription.
- 123. Yerguppi, 1 mile north of Chikka-narti. Temple of Nârâyana, in which is an inscription similar to that at Chikka-narti.
- 124. Chabbi, 8 miles south of Hubballi (lat. 15° 13', long. 75° 13'). The old name of the village is said to have been Sobhanpur, and it is said to have been in early times the capital of a Jaina prince, when it had seven Bastis of which only one is now left in the middle of the village. The Bijyanagar kings are said to have improved the place and Krishna Râya (a.d. 1509-1529) is said to have resided here and built the fort as well as that at Hubballi. The Muhammadans ceded it to the Nawâb of Savanur. In later times it was an arsenal of the Pêshwâs. On the south side of the tank is a small but very old temple of Malikârjuna; and in the north-east of the village is a plain temple of Nettagalla Basavanna.

Inscriptions:- In the middle of the fort is an old well bearing an inscription and there is another near the temple of Kalkadêvi.

125. Hubballi (lat. 15° 20', long. 75° 12'). In Râyara-Hubballi or old town is the temple of Bhavâniśankar, and in the same area are three others to Nârâyana, Bhavâniśankar and Gaṇapati, with carved figures on the walls (a). The temple of Hanumân bears a close resemblance in style to that of Bhavâniśankara, with 24 columns. A photograph (ph. 53) of a ruined Jaina temple is given in the Architecture of Dharwar and Mysore.

Inscriptions.—One in front of the temple of Bhavaniśańkara.

126. Unkal, 3 miles N. W. from Hubballi. The temple of Chandra Kâleśvara to the south of the village is built of black granite; the walls are carved with mythological figures, but it is almost deserted (a).

The temple of Kalmesvara is in the modern style.

Inscriptions:—One stands in front of the temple of Chandra Kâleśvara and about 100 yards from the school-house. Near Bahiredevarkop, by the side of the main road, on the band of a tank, is another.

127. Amargal, 2 miles N. W. of Unkal. Temple of Sankaralinga in the middle of the village, built of black and light-coloured granite; partly in ruins. The walls and pillars are carved with figures of gods, &c. The expenses are defrayed from inam lands.

Inscription: - In front of the temple is a broken and defaced inscription slab.

128. Bêhatti, 8 miles N. E. from Hubballi (lat. 15° 27', long. 75° 16'). Temple of Vîrabhadra about 200 years old, of hewn stone (a).

Inscriptions:—One at the temple of Râmalinga; one in the Kambhalli Math; one near the well of Dhumakawa; and a fourth near the Charanti Math. One Bengeri Basappa possesses a copper-plate grant.

129. Sulla:—Temple of Kalmeśvar is a large building.

Inscriptions:—One on the Hubballi road is partly buried in the ground;

8.-KALGHATGI TALUKA.

130. Belwantra, 3 miles south of Kalghatgi.

Inscriptions:—There are two inscriptions, one to the north of the village and between it and the tank; the other is to the west of the village.

131. Kâmdhênu, 6 miles N.E. of Kalchstei. Temple of Kalmeirann

131. Kâmdhênu, 6 miles N.E. of Kalghatgi. Temple of Kalmeśvara, an old building, of black granite. The outsides of the walls ornamented with mythological carvings.

Inscriptions:—There are two near the temple, said to be much obliterated.

132. Mirâkoţa, 7 miles N.E. of Kalghatgi (lat. 15°14', long. 75° 7'). Old temple of Râmeśvara, built of black stone. Inscriptions.—There is one stone in the temple.

133. Chalmati, 2 miles north of Miśrikota. Temple of Budangudda Bassappa outside the village. "About 1½ miles from the village is a den called Ajavan-katti, much visited."

9.—DHARWAD TALUKA.

- 134. Managundi:—Temples of Siddhalinga, partly in ruins, and of Kalmeśvaradeva, small temple; both of black stone.

 Inscriptions:—One in each temple.
- 135. Narendra, 4½ miles N.W. of Dhârwâd (lat. 15° 30', long. 75° 3'). Temple of Sankaralingadeva, rebuilt by the villagers.

 Inscription:—A Kadamba stone tablet, on a mound between the road and the village (a).

- 136. Madanabhânvi, 14 miles from Dhârwâd (lat. 15° 35', long. 74° 55'). Temples of Râmalingadeva in ruins, and of Kallapadeva, small. Inscriptions:—One in each temple.
- 137. Bhanvihâl, 3 miles east from Madanbhânvi near Garag. Old temple of Siddheśvara, built of black stone, with 22 square pillar. It has inam lands.

 *Inscription:—One.
- 138. Bokyâpur, 1 mile N.S.E. from Bhânvihâl. Temple of Vîrabhadradeva built of black stone. Inscription:—One.
- 139. Aminbhavi, 7 miles N.E. from Dharwad. Old Jaina basti of Neminatha to the north of the village is of very considerable size—above 40 yards in length, -with numerous pillars(a). Temple of Malikarjunadeva, of black stone, is mostly in ruins. Temple of Kalmesvaradeva. Both small.

Inscriptions :- Three, one in each temple ; also (4) near an old well on the south of the Dêsâyi's Wâdâ, Saka 488 and 1035 (b); (5) near the house of a barber, Saka 1469.

140. Kâurdapur, 7 miles W.N.W. of Dhârwâd, near Hubballi. A Lingâyat temple dedicated to Vîrabhatlra, Someśvara, and Siddhalinga, of black stone, with a central mandapa and three shrines on different sides of it. The roof is supported by 12 pillars.

141. Hebballi, 8 miles east by north from Dharwad and 5 miles from Byahatti (lat. 15°28', long. 75°12'). Temple of Sambhulinga to the south of the village in the Jaina style of architecture, about 57 feet long. Temple of Changalovadevi in ruins.

Inscription :- In the temple of Sambhulinga is an inscription dated Saka 1166, Krodhana Samvatsara, Bhadrapada Suddha 8th.

Dêvara Hubballi:—a Jakhanâchârya temple (a?).

10.-NAWALGUND TALUKA AND RAMADURG JAGHIB.

143. Belwatgi, 3 miles N.E. of Nawalgund. Ruinous temple of Ramalingadeva and inscriptions.

144. Annigêrî, 10 miles S.S.E. from Nawalgund (lat. 15° 25', long. 75° 29'). The celebrated temple of Amritésa is in the middle of the town, built of black stone, of considerable size, and the roof supported by about 76 pillars. walls are carved with mythological sculptures said to be of some interest. Nothing is known by the natives of its age: they ascribe it to Jakhanacharya (a).

There is a great festival in Margasirsha.

Inscriptions:-(1) In the Basti, Saka 993 (b); (2) near a well close to the south wall of the temple of Mailara, Saka 1019; (3) near the temple of Puradappa on the east of the village, Saka 1106; (4) in the temple of Amritesvara, Saka 1079; (5) in the temple of Amritesvara, Saka 1122 (c); (6) in the temple of Amritesvara, Saka 1124: this inscription is very long (b); (7) on a pillar in the door or gateway on the south of the temple of Amritesvara, Saka 1129 (b); (8) on the east of the same gateway of the same temple, Saka 1130; (9) on the west of the same gateway of the same temple, Saka 1111; this is rather a long inscription (b); (10) in the yard in front of the temple of Banada-Samkari, Saka 1108; (11) in front of the door of the temple of Banada-Samkari, Saka 1084 (b); (12) on the left hand in the gate of the temple of Hiri-Hanumanta, Saka 1079; (13) in front of the temple of Basappa on the south of the Hubli Gate, Saka 1094; (15) on a pillar in the temple of Gachchina-Basappa, Saka 1119; (16) on the south of the temple of Gachchina-Basappa near the Kotwal's Chavdi, Saka 1461 (b).

Behind this temple is a very large rock on which is an unfinished carving of a figure 25 feet long, and an inscription partially effaced; also a slab with a short inscription; (6) in the wall of a Jaina Basti, Saka, 824, see J. B. B. R. A. S., vol X, page 167 (a); (7) in the Jaina Basti, Saka 975 (b); (8) in the Hiri-Basti, Saka 1197; (9) on a pillar in the same Hiri-Basti, Saka.....; (10) in the wall of the house of Ganachârya, Saka 1092; (11) two (effaced) at the temple of Peti-Basappa, Saka 1129; (12) on a pillar in the Matha of Andanasvami, Saka 1146; (13) on another pillar in the same Matha, Saka 1146; (14) at the door of Kala Bhairava's temple is a stone with 71 lines of inscription, and another carved one, a huge Bhairava inside; (15) at the temple of Kumbesvara is a stone sunk in the earth and inscription on it; (16) in the court of the temple of Siddheśvar, to the left of the entrance on a narrow stone, rudely cut; (17) at the descent to a dry talúv is part of an eld, distinctly cut, inscription half-buried.

152. Sôraţûr, 2 miles E.N.E. from Sirhaţţi, and 6 miles E.S.E. from Mulgand.

Inscriptions:—(1) On the left of the god in the temple of Virabhadra, Śaka 873 (a); (2) in the Jaina Basti, Jaka 993 (b); (3) in the temple of Îśvara, Śaka 1013 (b); (4) at the temple of Malleśvara, Śaka 1029 (b).

153. Hosur, 4 miles E.N.E. from Mulgund. Temple of Kallavasavêśu is old, with sculptures on its walls. There are also three other old temples in the village rapidly falling into decay.

Inscriptions: -One, dated Saka 1129, Prabhava Samvatsara, records a grant by Yadava Ballala Narayanadeva. There are also others.

154. Yaliśirûr, 13 miles S. from Gadag and N. by W. from Sôratûr.

*Inscriptions:—(1) At the temple of Îśvara on the east of the village, Śaka 1031; (2) in the north wall of the temple of Îśvara, Śaka 1039; (3) at the temple of Îśvara, Śaka 1066; (4) near the temple of Hunumanta at the gate of the village, Saka 1037.

155. Kurtakoți, 6 miles north of Mulgund and 10 miles W. by S. from Gadag. Inscriptions:—(1) In front of the temple of Kerî-Basappa, Saka 1004; (2) in the temple of Virûpaksha, Saka 1009; (3) on the right of the temple of Samkaralinga, Saka 1054; (4) on the left of the temple of Samkaralinga on the bank of the tank, Saka 1060; (5) near the temple of Gavaresvara in front of the house of Râyanagauda, Saka 1166.

156. Någåmve, 5 miles S. by E. of Gadag.

Inscriptions:—(1) On a pillar in the temple of Mahåbaleśvara, Śaka 1129
(b); (2) on another pillar in the same temple, Śaka 1133 and 1136 (b); (3) on another pillar in the same temple, Śaka 1177 (a); (4) on another pillar in the same temple, Śaka...... (c).

157. Gadag or Gaddak, anciently Kratuka, 13 miles east of Anniger's and 6 miles W.N.W. of Lakkundi (lat. 15° 25', long. 75° 41'). Temple of Trikûteśvaradeva in the fort, ascribed to Jakhanacharya. The approach to the temple is of considerable length, with large square rooms on each side now used as dwellings. It is probably one of the oldest in the district, and is regarded by Mr. Fergusson as "one of the most complete illustrations of the Châlukya style of architecture." The sanctuary is star-shaped in plan, and the sikhara or spire "goes up with a straight outline to a terminal, which unfortunately has either never been completed or has since been destroyed. The only point in which this example differs from others of the style, is that the division into storeys is more distinctly marked than usual. This may arise from its being built among temples of the Dravidian style; but even these markings are so subdued as not to interfere with the general outline." And he adds, "from the style of the architecture we can have little hesitation in ascribing the building we now see to the end of the tenth century (978), when, in all probability, it was rebuilt rather than restored. The assertion that it is the most perfect in India, is equivalent to asserting that it is the oldest .deterioration and decline being the two steady concomitants of the style from the time we first meet it to the present day."

"It is not very large," says Colonel Meadows Taylor, "but the design is original, and the effect more harmonious and elegant, perhaps, than any other in the country: the gradual tapering of the Sanctum to a truncated top being managed in a peculiar but ingenious fashion by a beautifully arranged series of courses and gradations." It is at this temple that Vîra Ballâla "commemorated by an inscription the victory obtained by his general Bomma over Ballamadêva Yadava of Devagiri, capturing sixty elephants and destroying 'the ships of the southern country.' Another inscription on the temple records its restoration, in Saka 900 (A. D. 978), by a prince of the Châlukyas; but the Brahmans claim for it a far greater antiquity extending back into the silver age, the edifice having, as they allege, been originally constructed of precious metals."

"It is impossible to describe the exquisite finish of the pillars of the interior of this temple [the smaller temple of Sarasvati], which are of black hornblende or green-stone, nor to estimate how they were completed in their present condition without they were turned in a lathe; yet there can be little doubt that these pillars, which support the roof and body of the temple, were, in fact, set up originally as rough masses of rock and afterwards carved into their present forms. The only temple which is, perhaps, superior to this in internal decoration was erected at the small village of Ittagi in the territory of His Highness the Nizam," about 22 miles to the east, "and doubtless belonged to the same era of architecture. In this, as in the temple at Gadag, the carving on some of the pillars and of the lintels and architraves of the doors is quite beyond description. No chased work in silver or gold could possibly be finer, and the patterns to this day are copied by goldsmiths, who take casts and moulds from them, but fail in representing the sharpness and finish of the original. By what tools this very hard, tough stone could have been wrought and polished as it is, is not at all intelligible at the present day; nor indeed from whence the large clocks of green-stone rock were brought; and in popular estimation nothing short of the miraculous creation of these temples, of which there are many legends, suffices to account for them."1 The exterior of the building is covered with mythological sculptures.

(2.) The large temple of Vîranârâyana is in the middle of the town of Gadag. It is also of black hornblende,-probably not of great age, perhaps of the 13th or 14th century,-and is chiefly remarkable for a large and lofty gateway in the eastern wall of the courtyard, built in the style of Southern India. It is over 100 feet high (upper part of brick) and richly decorated, some curious carvings, supposed to be remains of some previous structure, having been built into it. (3.) The temple of Someśvara now used as a school has a very fine cast door; the base and what remains of the śikhara is also exceedingly rich. (4.) Temple

Inscriptions: -(1.) In the Kacheri are some copper-plate grants. (2.) At the temple of Trikûteśvara are nine inscriptions: (1) except in one or two places is in good preservation and consists of 50 lines; it is dated Saka 1135, Angirasa Samvatsara, under the Yadava Singhanadeva (b); (2) is of the Hoysala king Vîraballâla reigning at Lokkigundi now Lakkundi, and dated saka 1115. It is in 56 lines, extremely well preserved, and has been copied and translated by J. F. Fleet, Esq., C.S. (Ind. Ant., vol. II., pp. 298-ff) (b); (3) contains 32 lines, chipped in places, but fairly well preserved. It is a grant of the great chieftain Sabhana or Sobhana under Ahavamalladeva in Saka 984 (b); (4) consists of 45 lines, with many flaws in the tablet; it is dated in the 25th year of king Tribhuvanamalladeva, i.e., Saka 1023. These four inscriptions (and 3 others) stand up against the back wall of the temple (b); (5) was found by Mr. Fleet lying on the edge of a small tank outside the temple enclosure, and placed against the outer side of the north wall of the temple court. It consists of 57 lines, and records a grant in Saka 1121, the Siddharthi Samvatsara by the chieftain Râyadeva under the Hoysalaking Vîraballâladeva (b); (6) is half-buried in the back wall of a house adjoining the southern or back wall of the temple court; it is in tolerably good preservation, and belongs to the time of Sankamadeva of the Kalachuri family (Saka 1098 to 1104) (b); (7) against the back wall of the temple is in Nagari characters, but is broken about the 20th line. The top of another lies on the ground (b); (8) also in the same place, is of the time of Tribhuvanamalladeva (b). These inscriptions are worth removing, cleaning, and translating; (9) stands just inside the western gateway of the temple court. It consists of 14 lines, and is dated Saka 1461, in the reign of Achutyamaharaya (A.D. 1529-1542); (10) is a very short one, which perhaps has the name of the builder, on the outside of the Garbhagraha or shrine, in an angle; (11) leans against the western wall of the courtyard of the temple of Narayanadeva, and is a very long one of 72 or 73 lines each of about 63 letters, much worn away; (12) stands against the eastern wall; has Krishna and the Gopis at the top; and consists of 69 lines each of about 42 letters, partly worn in the centre; (13) on a stone built into the lower part of the compound wall behind the temple of Vîra Nârâyana, Śaka 959 (b); (14) on another stone in the same wall, higher up and further to the south, short, and partially effaced; (15) on the roof of a room in or at the same temple, Saka 1020 (b); (16) at the same temple, Saka 1461; (17) in the enclosure to the north of the same temple, Saka 1022 (c); (18) at the temple of Narasimha, on the south of the temple of Vîra-Nârâyana, Saka 1461; (19) at the small dharmasala east of the southern gateway behind the temple of Narasimha, on the bases of two pillars (some lines have been hewn out), Saka 1046; (20) four lines on a pilaster in the old gateway between the temple of Trikutesvara and the street; 2 (21) one in Devanagari lying on its face on the margin of the talav.

windows of somewhat peculiar design are represented in the Architecture of Dharwar and Mysore (Ph. 50 and 51). "Though designed to let in a subdued light," says Mr. Fergusson, "their real interest lies in the bassi-rilievi with which they are adorned." They seem to be representations from the Râmâyana and Mahâbhârata respectively, and analogous to the elaborate sculptures on each side of the base to the porch in the Kailâsa temple of Elurâ. "Whatever their story may be," to resume our quotation, "they are five examples of the mode in which the Hindu sculptors of the thirteenth century represented life in action: conventional, and, of course, not without many defects, but free from any great extravagance, and telling, with sufficient distinctness to those familiar with the myth, the tale they are intended to commemorate.

"The mode in which the bas-reliefs are separated from one another is very skilful—a dark line admitting light into the interior. But the way of breaking its monotony by medallions at intervals gives a sparkling effect to the whole in a manner singularly pleasing" (ib., p. 61).

Inscription:—Of the Kalachurya king Someśvara or Sôvideva, the 7th year of his reign, the Vijara Samvatsara, Saka 1095. (P. S. & O. C. Insc. No. 101.)

¹ For Nos. 1, 2, and 5 of these inscriptions see P. S. and O. C. Insc. Nos. 98 to 100.

The above details are partly drawn from an account by Mr. Fleet, Ind. Ant., vol. II, pp. 296-ff., and added to on the spot.

159. Baṭṭagēri, 2 miles N.E. from Gadag.

Inscription:—A Viragal on the land of Haṭagāra Mallarāya, Kilaka Samvatsara.

160. Sirûr, 4 miles S.E. from Gadag.

Inscriptions:—(1) Near the south gate of the temple of Toranagalla-Brahmadeva, Saka 962 (a); (2) on a pillar in the same temple, saka 964 (b); (3) at the gate called Kuruvagalagasi, Saka 970 (a); (4) in front of the door or gate of the temple of Maligi-Isvasar, Saka 1195 (c).

161. Hombal, 7 miles N.W. from Gadag.

Inscriptions:—(1) In the temple of Îśvara, Śaka 971 (b); (2) on the south of the well near the temple of Bhogeśalinga, Śaka 1037.

162. Huyilgol, 6 miles north from Gadag.

Inscriptions:—There are seven in the village: one in the temple of Râmalinga, one in that of Kalameśvara, four in that of Mâruti, and one near the Chauki.

 Lakkundi, 7 miles E.S.E. from Gadag (lat. 15° 23', long. 75° 47'). Lakkundi is noted not only for its beautiful temples, of which there are upwards of fifty of various degrees of size and beauty, but also for its wells such as that of Chabbir-bhânvi in the Jakhanâchârya or Hemadpanti style, and other architectural remains. The principal temples are those of (1) Viśvanath, a double temple-the smaller one facing the other, partially ruined, but exquisitely rich in carving, the north door, north side and back of the shrine and a sort of attached polygonal pillar between the shrine and mandapa on the outside are pretty entire, and the finest specimens of Hindu decorative work in India perhaps (a); (2) Malikarjuna; (3) Halagund Basavanna; (4) Sri Virûpaksha, now the principal village temple, plain and half ruined; (5) Lakshmî-Narayana, the spire only entire, but interesting; (6) Srîmânikesvar, at the Musukina bhânvi. has three shrines, of which only one is occupied; the upper parts of the building 'are destroyed; (7) Vîrabhadra,—with two doors in front, and sloping eaves; (8) Nannesvara has four pillars in the madhyaranga with square bases, neatly carved; in the mandapa are 16 pillars of four distinct patterns—one being formed of eight slender round shafts clubbed together (a); (9) Somesvara, a small, neat, deserted temple, west from the fort; (10) Nîlakanthesvara—in ruins,—the outer walls of the shrine sculptured; (11) Kumbhargiri-îśvara or Nadayadeva is now built all round; it has three shrines with carved doors, and four pillars with curiously sculptured bracket capitals; (12) Nagardevara has lost the spire and upper portions; it has been finished with great care and elaboration of detail, but not overloaded with ornament; inside the shrine is a curious image of a Naga, which appears to have been carved on the back of a Jina's throne (a); like almost all the others, however, it has Gaja Lakshmi on the door lintel; (13) a Jaina basti, of which the sikhara is entire, preserving round the top of the walls from where it rises, the old forms found at the "Seven Pagodas" and other buildings of the 8th century, and interesting on this account (a); (14) beside it is another of which the spire is destroyed. There are also many smaller temples. "These temples at Lakkundi," says Meadows Taylor. "suffered severely in the invasion of the Chola king about A. D. 1000, when those at Lakshmesvar, the Chalukya capital, were destroyed, but afterwards rebuilt; and the feuds between the Brahmans and Lingayats contributed to their injury."

"Our knowledge of the early Jaina architecture of the Dekkhan," Mr. Fergusson remarks, "is far too limited to enable us to pronounce a competent opinion as to the age of the temple in Lakkundi......The building also presents a curious mixture of the southern and northern styles of architecture, which may either arise from its being a very early example, when the Jaina architects were feeling their way in building in this country, or from its being a recent specimen, when the two styles were being amalgamated. From the style, as well as from what is known of history, I should feel inclined to place the building after the Chola incursion (A. D. 1000). My impression is that it belongs to the eleventh century.

"The doorway leading into the porch with its straight-lined cornices, and the windows in the Vimana, or tower, with its trefoil canopy and the Sikhara inside it, are clearly modern features, either just imported, or adhered to through long years of severance. These, however, are cunningly mixed with southern details in the upper part of the building.

"The sculpture and architectural details of this temple are of much more minute delicacy of finish than those of the temples of," Dambal and Chaudadampur, "but are neither so rich nor so freely drawn as in those of the temples of Halabid and Belûr. On the other hand, something may be owing to the temple having been originally erected by the Jainas for their own religion, and its style may consequently be imported, while those dedicated to Siva may be more indigenous. These, however, are questions which can only be settled on the spot by those who will take the trouble to learn all the variations through which the style passed during the time it was practised in that country."

All the temples here are being rapidly destroyed by trees on the roofs, and by the materials and sculptures being carried off for building purposes.

Inscriptions: - These are numerous: (1) one near Kanner Bhânvi, dated Saka 790, is used by dhobis to beat their clothes upon; (2) on the left of the god in the door of the Jaina Basti, Saka 1094; (3) one in a field belonging to Madivalaya Patri; (4) in the temple of Somesvara in the garden land of the Patriyavaru on the west of the fort, Saka 1040; (5, 6) a little to the south are two Jaina slabs, the inscriptions on which are nearly obliterated; (7) on the north of the same temple of Someśvara, Saka 1097 (b); (8) in the temple of Viśvanatha, dated Saka 790; (9) four lines on a beam in the madhyaranga of the temple of Nannesvara near Hire-Math, Saka 1108; (10) on the base of a pillar in the same—one line on three sides; (11) sunk in the earth, north of the same temple, a slab with an apparently legible inscription—(should be removed to a place of safety); (12) in field No. 13, Revenue Survey; (13-15) three in the temple of Malikarjuna; (16) near the temple of Hanuman in the bazar, -much defaced; (17) on a beam in the east part of the madhyaranga in the temple of Chandramaulesvara in the fort, Saka 1106; (18, 19) on two more beams in the same place, Saka 1106; (20) lying under a tamarind tree on the north of the Fort, Saka 1038; (21) in the temple of Nagardeva in the village, Saka 1042; (22) under a neem tree on the spot on which a potter attending on the god Manikesvara lived, Saka 1045 (c); (23) on a beam in the madhyarangs of the temple of Saka 1096; (24) at the temple of Manikesvara near the well called Musukinabhanvi near some garden land outside the village, 21 lines on the bases of two pillars in the porch, Saka 1163; (25) on a stone called Samadhikallu at Kāśi-Viśvanātha, oaka 1120; (26, 27) two large slabs built into the left wall in the temple of Vîrabhadra; (28) built, face downwards into a wall facing the well in the fort; (29) on the porch of the same well; (30) near the temple of Îśvara in the fort; (31) near the Vrindâvana of Amanna Pautra Govindappa; (32) one in the temple of Gaņeśa near the school-house; (33) to the east of the fort under a tamarind tree in Rev. Sur. No. 275; (34) two lines on a stone outside the temple of Vîrabhadra; (35) at the door of the temple of Gokarneśvara—partly peeled off.

164. Doni, 7 miles south of Lakkundi and 3½ miles west from Dambal. Inscriptions.—

165. Dambal, 13 miles S.E. from Gadag and 16 south-west from Ittagi (lat. 15°18', long. 75°50'). Temples of Someśvara and Dodda Basappa are outside the town, and both much injured. The latter "has the merit," Mr. Fergusson notes, "of presenting us with the form of one of the vimânas of the style in a very complete state of preservation. It never, however, was entirely finished, all the smaller string courses of the roof being still left in block, though the effect of this is as sparkling as if they had been finished to the extent originally intended. Assuming it to be finished it would not be easy to point to a more graceful form of roof for the cella of a temple...... At first sight it may, of course, appear somewhat strange and outre, but with a little familiarity its form gains rapidly on the judgment of the architectural critic." (a) Totadasvâmi Math is a large modern building of black stone, outside the town, on the Gadag Mundargi road. Over the tomb of Totadasvâmi is a stone lotos, a specimen of good workmanship of its kind. The pillars are hewn in imitation of the turned ones of older times, and the door is carved with a pattern in very low relief. A door into a side cloister was brought from Lakkundi about 10 years ago and inserted here, the Lakshmî being hewn into a linga and the elephants left! The head of the math is Andanisvâmi, and under it are maths in most of the villages near Dambal, all possessed of lands.

Inscriptions:—(1) At the temple of Dodda Basavanna outside the village is an inscription of Someśvara Tribhuvanamalla dated Saka 1106, Kródhi Samvatsara (P. S. and O. C. Insc. No. 102); (2) on the left of the small Basti in the fort, in excellent preservation, 45½ lines, Śaka 1017 (a); (3) two on the pillars at the entrance of the temple of Kâleśvara; (4) a fine one has been built into the wall of the well close by and nearly buried.

166. Alawandi, 8 miles E. by N. from Mundargi.

Inscriptions:—(1) On the right of the image in the temple of Îśvara, dated Saka 960 (b); (2) on the same position, Saka 1124 (b); (3) near the $H\hat{u}de$ belonging to Venkanagunda, Saka 983 (b).

Ittige: the temple referred to above (No. 157) (a), with an inscription in the temple of Mâdêsa Ninga in the fort, dated Saka 1034.

Kukkanûr, 4 miles N. by E. from Ittige (a).

Inscriptions:—(1) In the temple of Nava-Siddha, within the western wall of the enclosure of the temple of Mahammayi, Saka 92—(third numeral obliterated) (a); (2) in the same temple of Nava-Siddha; this is a much longer inscription than No. 1; bottom of stone containing the date is said to be broken away (b); (3) in the temple of Mahammayi, Saka 1071 (b); (4) on the left of the god in the temple of Mahammayi, Saka 1100 (b); (5) on the right hand, outside the gate of the temple of Mahammayi, Saka 1078 (b); (6) on the right hand of the god in the temple of Kalleśvara on the west of the village, Saka 1049 (b); (7) on the left of the god in the temple of Mallikarjuna, Saka 1085 (b); (8) on the right of the god in the same temple, Saka 1092 (b).

167. Kotawummachigi, 15 miles N.E. from Gadag (lat. 15°32', long. 75°50').

1034; (2) in the same temple, Saka 1064.

168. Âlûr, 14 miles S. E. from Gadag.

Inscriptions:—(1) At the temple of Îsvara în which a potter lives, Saka 932

(a); (2) at the same temple of Îsvara, Saka 1044. This is much longer than No. 1; (3) on the right of the god in the temple of Vîrabhadra, Saka 1013 and 1043 (a) (see Indian Antiquary, vol. VIII., page 21); (4) on the right hand in entering the door of the fort, Saka 989.

169. Asundi, 3 miles W. by S. from Gadag.

Inscriptions:—(1) At the temple of Bommappa, outside the village, Saka
949 (b); (2) at the temple of Hanumanta, outside the village, Saka 975 (b).

170. Balaganur, 14 miles N. from Gadag.

Inscription:—Behind the wall of the temple of Vîrabhadra, Saka 1014.

171. Baradûr, 2 miles S.E. from Gadag.
Inscription:—In the temple of Bharatesvara, Saka 954 (b).

172. Gâvarawâd, 12 miles N. from Gadag.

Inscription:—In front of the temple of Nârâyana on the south of the village gateway, Śaka 994 (b).

173. Mêwnndi, 18 miles S. E. from Gadag.

Inscription:—On the right of the image in the door of the temple of Venkataramana, Saka 1188 (b).

174. Kakod, on the Tungabhadra, 1½ miles from Hesarûr.

12.-RON TALUKA.

175. Abbigeri, 3 miles north from Umachigi, and 7 miles south from Bon. Temples of Isvaradeva and Jotalingadeva, of black stone.

Inscriptions :- One in each of the temples.

176. Narêgal, 4 miles east from Abbigeri (lat. 15° 34', long. 75° 52'). The temples of Tripurântakeśvara, Someśvaradeva, Kalmeśvaradeva, and Chandramalleśvaradeva, are all built of black stone (a?), but the last is a ruin. In the hamlet of Kadikop is also a temple of Molle Brahmadeva of black stone.

Inscriptions:—(1) Built into the wall of the portice of the temple of Kalameśvaradeva is an inscription in 58 lines of Permadideva I. of the Sindavanéa family subordinate to Vikramaditya V. (A.D. 1076-1127), but commemorating a grant of Saka 872 (A.D. 950) J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. X., pp. 224) (b); (2) another inscription in 47½ lines, built into the wall inside the temple of Tripurantakadeva; it belongs to the same chief under king Jagadekamalla-deva II. (a.D. 1138-1150) and also commemorates a grant made in Saka 872 (ibid, pp. 239) (b); (3) in front of the temple of Hanumanta to the west of the fort, Saka 966 (b); (4) near a well with a flight of steps, Saka 1022 (b); (5) lying on a dunghill in the yard of the Tadâlavaru, Saka 1026 (b); (6) a Viragal near the preceding, Saka 1119 (c); (7) a broken Viragal near the village gateway, Saka 1212 (c).

177. Jakali, 3 miles N.N.W. from Narêgal. Temple of Kalameśvara of black stone, and temple of Siddeśvaradeva, in ruins.

Inscriptions :- One in each temple.

178. Nidagundi, 6 miles N.N.E. from Narêgal, and 9 miles E.S.E. from Ron. Temples of Râmalingadeva, Dasameśvaradeva, Kalmathadeva, and Nârâyanadeva, of black stone, but small sized (a?).

Inscriptions :- One in the temple of Dasamesvara; another in that of Kal-matha dated Saka 1096; and a third in that of Narayana.

179. Rop, 20 miles N.N.E. from Gadag (lat. 15° 41½', long. 75° 48'). Some seven small temples of black stone. Details wanting.

the Gireddi, dated Saka 1102 (b).

180. Savadi, 5 miles S.W. from Ron. The temple of Brahmadeva is a large one built of stone, said to have been brought from Bâdâmi. The roof is supported by numerous carved pillars, and there are sculptures on the outer walls (a).

Inscriptions :- One in the temple of Brahmadeva and another in that of Narayanadeva.

181. Kodikop, 1 mile W. of Narêgal.

Inscriptions:—(1) Built into the wall on the right of the door of the temple of Molle Brahmadeva at Kodikoppa, of which 29 lines are legible and the rest effaced; it is of the time of Achugideva II., the father of Permadideva I., who was subordinate to king Vikramadeva V., and records a grant made in the 45th year of that king's reign, Saka 1044 (No. 3 of Mr. Fleet's Sinda inscriptions in J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. X.) (b); (2) another on the left of the same door, in 37 lines, of Permadideva I., made in the 7th year of king Jagadekamalladeva II., Saka 1066 (No. 4 of ditto, ibid, pp. 247-258) (b).

182. Sådi, 9 miles E. by N. from Ron.

Inscriptions:—(1) On the left of the god in the temple of the two spires or kalasas (Jódu kalasada gudi), Saka 932; this is very short but important (a); (2) again on the left of the god in the same temple, Saka 1052; (3) on the right of the god in the same temple; this is a long inscription, Saka 981 (b); (4) in front of the temple of Mallikârjuna, about Saka 990; (5) in a field outside the village, Saka 991 (b); (7) again in a field outside the village, Saka 1006 (b); (8) in the temple of Basavanna in the village, Saka 1006 (b); (9) in the cowshed of Sankanûr-Akkivaravva in the fort, Saka 1102 (b).

III.-BELGAUM ZILLA.

1.—TALUKA BELGAUM.

1. Belgaum (15° 51'; 74° 35'). The fort to the east of the town is said to have been built in A. D. 1519. In it are Asad Khân's dargah or Masjid Safâ, no longer used; and two Jaina temples of the 12th or 13th century, described in the first Archaelogical Report.

Inscriptions:—One, in Persian, in a recess to the north of the main gate, is dated a. H. 937 (A. D. 1530); another is over the entrance of the Masjid Safa—"in the time of Adil Ayam...who utterly uprooted the unbelievers from the country of the Dekhan;" an inscription in the south-east part of the fort relates to the rebuilding of a portion of the wall in A. H. 1043 (A.D. 1633-34); a fourth (of A. D. 1648) is built into the front wall of the library, which was formerly the Killedar's house; and a fifth, much effaced, is on the right side of the west gate. (See First Archwological Survey Report.) Also there were formerly, somewhere in the fort, two Ratta tablets dated Saka 1126 or 1127, but they have been removed from Belgaum, and it is not known where they are now (Elliot, MS. Coll. vol. II., pp. 571 and 576; Jour. Bom. B. R. A. S., vol. X., p. 184).

- 2. Sundi, 9 miles W.N.W. from Belgaum; hill-fort of Mahîpatgadh.
- 3. Kalivde, 17 miles W. from Belgaum; hill-fort of Kalânidhigadh.
- 4. Koraj, 19 miles W.N.W. from Belgaum; hill-fort of Gandharvagadh.
- 5. Pårgad, a hill-fort 32 miles W. by S. from Belgaum.
- Chandgadh, 22 miles W. from Belgaum (15° 56'; 74° 15'). A temple of Rewalnatha, about 100 feet long by 38 wide.

Inscription : - A Persian one.

2.—Sampgaum Taluka.

- 7. Sampgaum, 18 miles E.S.E. from Belgaum (15°47'; 74°50'). A small but beautiful mosque. (See First Archaelogical Report.)
- 8. Belavadi, 12 miles S.E. from Sampgaum (15° 43′; 74° 59′). A very old temple of Vîrabhadradêva, in what is locally known as the Jakhanâchârya style; restored in the time of Kittûr Dêsâî.

Inscription: —A fragment of a Western Châlukya one, dated Śaka 992.

9. Nêsargi, 7 miles N. from Sampgaum: A fine old Saiva temple of Basava, partly in ruins.

tavîrya IV. (Jour. B. B. R. A. S., vol. X., pp. 175, 240).

- 10. Wakkund, 10 miles S.E. from Sampgaum: A large and fine old (Jaina) temple of Muktêśvara, with a spacious pradakshina and fine carvings and ornamentation (a). Also smaller temples of Mallikârjuna and Rênukâ or Yellammâ, old and in ruins.
- 11. Sivanûr, 2 miles E. from Kittûr. A very old temple and monumental stones.

Compiled from return No. 2404 of 25th October 1879, and No. 2481 of 6th September 1880 the item of inscriptions has been supplied by Mr. J. F. Fleet, C.S.

12. Dêgâmve, 3 miles S.W. from Kittûr. A small but very old temple, elaborately ornamented (a). Close to it is Dêgalavalli which has another interesting temple.

Inscriptions:—Four Kadamba inscriptions: two of them dated Kaliyuga 4275 (A.D. 1174; Jour. B. B. R. A. S., vol. IX., pp. 262, 266, 289, 294, 310).

13. Degulawalli, 1 mile N.W. from Dêgâmve: An old temple of Îśvara, probably originally Jaina, partly ruined.

Inscription: - In Canarese or Telugu of about the 15th century.

14. Kittûr, 14 miles S. from Sampgaum (15° 36'; 74° 51'). A small temple, not very old.

Inscription: - A Kadamba grant, dated Kaliyuga 4289 (J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. IX., pp. 263, 304).

15. Bailûr, 4 miles S.W. from Kittûr.

Inscription:—A Kadamba grant, dated Kaliyuga 4282 (idem, p. 263).

16. Bail Hongal, 6 miles E. from Sampgaum. An old Saiva temple partly ruined.

Inscriptions:—Two of the Ratta chieftains, one dated Saka 1086 (Ind. Ant., vol. IV, p. 116, and Archwological Report for 1874).

17. Kådarôli on the Malaprabhå, 6 miles S. from Sampgaum. An old plain temple of Samkaradêva in the bed of the river (Arch. Rep., 1874, p. 9).

Inscriptions:—A Western Châlukya inscription of the time of Somêśvaradêva II., Saka 997 (Arch. Rep., 1874, and Ind. Ant., vol. I., p. 141). A large fragment of another, but undecipherable one, lies uncared for in the village.

18. Haṇṇkêri, 4 miles N.W. from Sampgaum: An old plain Jaina temple, now known as the Śivâlaya and also as the temple of Brahmadêva.

Inscription:— A Ratta tablet dated Śaka 1130 and 1178.

3.—BIDI TALUKA.

- 19. Talwarkop on the Malaprabha, 4 miles W. of Kadaroli and 3 miles S.W. of Hubli. A small but very old temple of Samkaralingadêva in the bed of the river, ascribed to Jakhanacharya.
- 20. Nandigad, 20 miles S. from Belgaum (15° 33'; 74° 36'). 1½ miles of the town on a hill called Samsergad is an old plain temple of west Taţêśvara, ascribed to Jakhanâchârya. An old and typical Jaina temple in the jungle (a).
- 21. Asôgê, 7 miles W.N.W. from Nandigad. A small plain old temple of Râmalingadêva, with many monumental, satî, and nâga stones (a).
- 22. Golihalli, I mile S. from Bîdi: A small plain ruinous old Jakhanâchârya temple of Râmalingadêva; also similar temples of Siddhalingadêva and Kalmêśvara.

Inscriptions:—Two Kadamba grants, one dated Saka 1082 (J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. IX, pp. 263, 296), and the other Kaliyuga 4283.

23. Halsi, or Halasige, 23 miles S. from Belgaum (15° 32'; 74° 40'). A Vaishņava temple of Varāha-Narasimha, about 90 feet long by 54 wide, ascribed to Jakhanacharya. Another good-sized temple of Suvarnésvara, out of repair. On a hill about 2 miles west from Halsi is a temple of Râmêsvara and a sacred pool (Bom. Sel. CXV., p. 2).

Inscriptions:—Two Kadamba inscriptions, dated Kaliyuga 4270 and 4272, (J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. IX., pp. 262, 278; see also P.S. & O.C. Insc., Nos. 2 and 5 to 10).

- 24. Kuṇakumbi, 19 miles W. by N. from Khânâpur: A temple of Mâhuli-dêvî, about 97 feet by 54; a somewhat modern shrine, but of considerable sanctity as being at the source of the Malaprabhâ.
- 25. Chôrlê, 24 miles W. by N. from Khânâpur. A small temple of Râ-mêśvara.

4. - CHIKODI TALUKA.

- 26. Nipani, 38 miles N. from Belgaum (16° 24′; 74° 26′). Fort built about the year 1210 Fasli.
- 27. Kharôśi, 6 miles S. from Chikôḍi : $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles north of the village is the old temple of Ghatagi Basavêśvara.

Inscription :—On an arch.

- 28. Nipnal, 24 miles S.E. from Chikôdi. On a small hill to the west of the village is an old Vaishnava temple, of moderate dimensions, dedicated to Srî Gôvindarâja.
- 29. Kabûr, 12 miles S.E. of Chikôḍi (16° 20'; 74° 47'). A very old temple of Îśvaradeva, about 120 feet long by 48 wide.

Inscriptions:—There is one, said to be illegible.

30. Yedûr, an inâm village on the Krishnâ, 3 miles S.W. from Khêdrapur (see Kolhâpur). A temple of Vîrabhadra, about 145 feet square. It is a modern temple on an old foundation (Bom. Sel. CXV., p. 69).

Inscriptions: - Two dated, respectively, Saka 1752 and 1758.

- 31. Hukeri, 25 miles N. from Belgaum (16° 13'; 74° 40'). Three old dargahs, the largest said to have been built about A.D. 1509, the second between 1547 and 1568, and the smallest about 1515. They are plain buildings of the sort, and now used as rest-houses (Bom. Sel. CXV. ii., pp. 23, 39, 41, 50).
- 32. Sankêśvara, 8 miles N.W. from Hukêri. On the banks of the Hiran-yakêśî is an old temple of Samkaralinga, about 82 feet by 48, built in 'the Jakhanacharya style.'

Inscriptions: - There are three, but they are said to be illegible.

5.—ATHNI TALUKA.

- 33. Athnî, 45 miles W. from Bijâpur (16° 44′; 75° 8′). Temples of Amritêśvara and Siddhêśvara,—plain buildings,—and a mosque, all in one enclosure.
- 34. Kôkatnûr, 10 miles E.S.E. from Athnî (16° 42'; 75° 17'). An old plain Jaina temple.
 - 35. Nandagaum, 6 miles S.E. from Athnt. A fine old temple in ruins.
- 36. Bâdgî, 13 miles E. from Athņî. An old Jaina temple, not used and out of repair.
- 37. Kāgwāḍ, 22 miles W. from Athņî (16° 41'; 74° 47'). A rock excavation and a Jaina temple: a fine image in a cellar (Bom. Sel. CXV, p. 8): information wanted.

38. Śêḍbâl, 2½ miles east of Kâgwâḍ. Temples of Viśveśvara and Kalomeśvara.

Inscription: - A Silahara inscription, dated Saka 1078, not published (a).

- 39. Jugal, 5 miles S. of Kagwad, and opposite Khedrapur (see Kolbapur). Temple of Masabati.
- 40. Kanmadi, 26 miles N.E. from Athņi: Temples of Mallikarjuna and Harideva, the latter said to be worth photographing (a).
- 41. Balgêri, 11 miles N. by W. from Athni: Temple of Basavêśvara, built of black stone, out of repair.
- 42. Mangsûli, 15 miles W. of Athņî (16° 44'; 74° 54'). A temple of Martanda.

- 44. Râmatîrtha, 20 miles N.E. from Athņi. A temple of Râmêśvara, built of black stone, said to be worth photographing (a).
- 45. Kudchî, 20 miles S.W. from Athnî. Two mosques or dargahs on the banks of the Krisbna, built of black stone.
- 46. Saptasågara, 10 miles S.W. from Athņî, (16° 38'; 75° 1'). A temple of Kāśilinga, built of black stone.
- 47. Surpāli, 17 miles S.E. from Athņî. An old Vaishņava temple of Narasimha.

6. - GOKAK TALUKA.

48. Gôkâk, 30 miles N.E. from Belgaum (16° 10'; 74° 53'). Two mosques and a Ganjkhâua—plain Muhammadan buildings.

49. Konnûr, 5 miles up the river from Gôkâk. A mile from the village is a group of old temples on each side the falls (see Arch. Rep., 1874, p. 6). Near the village are three groups of dolmens, and in the village is a ruined but very pretty old temple, of perhaps the 11th century.

Inscriptions:—(1) An inscription, much effaced, is in the temple of Mahalingésvara, at the falls. It is a Ratta inscription of about Saka 1075 (Arch. Rep., vol. III, p. 103). (2) In the outskirts of the village is an inscription on a carved stone in a ruinous temple. (3) In a Jaina temple in the village is another Ratta inscription dated Saka 1009 and 1043 (J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. X, pp. 179, 287; P. S. and O. C. Ins., No. 93).

50. Kalhôli, 7 miles N.N.E. from Gôkâk (16° 17'; 74° 56'). An old Jaina bastî with mouldings.

Inscription:—A Ratta one, dated Saka 1127 (J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. X, pp. 173, 220; P. S. and O. C. Ins., No. 95).

51. Ankalgi, 13 miles S.W. from Gökük. A matha or monastery of Adavyappa Svāmi and a temple of Lakshmidevi.

7.—PARASGAD TALUKA.

52. Saundatti, 40 miles E. from Belgaum (15° 46'; 75° 11'). Temples of Ankuśêśvara, Purandêśvara, and Śamkaralingadêva; also a Jaina temple; all plain and noways remarkable (see Arch. Rep., 1874).

Inscriptions: -(1) A Ratta inscription at the temple of Ankuśćśvara, dated Saka 971 and 1010 (J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. X., pp. 172, 173); (2) another Ratta tablet, a fragment in the same temple, dated Saka 970; (3) at the left side of the Jaina temple, of the Rashtrakuta king Krishna and his Ratta feudatory Prithvîrama, Saka 797; also the West Châlukya king Vikramâditya Tribhuvanamalla and his feudatory the Ratta great chieftain Kartavirya II. in the Dhatu Samvatsara, Saka 1018 (published J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. X., pp. 170, 194; P. S. and O. C. Ins. No. 88); (4) an inscription of the Ratta great chieftain Lakshmideva II., Saka 1151. This stood in a street in the market, and has been placed for the sake of security against the outside wall of the Mamlatdar's Kachêri (Arch. Rep., vol. II., pl. lxxiii, p. 223, and vol. III., p. 107; P.S. and O.O. Ins. No. 89; J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. X., pp. 176, 260). (5.) Another Ratta inscription, now also in the Kacheri, was found by Mr. J. F. Fleet, C.S., half-buried in the courtyard of the Jaina temple; it gives the genealogy of the family down to Kartavirya II., the feudatory of Somesvaradeva II.; the date and details of the grant are broken away (Arch. Rep., vol. III., p. 114; and J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. X., p. 223). (6.) There is another Ratta inscription at the Jaina temple, dated Saka 902 (J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. X).

53. Ugargol, 3 miles E.S.E. from Saundatti. Large temple of Ellamma, in a quadrangular enclosure (Arch. Rep., 1874, p. 12).

Inscription:—A Vijayanagar inscription of Krishnaraya (Saka 1430-1451), dated Saka 1436 (Arch. Rep., vol. III, p. 115).

54. Huli, 5 miles E. of Saundatti. A fine old temple of Pańchalingadeva and several others, beautifully carved but in ruins, outside the village (Arch.

Rep., 1874).

Inscriptions:—On two pillars in the temple of Panchalingadeva are short ones. Among the rained temples are at least two others. One of them(?) is of Vikramaditya Tribhuvanamalla and the Kadamba chief Kama, dated Saka 1011 (P. S. and O. C. Ins., No. 90). Others dated Saka 1067 to 1449 have not been published.

55. Munôli, 6 miles N. of Saundatti. A fine group of temples' in a court (Arch. Rep., 1874, p. 14).

Inscriptions:—(1) Against the wall of the temple of Panchalingadeva is an inscription of the Yadava king Singhana of Dêvagiri, Saka 1145 (Arch. Rep., vol. II, pl. lxxiv, and p. 233; vol. III, p. 116; and J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. XII. pp. 2, 11). (2) In the fort, at the temple of Udachavva, another Yadava inscription of Kandhara or Krishna dated Saka 1174.

- 56. Sogal, 15 miles N. W. from Saundatti: Temple of Sômêśvara.

 Inscription:—One at the water-fall; a Raṭṭa inscription dated Saka 902.
- 57. Murgôd, 15 miles N. W. from Saundatti. A temple of Mallikarjuna. Inscription:—Vijayanagara of Sadaśivadévaraya.
- Badli, 5 miles N. W. from Sanndatti. A temple of Nåråyanadêva. Inscription:—A fragment of a Ratta tablet, dated Saka 1168.
- 59.?. An old temple of Banaśamkarî and Vîrabhadra, half buried underground.

Inscription:—At the temple of Banasamkari a Western Châlukya inscription dated Saka 1015.

IV.—KALÂDGI ZILLA.1

1.—BADAMI TALUKA.

 Bådåmi, 24 miles S.S.E. from Kalådgi (15° 55'; 75° 45'). Three Brahmanical caves of the 6th century, and a Jaina one, with much sculpture and some fragments of painting, in good preservation. Also many old temples, a dargah, mosques, &c. (see Arch. Sur. Report, 1874, and Cave Temples, 1880).

Inscriptions:—(1) One in the largest cave, No. 3, of Saka 500; (2) three in Canarese on pillars in cave 3, one dated Saka 1446; (3) an old Canarese one of soon after Saka 500 outside the cave, and some names of the 6th or 7th century; (4) an inscription of the time of Sadasivaraya of Vijayanagara (Saka 1465) on the porch of a temple to the north of the town. (See First Arch. Rep., pp. 22-27, and Third, pp. 119-121; P. S. and O. C. Ins. No. 38 to 49; and Ind. Ant.).

Nandikeśvara, 4 miles E. from Bâdâmi. Temple of Mahâkuteśvara among the hills in a quadrangular courtyard, in which are also several smaller Inscriptions: —A large stone pillar lying in front of the temple is inscribed on all four sides in old Canarese characters: others in the porch, and one inside dated Saka 856 (P. S. and O. C. Ins. Nos. 50, 51, 52).

3. Banasamkari, 3 miles S. E. of Bådâmi. An old temple and other remains (Arch. of Dhar. and Mys., No. 88 and p. 72).

Inscription :- A Vijayanagar inscription of Achyutaraya, dated Saka 1455

(Ind. Ant., vol. V., p. 19); and others.

4. Pattadakal, 9 miles E. from Bådâmi (15° 57'; 75° 52'). Several old temples, both Brahmanical and Jaina, dating from the 7th or 8th century (Rep., Arch. Sur., 1874).

Several of the temples at Pattadakal "are very pure examples of the Dravidian style of architecture: they are all square pyramids divided into distinct storeys, and each storey ornamented with cells alternately oblong and square. Their style of ornamentation is also very much coarser than that of the Châlukya style, and differs very much in character. The domical termination of the spires is also different, and much less graceful, and the overhanging cornices of double curvature are much more prominent and important."

These Dravidian temples "are wanting in all that elegance of form and detail which is so characteristic of the Châlukya style, but are not without a purpose-like boldness of form expressive of stability and a certain amount of grandeur; though this is, of course, more easily observed in the larger examples in the south of India than it is in those at Pattadakal. If, on the other hand, we compare it with the more modern temples, such as those at Hampi and Maisur, it will be seen how much the form lost by the gradually growing steepness of outline and attenuation of details. The modern forms are not without a certain degree of elegance which is wanting in the more ancient; but in all the higher characteristics of design, the older are by far the finest examples."

Besides these the village of Pattadakal possesses a group of temples, "not remarkable for their size or architectural beauty, but interesting because they exhibit the two principal styles of Indian architecture in absolute juxta-position" (Arch. of Dhar. and Mys, pp. 63, 64). The temple of Pâpnâtha is of the northern style, and is probably rather older than that of Virûpâksha, which dates from the early part of the 8th century.

Inscriptions: —Seventeen have been collected here, and there are probably more (P. S. and O. C. Ins. Nos. 53 to 69; First Arch. Rep., pls. xli to xliv; Second, p. 241; Third, pp. 121-127; Ind. Ant., vol. V., p. 174, &c.).

5. Bêlur, 7 miles S.S.E. from Bâdâmi (15° 51'; 75° 49'). Temple of Nârâ-yaṇa in the fort.

Inscription :- Of Jayasimha Jagadêkamalla and his elder sister Akkâdevi, Saka 944, 5 ft. 11 in. by 1 ft. 91 in. (P. S. and O. C. Ins. No. 70).

6. Tolachgud, 4 miles S. E. from Bådåmi (15° 53'; 75° 48'). Temple of Bana-Samkaridevi.

Inscription: -Of Achyutarâya of Vijyanagara, Saka 1455 (P. S. and O. C.

Ins. No. 72).

7. Kattageri, 11 miles N. from Bâdâmi (16° 5'; 75° 43').

Inscription:—Of the 21st year of Vikramâditya Tribhuvanamalla (Saka 1018), on a stone at the top of the steps at the N. end of a small tank under the wall of the fort, I ft. 6½ in. by 1 ft. 4 in. (P. S. and O. C. Ins. No. 71; Ind. Ant., vol. VI., p. 137).

2.—HUNAGUND TALUKA.

8. Aiholê, 15 miles E. S. E. from Bâdâmi (16° 50'; 75° 57'). Near the village is a Brahmanical cave called Râvanphadi, and to the east is a Jaina one known as Menâbasti. On the hill above this cave are many dolmens; also, nearer the other cave the ruins of an old temple called Megutî, of the 7th century. In the village is an old Vaishnava temple remarkable as "the only known example of its class as a structural building, though there are numerous instances at Kârlê, Elurâ, Ajantâ, and elsewhere of similar edifices. These, however, are all cut in the rock, and, consequently, have no exterior except the façades. It has always, therefore, been a great problem to know how the structural prototypes of these rock-cut temples were formed, and what their interior arrangements may have been. The example at Aiholê does not answer all these problems, but it goes nearer to it than any other we know" (Arch. of Dhar. and Mys., p. 67). It has been described in the First Arch. Sur. Report.

At a short distance to the south-west of the village is a temple, small but highly interesting on account of the quaint and elaborate sculptures with which it is decorated. It is now disused, and is partly in ruins, the whole of the roof having been removed. It is of about the same age as the Durga temple. It appears to have been also originally a Vaishnava temple, as there are figures of Garuḍa over the doors both of the mandapa and of the shrine, and a figure of Lakshmî, with her elephants, over the entrance. But there is also a figure of Siva dancing on the roof, with Parvati holding a child.

Further to the south-west of the village, on the right bank of the river, is a large group of ruined and disused temples. The largest and most interesting of them is the temple of the god Galiganatha. On the front or east side of the courtyard is a handsomely sculptured gateway, still nearly entire, but only ten or twelve feet high. It is the only gateway of the kind in this part of the country (a).

In the same group of temples with that of Galiganatha, and rather closer to the river, there is a temple of the god Narayana. It contains three separate shrines, all leading out of the central hall.

Inscriptions:—The Meguti temple inscription is of Pulikési II., Saka 556, and one of the most interesting in the Canarese country (see Ind. Ant., vol. V., p. 67, and vol. VIII., Third Arch. Rep., p. 129). One on the temple of Galiganatha is of the Râshtrakûṭa king Kannara, Saka 831; and another is of Vikramāditya Tribhuvanamalla. There are at least nine others. (See P. S. and O. C. Ins. Nos. 73—84; Ind. Ant., vol. V., p. 175, and vol. IX.; Third Arch. Rep., pp. 127—138.)

9. Hunagund, 12 miles E. from Aiholê (16° 4'; 76° 7'). On a hill to the north are the ruins of a large Jaina temple. In the fort is a temple of Råmalinga.

*Inscriptions:—There are inscriptions on two slabs on the roof of the verandah of Råmalinga.

- 10. Någur, 5 miles S. W. from Hunagund. An inscription about $4\frac{1}{2}$ feet long.
- 11. Kelur, 3 miles S. of Aiholë. On the south of the village on a hill are five old Saiva temples. About $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles to the W. of Kelur is a kol or glen, in which is a temple of Siddheśvara with a rock excavation to the north and another to the south of it.
- 12. Arsibidi, 8 miles S. of Aiholê (15° 54′; 76° 0′) a ruined village. Several ancient Saiva temples (a).
 Inscriptions:—Many inscriptions are found here and in the neighbourhood.

13. Karadi, 9 miles E. of Hunagund. Temple of Basaveśvara on the north of the village, a small old temple, the roof supported by many pillars.

Inscription:—About & a mile from this village is an old temple of Mahadeva, with a dated inscription in the Rudra Samvatsara. Another defaced inscription is near the gate of Karadi.

14. Sangam, 10 miles N. of Hunagund at the junction of the Malaprabhå and Krishnå. About 1 mile N. E. from the village is the temple of Sangameśvara, about 75 feet by 40, surrounded by a large courtyard, in which are several houses and dharmaśâlàs. It is old and attributed to Jakhanâchârya, and is regarded as of great sanctity. In the bed of the river Malaprabhå is a cave, the fabled abode of the Rishis, the mouth of which is stopped by a large stone.

Inscriptions: - In the temple of Sangamesvara are two inscriptions.

 Amîngad, 7 miles W. of Hunagund. About a mile to the E. of it is Rakhasgi, where is a temple of Kalleśvara ascribed to Jakhanâchârya.

 Nandwâdige, 13 miles E. from Hunagund (16° 2′; 76° 20′). Temple of Mûkâdevî.

Inscription: —Of the Rashtrakûtas, dated Saka 722, over the door of the shrine (P. S. and O. C. Ins. No. 85).

3.—BAGALKOT TALUKA.

17. Bhairanmatti, 3 miles S. W. from Bewûr (16° 11'; 75° 55').

Inscription:—Of king Tailapa Âhavamalla, Saka 911; and of the Sinda chieftains Sêvya and Nâgâditya; also of king Jayasimha Jagadêkamalla, Saka 955, 7 ft. 11½ in. by 2 ft. 0½ in. (P. S. and O. C. Ins. No. 86).

18. Bewûr, 12 miles E. from Bågalkot (16° 12′; 75° 57′). Three old temples ascribed to Jakhanacharya, dedicated to Ramêśvara, Narayanadeva, and Kalika-bhavani; the first is of moderate size and decorated with sculpture.

Inscription:—There is an inscription in Canarese characters to the west of the village.

Bågalket, on the Ghataprabhå (16° 17′; 75° 46′).

Inscription in Devanagari about 1 miles from Bagalkot on the left side of a temple of Maruti.

20. Turchigiri, about 4 miles E. of Kalâdgi. Temple of Mârutideva of considerable celebrity, with an image of Mâruti about 6 feet high. The walls are about 4 feet thick.

21. Bilgi, 12 miles N. W. from Bågalkot. About 200 yards from the north gate is a well called Arettinbhåvi (the well of 6 bullocks), 50 yards long by 25 wide, with galleries in the sides. It was built by Mådhavji Visåji in Saka 1630. There are inscriptions to this effect in Canarese, Sanskrit, Maråthi, and Hinduståni (a). About 1½ miles N. from Bilgi near the village of Badgandi is a well about 28 yards long by 14 wide; according to an inscription on it, it was begun in Saka 1509 and completed in 1511, by a servant of Ibrahim Adil Shåh.

4. - MUDEBIHAL TALUKA.

22. Nålatwåd, 12 miles S. E. from Mudebihal.

Inscriptions:—(1) Near the village gate dated Šaka 1422. The stone is 9\frac{3}{4} feet long, 2\frac{1}{2} ft. broad and 1 ft. thick; at the head are the Saiva symbols of a linga, the sun and moon, a bull, &c. (2) In the temple of Måruti, the stone is 2\frac{1}{2} ft. long, 1\frac{3}{4} ft. broad and 9 inches thick, and at the head are figures of

5.—Bagewadi Taluka.

23. Bågewådi, 25 miles S. E. from Bijåpur. Basaveśvara temple is a large one, about 36 yards long by 15 wide, in a large court surrounded by a wall. It is built of carved stone and the roof of the mandapa is carved with figures of the eight Dikpålas, &c. It contains two linga shrines of Malikårjuna and of Sangameśvara with a large Basaveśvara. At Bågewådi, Basappa, the founder of the Lingåyat sect, is said to have been born in the 12th century.

Inscription:—A Canarese one at the door of the temple, much effaced.

24. Muttige, 7 miles W.S.W. from Bâgewâdi. Near the north gate of the village are three small temples of Mukteśvara; of Lakshmî-Narasiniha, octagonal, with an image of black stone, and containing much sculpture; and of Kâśi-Viśveśvara.

Inscription:—Beside an image of Ganapati at the temple of Lakshmi-Nara-yana is a Yadava inscription of Saumya Samvatsara, in the reign of Bhillama (Saka 1111?).

6.—BIJAPUR TALUKA.

25. Bijâpur (a), (16° 50'; 75° 47'), the old capital of the Adil Shâhi kings. Among other buildings may be named the Ibrâhim Rozah, Mihtari Mahâl, Juma' Masjid, Dargah of Muhammad Shâh (A.B. 1600), Palace of Asarsharif. Many of these buildings are described in Arch. of Bijápur, and Trans. Lit. Soc., Bom., vol. III., pp. 55, 63. There is also a ruined Hindu temple and other remains.

Inscription:—On the Hindu temple and in other places there are old Canarese inscriptions; and on some of the Muhammadan buildings there are Persian ones (a).

26. Tidgundi, 12 miles N. from Bijapur; a copper-plate inscription was found here (Ind. Ant., vol. I., p. 80).

7.—SINDAGI TALUKA,

27. Âlmele, 12 miles N. from Sindagi. It is said there was a large Jaina temple at the tank on the west side of the village, and numerous rude figures are found in the neighbourhood; the Darga and the old large wâdâ in the middle of the village.

Inscription:—On a stone lying near the Government School-house, and said to have been brought from the wâdâ of Nâdgauda. It is 2 ft. long, 1 ft. square, with Bâlabodha character on one side and Canarese on the other three, dated Saka 1007. On the top are a linga, the sun and moon, a cow and calf, and a man standing with his hands folded (a).

28. Hippargi, 14 miles S. W. from Sindagi. Temple of Kalmeśvara in a large quadrangular courtyard; temple of Mallaya to the N.E. of the village, also in a courtyard surrounded by dharmaśâlâs with numerous carved figures, and a dipmâlâ. Across the stream is a third old temple with a lamp-pillar, and a well said to be worthy of note.

Inscription:—In the N. E. corner of the court of Kalmêśvara's temple is a stone about 4 feet long, 1 ft. 4 in. broad and 6 in. thick, with a Canarese inscription in 55 lines, dated Saka 1176, Paridhâvi Samvatsare.

8.-INDI TALUKA.

Indi, 30 miles N.N.E. from Bijâpur.

Inscription:—On a stone before the chavadi, 3 ft. 9 in. long, 16 inches broad and 8 inches thick, in old Devanagari characters on three sides, and in Canarese on the fourth,—partly illegible.

30. Salotgi, 6 miles S.E. from Indi. Temple of Siva Yogësvara on the north of the village, with brick spires; the shrine is said to contain a raised seat like a Musalman tomb covered with a chadar said to cover a linga. At an annual fair Brahmans, Mangs, Musalmans, &c., all mingle together and eat the same food.

Inscriptions:—(1) On a stone pillar, set up for cattle to rub themselves on, at the left side of the gate, 4 ft. 10 in. long, 1 ft. 9 in. broad, and 1 ft. 2 in.

thick,—an inscription in old Devanâgarî characters, dated Śaka 867, of the Râshṭrakûṭa dynasty (a), Ind. Ant., vol. I., p. 205. (2) Below the preceding are some lines in Hale Kannada. (3) On another stone lying inside the gate, an inscription in Devanâgarî (a).

31. Tambe, 13 miles S. of Indi.

Inscriptions:—(1) In front of the temple of Mâruti, 2 ft. 6 in. long, 1 ft. 6 in. broad, and 1 ft. thick, in Canarese characters. Above are a linga, sun and moon, cow and ealf and a sword. (2) Near the châvadi, 3½ ft. long, 15 in. broad, and 1 ft. thick, in 31 lines each of 13 or 14 letters.

V.—SÂVANTVÂDI AND KOLHÂPUR.

SÂVANTVÂDI.

Nerur, 15 miles N. of Sundarvadi.

Inscriptions:—A number of copper-plate grants were found here many years ago (see J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. III, pt. ii., pp. 203, 212, 388; Ind. Ant., vols. VIII and IX).

KOLHAPUR.2

In the valuable Statistical Report on the Principality of Kolhapur, compiled by Major D. C. Graham in 1854, almost all the antiquities are noticed in some detail.

1.—Kolhapur, the capital, 68 miles S. from Sâtârâ (16° 43'; 74° 17').

 The temple of Ambâbâî or Mahâlakshmî is in the middle of the town. about 100 yards N.W. from the Raja's palace. The main portion of the building is of two storeys, and is built of black stone from local quarries. The domes or spires are said to have been put up by a Sankaracharya of Sankeśvara; they in nowise harmonize with the carved stone work below, which strongly resembles the style of the Jaina bastis of the 12th century in the Canarese districts. The Jainas claim it, but say it was dedicated to Padmavata. The walls are covered outside by a multiplicity of mouldings, but with figures in niches along the upper portion of the lower storey. The plan is cruciform, with three shrines—of Ambâbâî in the principal one, Mahâkâlî on the left, and of Mahâsarasvatî in a smaller one on the right. The length from east to west is 144 feet, and from north to south 157 feet, and the total height of the sikhara 821 feet. The outer and principal mandapas and the vestibule of the shrine are crowded with columns. In the court are many accessory buildings. The Navagraha and Seshashayî temples, said to have formed parts of Jaina bastis, were removed from other parts of the town, and fitted up in the enclosure. The carving on them is said to be very good.

Inscriptions:—(1) To the left of entrance on the left side of the porch or outer mandapa, in Dêvanâgarî characters, dated Saka 1140; (2) on a pillar on the left hand after entering the courtyard, also in Dêvanâgarî, Saka 1158; (3) on a pillar of the small temple of the Navagraha, to the left of the main building, in Dêvanâgarî; (4) and a fourth is behind the temple, on the left hand when entering from the eastern gate (see Graham's Kolhapur, pp. 330-ff. Nos. 11, 13, 17, 19, 20, 21, and 23) (a).

¹ The Political Superintendent furnished (No. 1838 of 17th November 1879) a list of Musalman buildings at Banda only, apparently of no artistic interest. No other information has been received.
^a From the very full returns forwarded by the Political Agent (No. 287 of 3th September 1879) and prepared under the supervision of Mr. Mahadev Barve, compared with Major Graham's Report.

(2.) The Nagarkhana or Palace Gateway, is the main entrance to the palace, and stands about 40 yards north from it. It is built of black stone, and was erected between 1832 and 1837. It is in modern Musalman style, with pieces of old carving from Jaina bastis inserted here and there. The Court-room on the upper floor is of highly polished stone, the walls being divided into reflecting panels of large dimensions, and the polished stone-ceiling is supported on massive pillars. The area covered by this building is 101 feet by 40, and the total height 64 feet.

(3.) Memorial temples: These are on the Panchaganga River, at the N.W. corner of the town and close to the Brahmapuri hill. They are in memory of deceased members of the royal family,—Sambhaji, Sivaji II, and Aba and Bawa Sahebs. The second, built in 1815, is the largest and most elaborate, but it is an ill-assorted combination of a large Musalman mandapa and a lofty Hindu spire covered with plaster formed into mouldings and with a few ornaments. They are linga shrines. Near by are a number of small shrines on the fine ghats that lead down to the river.

(4.) Jaina Basti. This is an old Jaina temple in the Hemâdpanti style, the outer contour of the shrine walls having obliquely-set angles. The walls are of black stone, but the spire is a copy of that on Ambâbâi's temple, and probably of the same age. It is 73 feet long by 38 wide; the walls, with a multiplicity of horizontal mouldings, are 12 feet high, and the height of the spire above that is 34 feet. It has a porch, the width of the mandapa, like the second temple at Belgaum; a mandapa on four pillars of the "broken" square pattern, a very small ante-chamber, and square shrine.

Inscriptions :- Close to this temple are two Silahara legible inscriptions, dated respectively Saka 1058 and 1064 (Graham's Nos. 3 and 4) (a).

(5.) Bâbu Jamal's Dargah is a small building with an ill-proportioned heavy dome, built within the last hundred years.

(6.) Brahmapuri hill is said to be the site of an old fort, and the foundations of walls, &c., have been discovered on it in making excavations within the last six years. Two years ago numerous lead and a few copper coins of the Andhrabhritya dynasty were found, when making deep excavations. The foundations also of a Buddhist stapa were dug up in the Kharala garden, in which was a stone-box, the lid of which bore an inscription in old Maurya or Aśôka characters (see Arch. Sur. Mem. No. 10. on Inscriptions). Within it was a crystal casket, which, no doubt, contained a relic; but it was overturned and broken before it was noticed. There was also found a brass model of a stapa.

There are several underground temples in the town. Three temples dedicated to Temblaî are about 3 miles to the east of Kolhapur: they were constructed about 70 years ago by Akaram Baba Yadav. The temple of Mahakalî is in Budhwar Street: goats are sacrificed to her. Temple of Prithiangira is believed to be very ancient. Temple of Vithoba near the Padmala gate. Temple of Ellamma is in the east of the city: women devote themselves to her and wear a necklace of white beads: they do not marry.

2. Panâlâ Fort, 12 miles N.W. from Kolhâpur. It is now dismantled, but contains a number of antiquities. The fort is ascribed to the Sîlahâra Bhoja Râja in the 11th century, and the small quadrilateral citadel on the top goes by his name. Three entire rock-caves remain and portions of others. The gateways are the work of the Bahmani dynasty of the 15th century. The Tîn Darwâjâ is still entire, and is a good specimen of work of the kind, with a great deal of light tracery work on the jambs and architrave. The Waghdarwaja is partially destroyed; the Chardarwaja, destroyed after the disturbances of 1844, is roughly sketched in Graham's Kolhapur (p. 120).

Within the citadel of Bhojaraja are two large granaries or magazines (ambarkhana) built by the Muhammadans. To this citadel the legend, told of so many other masonry works, is also attached—that a woman was buried alive under the foundation. The cave of Paraśrâm Rishi is near the east end of the fort.

Inscriptions :- Seven Persian inscriptions, given by Major Graham, pp.

- 3. Påndava Dara, about 6 miles west from Panålå. At the head of a narrow ravine is a group of about half a dozen caves apparently of the same plain type as the Sirwal, Kuda, and other southern Buddhist excavations. Two of them have halls measuring about 28 feet square, with dagobas in the cells.
- 4. Jotiba's hill, 5 miles from Kolhapur, and east from Panala, is covered by "a labyrinth of temples and gateways." None of the present temples are of great age; the three principal ones are dedicated to Siva or Kedarnatha, and built of a fine blue basalt. The revenues of the establishment amount to Rs. 12,000, of which Sindhia pays Rs. 7,500. In the same hill are some old rock-cut cells.
- 5. Pâwala Caves near Jotibâ's hill consist of a large one about 34 feet square with 14 pillars, arranged as in the Kondane vihara parallel to the three inner walls, in which have been 18 or 19 cells, several of them on the left side entirely destroyed, -and outside to the right are several other rooms or cells; to the left is a very irregular Chaitya-cave, 31 feet deep and 161 feet wide in front, with the remains of a dagoba. The back of the room, however, is more nearly quadrantal than semi-circular. To the left of the entrance are other small apartments (a).

Eastwards near Alte is an old Jaina college, since occupied by the Brahmans. Altê also possesses some old temples (Graham's Report, p. 324).

- 6. Viśalgadh, 42 miles N.W. from Kolhapur and 12 W. from Malkapur (16° 55'; 73°47'), formerly called Khelna. Whilst the Muhammadans held it, they added a gate and bastion called the Daulat Burj, which bears an inscription, about the date of which there is some doubt (Graham's Kolhapur, p. 339; Ind. Ant., vol. II., pp. 318, 372).
- Båvadågad, about 36 miles S.W. from Kolhåpur, (16° 33'; 73° 53'), ascribed to Bhoja, son of Marasimha Silahara.
- 8. Palsambe, 4 miles N.E. from Bavada (16° 34'; 73° 56'). In the bed of the river are three large blocks that have been hewn into little monolithic shrines. In the rock on the bank a larger shrine has been excavated for a linga, on which a spring pours its waters.
- 9. Sangśê, a mile S.W. from Palsambê. In a hut temple of Seshashâyî is an image of a male recumbent figure, with a female seated at the feet.
- 10. Ranganagad, about 18 miles N. of Savantvadi, is also ascribed to Bhoja. It was a favourite resort of Sivaji's.
- 11. Bhadhargad, about 42 miles S. from Kolhapur, dismantled after the revolt of 1844.

- 12. Samangad, 14 miles E. from Bhûdhargad, was dismantled at the same time.
- 13. Râyabâg, about 50 miles S.E. from Kolhâpur and about 14 miles N.E. of Chikodi (16° 29'; 74° 50'). It is said to have been the capital of a Jaina principality in the 11th century, as were also Bernd, Khelna and Sankesvara. (1.) The Jaina basti is said to be the oldest building in the place. It is of black stone, 76 ft. by 30 ft., with massive pillars supporting the roof (Bom. Sel. CXV., p. 4). (2.) Temple of Narasimha is an underground structure, 31 feet by 26 feet, with a modern sabha-mandapa added above. The image is said to be very well carved. (3.) Temple of Siddheśvara on the west side of the old village is 168 feet long by 136 wide; it is of black stone, much dilapidated, but now being repaired. (4) Temple of Somesvara is of Kurundi or red stone richly worked, but falling to ruins. (5.) The dome of Randulla Khan is about 32 feet long, 20 wide, and 22 feet high. It is being destroyed by vegetation.

Inscriptions.—One on two slabs in the Jaina basti, dated Saka 1124 (Graham's No. 9, pp. 330-415); a Persian one in Randulla Khan's dome, stating that it was built by Abu Bakr Vazîr, and that it cost Rs. 10,300.

19. Khêdrapur on the Krishna, 30 miles E. from Kolhapur and 7 miles S.E. of Kurundwad (16° 37'; 74° 45'), held in inam by the Svami of Sankeśvara. (1.) The temple of Kopeśvara and Dhopeśvara is probably the finest in this part of the country. The walls are of black stone, richly moulded and sculptured and the sikhara covered with plaster work. In the mandapa are two concentric squares of 20 and 12 pillars, respectively, all richly carved. In front is a round structure 38 feet in diameter, on the plan of what would be a 20-pointed star, only that the spaces for four angles are occupied by the four entrances, the low screen walls support 36 short pillars, while inside is a circle of 12 columns. This Svarga Mandapa is without roof. Still farther from the temple is a Nagarkhâna. The temple itself is 1031 feet in length, 65 feet wide over all, and 521 feet to the top of the spire. The outer walls of the shrine are broken up at oblique angles as in the Nilanga Hemadpanti temple (a).

(2.) The Jaina basti is much smaller, the mandapabeing 21 feet square inside, with a small ante-chamber and shrine, the outer wall of the latter being of the Hemadpanti, star-shaped plan. The building is of black stone, and the pillars of the mandapa are richly carved (a).

Inscriptions :- By the south door of the great temple is a Devagiri Yadava inscription of Simhadeva in Dêvanâgarî, dated Saka 1135 (Graham's No. 10, pp. 418-424) (a).

20. Bid or Berad on the Panchganga, 9 miles S.W. from Kolhapur (16° 39'; 74° 11'), is said to have been the capital of a chieftainship including Kolhapur and Panala. There are many ancient ruins about the place. An old stone temple exists in the village, the walls and columns with numerous mouldings in the style in vogue about A. D. 1200: small ancient gold coins are sometimes found about the old mud fort.

Inscriptions :- Under the image is a fragment of stone, bearing part of an old inscription. Another fragment is built into the wall. There are some inscriptions in a village 4 miles east of Kolhapur close to the high road.

KOLHAPUR. 57

16. Hêrlê, about 7 miles N.E. from Kolhâpur on the road to Miraj. Inscription:—A Silahâra inscription on a stone in old Canarese characters dated Saka 1040, making a grant to a Jaina temple (Graham's No. 2, pp. 349-356).

- 17. Sirôl, 4 miles N. of Kurundwâd (16° 44′; 74° 40′). "There are a few very sacred temples here in excellent preservation, and one especially called Bhojaputra and dedicated to Dattâtreya, an incarnation of Siva' (Graham's Report, p. 324).
 - 18. Honur, 8 miles S. of Kågal (16° 27'; 74° 20'). Inscription:—Of Ballåladeva and Gandharåditya (Graham, No. 22).

19. Savagânw, 3 miles E. of Kâgal.

Inscription:—On the asana of the image of Parsvanatha in a Jaina temple (Graham, No. 18).

Sidnorli, 4 miles S.W. from Kâgal. Temple of Siddhêśvara.
 Inscription:—Dated Saka 1199, on a slab in the wall of the portico of the temple (Graham, No. 16).

Bâmni, close to Sidnorli.

Inscription: -In a Jaina temple, dated Saka 1073 (Graham, No. 5).

"The territory throughout," says Graham, "teems with religious edifices, and every village is most amply supplied with temples, endowed with all the appliances in wood and stone requisite for the purposes of the grossest superstition."

MIRAJ, &c.

- 1. Miraj, 28 miles east from Kolhapur (16° 50'; 74° 43'). Dargah of Pîr Shamnamîr about 60 feet square, built of black stone and the dome of brick. The outer and inner courtyards are surrounded by corridors. Some verses from the Koran are on the dome inside.
- 2. Mudhol, 16 miles E.N.E. from Kalâdgi (16° 20'; 75° 21'). Two old granite temples in the Jaina style, dedicated to Siva.
- 3. Lôkâpur, 8 miles E.S.E. from Kalâdgi. A temple of Lôkanâtha of sandstone, of fair size but probably of no great age.

Inscription :- A short one.

4. Panchgaum, 4 or 5 miles to the west of the village, on the high road from Belgaum to Kaladgi, close to the roadside and apparently in Native States' territory, there is a small but typical temple, probably of Jaina origin, which will before long fall down if the sides, which are bulging out, are not repaired or propped up. At Panchgaum itself there is a very small Linga shrine of rather peculiar construction, and the remains of another like it beside it (a).

Return of the Political Agent, Kolhâpur, No. 310, of 17th September 1879. For other remains in the Miraj territory, see under Dhârwâd Zilla, p. 28.

VI.—SÂTÂRÂ ZILLA.1

1.—TASGANW TALUKA.

- 1. Tâsgânw, 60 miles S.E. from Sâtârâ and 15 N. of Miraj (17° 1′; 74° 40′). A temple of considerable size and celebrity, dedicated to Gaṇapati. It was begun in 1779 by Parashurâm Bhâu Bhât, and finished in 1799 by Appâ Sâheb, his son. It consists of a courtyard and a temple inside. The most striking feature is the gopura, or tower, over the principal entrance to the courtyard, consisting of seven storeys, gradually decreasing till they culminate in a mere ridge. The lower storey is of stone and the remainder of brick. In the courtyard is the temple itself, over which is a brick spire. The body of the temple is of stone undecorated with sculpture, but on the walls outside are rude paintings of mythological subjects. In the temple there are images of Gaṇapati, Vishṇu, Sûrya, and a goddess. Some of the devotees reside in the courtyard.
- 2. Bhosa, 9 miles S. E. from Tasganw, 10 miles N.N.E. from Miraj (16° 57′; 74° 46′). On the top of a high hill near the village are a number of curious cave-temples with Canarese inscriptions on slabs (a). On the very summit of the hill is a tower with a stair inside: it is a station of the Trigonometrical Survey.

2.-WALWE TALUKA.

- 3. Nipane (Yede). A fine temple of Malikarjuna on a hill.
- 4. Machhendragadh (17° 9'; 74° 20'). A temple of Machhendranatha.

3.-KADEGANW OR KHANPUR TALUKA.

 Islâmpur, 8 miles S. from Machhendragadh. In a low detached hill near the Karâdh and Kolhâpur road is a small and apparently natural hollow, sacred to Tukâidêvî.

6. Malwadi, 8 miles S.S.E. from Islampur, and about 18 miles N. from Kolhapur. 12 miles N. from the village are the caves of Malkesvara (a).

The approach from Mâlwâdi is by a footpath, very steep in its upper part till it arrives at a short distance from the summit; it then runs nearly level for a furlong or so along the face of the hill to the westward. After passing a small deep tank excavated in the rock, with a detached linga near it, the path turns sharp round through a depression in the ridge, and then continues nearly level for a short distance in an easterly direction on the opposite face of the hill to the caves which face the north, at perhaps 80 or 100 feet below the summit, and about 500 feet above the plain below. They are seven in number and close together at about the same level. The fourth has a built portice in front supported by 7 small pillars. The front also of the cave is built, having a narrow door into a room 26' by $21\frac{1}{2}$ ' and 6' 9" high in the highest part: the floor is very irregular. In the middle are four massive dwarf columns forming a square: the inner right-hand angle between the column and wall is partitioned off so as to form a small room. The whole surface, with the pillars, is plastered, and now polished and blackened by time. At the back is an ante-chamber and shrine with a linga in it, and at the right end of the front aisle is a chamber also containing a linga.

To the right of the entrance is a structural Saiva temple. No. 5 is close to No. 4 on the left, with a structural arched entrance in front. The cave is rough, 27 by 22' and 6\frac{1}{3} high, with a rude pillar in front, and one in an unfinished state behind. This pillar (or pilaster) is not vertical: it has a rude attempt at fluting near the centre for a length of a few inches. This cave is used as a dwelling place. Much of the masonry is almost new. Cave 6: a small rude open cell. Cave 7 is close to No. 6 and similar. Further on are two shallow hollows in a low scarp, above which is the path that leads to the tombs on the top of the hill. From the character of the columns in No. 4 and the style of the doorways of No. 3, these caves seem always to have been Brahmanical. A jatrâ is held at this place every Monday.

- Devarâshţê, 16 mile N.W. from Tâsgânw (17° 10′; 74° 27′). An old octagon temple of Sangamêśvara, with three reservoirs of water.
- 8. Kadegânw, 10 miles N.N.E. from Devarashtê. Four temples of Eknâth, one of Maruti, and two of Vithobâ; one of the latter with a mandapa in front.
- Kundal, 4 miles S.E. from Devarashtê and 14 W.N.W. from Tasganw. Close to this village are the Kundal Caves of which there are two groups, the principal one of thirteen caves is in the north-eastern face of the hill, the other of three caves is in the southern face. In the first, Cave 1 measures 16' by 15'; No. 2, 12' 6" by 7' 6"; No. 3, 27' 6" by 22', having a row of 3 plain square pillars across the centre; No. 4 measures 14' 6" by 9'; No. 5 is a water-tank 11' square, with steps within, leading down to the water; No. 6 is another cistern 5' by 11' with a doorway, and having a large moulded pilaster, or half pillar carved on the left wall: the partition between this and No. 5 is cut away at half its height. leaving a half column in the centre corresponding to the pilaster opposite. This is the only original ornament in the group. No. 7 measures 26' 6" by 17' 6'; Nos. 8, 9, and 10 are smaller rooms. No. 11 is a wide passage round a shrine, behind which is a deep cistern. In the second group, No. 14 is a room 19' by 15' with a recess 7 square at the back, on the back wall of which is a rude modern bas-relief covering the whole. On the right hand portion of the backwall of the main room are the remains of two old figures, life-size and in high relief; nothing remains of one but the feet, and the other is much worn. No. 16 seems to be partially a natural cavern, with a deep cistern in one corner and a built front; an artificial ceiling within is supported by 15 rude stone pillars. These caves are evidently Brahmanical.1
- 10. Asad, 6 miles N.W. from Kundal. In a khind leading to Yerê, is a small tank cut in the solid rock, the front said to be supported by a pillar.

- 11. Sênoli, 5 miles W. from Asad. In the hill over the village is a small natural cavern under a low scarp; a rude masonry cell has been built in it, and several little wooden bulls and other idols lie about.
- 12. Rénavi, 18 miles N.E. from Kundal (17° 17'; 74° 40'). On the edge of the tableland near the village, in a projecting summit of laterite, is a small irregular cell with an entrance only about 2 feet high. There are several temples round about: one rather ancient.

Inscription:—In Dévanagari on the door-sill of the portico of this temple.

4. - KABADH TALUKA.

13. Karadh, about 30 miles S.S.E. from Satara at the junction of the Koina and Krishna Rivers (17° 17'; 74° 14'), (1) About 3 miles S.S.W. from the town, at the angle of the junction of the Krishna and Koina valleys, is a group of about fifty-four Buddhist caves, of a very plain and probably mostly early type, generally resembling the groups at Kuda, Mahad and elsewhere, south of Poona and Bombay (described in Jour. Bom. B. R. As. Soc., vol. III., pt. ii., pp. 58, and in Cave-Temples of India). (2) The Jamma Masjid with two lofty dome-crowned minarets stands in the middle of the town. It was built, according to an inscription in the interior, by one Ibrâhim Khân, son of Kamalkhân, probably a Thanadar in the years 1566-69, during the reign of Ali Adil Shah of Bijapur, when the kingdom of Bijapur was still flourishing. The mosque and minarets stand on a stone platform about 50 feet square and 31 feet high; the latter rise to a height of about 40 feet above this platform, and are dome-shaped. For 8 feet they are made of stone, and the remainder of the structure is of brick-work. considerably cracked and unsound. One minaret in particular is in an unsafe condition, owing to a curb of wood, which had been inserted at a considerable height from the ground, having become rotten. The mosque itself is an ordinary stone structure of considerable size. Both it and the minarets are decorated with carving and covered with plaster, but not painted. In the mosque, on the arches and pillars, are several inscriptions in Persian and Arabic; the following are translations made by the Oriental Translator: -(1.) On a pillar: "Ibrâhim Khân bin Kamil Khân bin Ismâel Khân, servant in the house of God." (2.) Round a pillar: "When the assistance of God shall come and the victory, and they shall see the people enter into the religion of God by troops, celebrate the praise of thy Lord, and ask pardon of him, for he is inclined to forgive." (3.) "During the time of Shah Ali Adil Shah, the shelter of all the people and the shadow of the favour of God-may he continue faithful and enjoy health and Khital (or grant) to Ibrahim Kamil Khan a friend of the family." another pillar :- "The beggarly, powerless and dustlike and powerless Pehelwan Ali bin Ahmad Ispahani, a servant of God in this house of God. Sunah 963. Titled (?) Tuzyet Khan completed on this date. Pray for the welfare of the builder of this mosque." (5.) An Arabic inscription on a pillar: "May God forgive its builder for the sake of Muhammad and his descendants." (6.) An Arabic inscription on the top of an arch: "I bear witness that there is certainly no God but God, that he is only one and that he has no sharers, and I bear witness that Muhammad is certainly his servant and prophet." (7.) There is an inscription at the foot of an arch in Kufic characters which cannot be made out,-(a rubbing is desiderated). (8.) On the top there are the following inscriptions :- "O Ali, there is nobody young but Ali. There is no sword but the 'Zul Fikr.' God send blessing to Muhammad the chosen [of God], Ali the approved, Hassan the elect (of God), Husain who became a martyr at Kerbalah, Zainu'l Abidin, Muhammad Bakar, Jafar Sadik Musa ul Kazim, Muhammad Taki Ali Naki, Hasan Ashkari, Muhammad Madhi: the most high and glorious God hath said. But he only shall visit the temples of God who believeth in God and the last day, and is constant at prayer, and payeth the legal alms, and feareth God alone. These perhaps may become of the number of those who are rightly directed." "Do ye reckon the giving drink to the pilgrims and the visiting of the holy temple to be actions as meritorious as those performed by him who believeth in God and the last day and fighteth for the religion of God? The most high and glorious God hath said-regularly perform thy prayer at the declension of the sun, at the first darkness of the night, and the prayer of daybreak; for the prayer of daybreak is borne witness unto by the angels, and watch some part of the night in the same exercise as a work of supererogation, for peradventure the Lord will raise thee to an honourable station. And say-O Lord, cause me to enter with a favourable entry and cause me to come forth with a favourable coming forth; and grant me from thee an assisting power."

5.—PATAN TALUKA.

 Pâtan, 21 miles S.S.W. from Sâtârâ, and 20 miles W.N.W. from Karâdh. 2 or 3 miles to the N.W. of Pâtan in the hills bounding the Keda valley on the west, are two Buddhist caves. They are in a ravine under the main hills; their position marked by a large thatched temple on a spur above at a considerably higher elevation. They are cut in a small overhanging scarp in the Nala bed and the water falls over in front. The platform in front has been broken and worn away till it now leaves a scarcely practicable path from one to the other. The larger cave consists of a room 19 feet by 18; the front, much ruined, has had a doorway with a window 3 feet wide on each side. On the right-hand side near the front is a recess 24 feet above the floor and 54 feet long. In the left angle at the back is a seat 9' long and 21 broad. At the back are two cells 61' square; the left one containing a bed or bench 1 foot in height. Between them in the middle of the back, is a recess 23 feet from the ground, 6' wide and 2' deep Close to this, on the right side, is the other cave 10' wide near the front, 12' at the back, and about 15' deep, and 91 ft. high. It contains a very perfect dagoba of the plain pattern found in the earlier caves, with the chhatra carved on the roof. The doorway is 4' wide.1

6. - WARAJ TALUKA :- No remains returned.

7.-KHATAV OR MAN TALUKA.

15. Singnapur, about 44 miles E.N.E. of Satara, (17° 51'; 74° 43'), the scene of a large yearly Hindu festival held in honour of Sambhu Mahadeva, or Kamlesvara, to which as many as 40,000 people go. The temple is on a hill, and thus forms a striking object from some distance. It is built on a plan similar to that of many of the temples of the Dekhan, and consists of a court-yard, an ante-chamber, and an idol chamber. It was rebuilt in 1708 by one Basvant Raikhogai in the time or Sivâji II. The courtyard is an oblong, about 129 feet long and 92 broad, entered from all four sides by gateways, and contains, besides the temple proper, various small rooms, a nagarkhâna, and a small temple of Nandî. The temple itself consists of an oblong ante-chamber, 46 feet by 49, entered from the north, south, and east by three small doorways, about 3½ feet square. To the west is another doorway, 4 feet wide by 6 feet high, communicating with the idol chamber. This room is about 11 feet long and wide and 17 feet high, and in it is the image of Mahâdeva Sambhu. Over the temple is a spire of brick, the rest of the temple being of stone; throughout it are carved images of gods and mythological beings, and also coloured representations of animals.

16. Katarkhatâv, 35 miles E.S.E. from Sâtârâ (17°34'; 74°35'). The temple of Śrî Kâtareśyara; the walls and pillars are of stone and carved. It is said to be very old, and measures 45' by 28'. The upper portion is of brick.

Inscription: -On the front is a Devanagari inscription, weather-worn.

17. Kurauli, 4 miles S.S.E. from Khatav. A similar old temple, but larger; repaired in late times.

Inscription :- On the pavement, but much effaced.

- 18. Wadgânw, 24 miles S. E. from Satara. Temple of Jayaram Swami, with some inscriptions.
- 19. Nagnåthwådi, 20 miles E. from Såtårå. Temple of Naganåth, partly cut in the rock; a genuine Snake temple, with an old inscription (a).
- 20. Sangameśvara, 36 miles E. of Sâtârâ. An old Saiva temple, with carved pillars and effaced inscription.

8.—SATARA TALUKA.

21. Mahuli is about 21 miles E. of Satara: owing to its situation at the confluence or Sangam of the Krishna and Vêna Rivers it is considered a place of great sanctity, and the dead from Såtårå and the surrounding villages are brought there to be burned. It is divided into, -(1) Kshetra Mahuli, on the east bank of the Krishna in British territory; (2) Wasti Mahuli, on the west bank of that river, is the property of the Pant Pratinidhi, by whose family most of the temples were built. (1.) Descending the river, the first temple that meets the eye is one on the east bank in Kshetra Mahuli, dedicated to Radha Sankar. It was built about 1825 A.D. by Bai Saheb Sachiv, the great-grandmother of the present Bor-panth. The temple stands on what is called the Giri Ghat, a long handsome platform of stone built by one Bapu Bhat bin Govind Bhat about 1780 a.D. It is of basalt, and consists of a shrine and vestibule, or, perhaps as it ought to be called in this instance, a verandah supported by three small horse-shee scolloped arches. The dome is of brick and, as far as it has any mathematical form at all, is conical; but it is broken up into gradually diminishing rows of stucco ornamentation, in which are niches filled with images. On each side of the entrance there is a dipmâl. (2.) On the same side of the river is the temple of Bhulesvara Mahadeva built about 1742 A.D. by Srîpatrao Pant Pratinidhi. The absence of Muhammadan forms shows that it is much older than the last. It consists of a vestibule and shrine, but the vestibule is souare or nearly so, and has no opening but a low door. The roof is supported by a few pillars, each of which is in alternate portions square, round, or octagonal. The front is about 30 feet long, and plain. The sides gradually contract by a series of offsets, which run up nearly to the top of the dome, so that the back wall is only 5 or 6 feet long. With the exception of the upper portion of the dome, which is of brick covered and ornamented with stucco, this temple is built of grey stone, and has a very solid appearance. It is not enclosed in any way. The bull is so close to the door of the vestibule that there is hardly room to enter. It is surmounted by a square stone canopy supported on each side by a broad low pointed arch, and its style seems to indicate a later date than the temple. In front are a few tombs where Gosavis and other holy men have been buried. The Ghat near this spot was built by Anandrão Bhivrão Dêshmukh Angaparkar about four years before this temple. (3.) The next is on the same bank as the last two, but at some distances from them and the village, and close to the Satara and Kodeganw road, which in fact skirts it. It was built and dedicated to Ramesvara by Parasurama Nåråyana Angal of Dehgånw about 1700 A.D. Looking at it from the opposite bank, the chief object that attracts the observer's notice is the very fine flight of steps leading up to it from the river-bed. One flight with its board platform was commenced by Bajirao II., but never finished. Though forming part of the whole structure, it would lead, if finished, rather to the side of the temple than to the temple itself. The other flight begins nearly where the first leaves off, and at an angle to it, and is said to be also the work of Parasurama Angal. Half way up it on either side is a small cloister of two arches, which would be perfectly circular but for a small notch in the keystone. The roof is domed and formed by concentric layers of stone, each projecting over the one below, and so diminishing in circumference till only a small hole is left sufficient to admit one stone. At the top of the steps are two dipmalas, one on either side; on the right is a small shrine with an image of the Trimurti. In front is a bull with his face towards the door of the vestibule. He is very richly ornamented with chains and bells. Between his feet is a small linga overshadowed by the cobra, with two women paying adoration to it. The canopy is supported at the corners by pillars, which are square and round or octagonal in alternative courses. Above is a low octagonal dome on two courses-the lower plain, the upper with a few figures. Above this, again, is a representation of the lotus, but the stucco has fallen off. The doorway consists of a porch of stone supported on half pillars. The vestibule is too small to require any support for its roof. The only light it receives is from the low door by which it is entered. There are three domes: the lowest is over the vestibule; next comes one a little higher; and adjoining it the highest of all. They are, as usual, of brick and stucco surmounted by a representation of the lotus. Behind the temple is a cloister of five arches like those already described. A small door leads into a shrine with five small figures in black basalt. The central one is a representation of Siva and Parvati. At one end is Hanuman in an upright position with his hands clasped together. (4.) Temple of Sangamesvara Mahadeva is, as its name indicates, close to the junction of the two rivers, on the west bank of the Krishna and the north bank of the Vena and nearly opposite No. 2. From the bank of the Krishna two flights of steps lead up to the courtyard wall, in which there is a small door opening into the quadrangular court in which the temple is situated. The temple consists of a small open verandah, in which there is a roughly executed painting of Lakshmi, and a vestibule and shrine. In front is the sacred bull under a canopy supported by four pillars. The breadth at the back is gradually diminished by a series of offsets which are carried up into the dome. The architecture is pure Hindu. The pillars are round or octagonal and square in alternate courses, and the roof is formed of long stones which stretch diagonally from pillar to pillar so as to form a series of lozenge or diamond-shaped spaces, filled in with square stones of less size. The flying buttresses to the platform of the sacred bull and the top of the dome deserve notice. As usual the body of the building is of basalt and the dome of brick and stucco, like No. 2. It is said to have been built by Srîpatrao Pant Pratinidhi, and its date may be approximately fixed at 1679 A.D. Just below this temple and at the actual junction of the rivers is a triangular plot of ground occupied by several tombs built over the burial-places of a Gosain (named Bansapuri) and his disciples. The largest, under which the Gosain himself is said to be buried, is an octagonal building of grey basalt, surmounted by a low dome. The sides are open, and the triangular heads of the openings are scolloped and richly carved above; a broad ledge is carried round supported on elegant scrolls. Inside is a linga and sacred bull. The next in size is square with a horse-shoe opening about 6 feet high and carved pilasters on each side. The dome is of brick plastered and fluted: linga and bull inside. The third is a mere canopy supported on square pillars over the linga and bull; the dome is fluted. There are two others which do not deserve any special notice. (5.) Viśveśvara Mahâdeva; the largest of the Mâhuli temples on the south side of the Vêna, at its confluence with the Krishna, is said to have been built by Srîpatrão Pant Pratinidhi about 1735 A.D. It is of basalt, and enclosed by an irregular-shaped courtyard, open on the side of the river, from which it is approached by a flight of steps. The high platform on which it is raised, the low colonnade which runs round the greater part of it; the short thick pillars in alternate courses of round, octagonal and square; the lozengefigured stone roof, the breadth increasing from the front by offsets, and then decreasing in a similar way behind, show that it is a building of purely Hindu architecture. The length from back to front is about 50 feet. The greatest breadth is 20 feet, the least 5 feet. The interior consists of a vestibule and shrine. In the wall of the former there are two images of Ganapati and Lakshmi respectively. The latter is of marble. The dome is of the usual material. The squareness of the form in this and other domes of the same period contrasts with the round domes of a later one. The animal forms, carved in the capitals of the pillars and the cornices, deserve notice. The sacred bull is on the usual platform surmounted by a canopy and octagonal dome, the niches of which are filled with mythological figures, and are divided from each other by figures of men on elephants. On two sides of the courtyard are cloisters with broad low pointed arches and square pillars; they are for cooking purposes, or hostelries for visitors to the temple. On another side is a building of a similar kind but incomplete. The arches of it are narrower and more pointed. At the entrance of the vestibule is a fine bell on which I could not discover any writing, but the date, in English figures, of 1744. I could not glean any information as to its history; but it was, I suspect, taken by the Marathas from a Portuguese church in the Konkan. In one of the temples on the Krishna at Manauli, near Wai, there is a bell which is said to have been presented by the builder of the temple, the great Nana Phadnavis. There is a tradition in that case that it was taken from the Portuguese, a tradition which is almost converted into fact by the inscription "Bene sonantibus cymbalis laudate Dominum." A similar bell said to have been brought by Nana Phadnavis out of Mahuli Fort, and given to the temple at Bhima Sankar where it now is. (6.) Temple of Ramachandra at the back of the last, to which it is very inferior in every respect, is of basalt, and said to have been built by Trimbak Visvanath Pêtê in 1772 A.D. It is very small, and consists merely of a verandah and shrine. In the latter are figures, in brass, of Ravana, Lakshmana and Sîtâbâî. The wall behind them is panelled with broad low arches and painted with flowers, &c. The dome consists of only two polygonal courses. (7.) Temple of Vithoba built by Jotipant Bhagvat of Chinchnera about A.D. 1730. It originally consisted of a small verandah, with carved wooden pillars opening into the shrine by a low Muhammadan arch. A hall or vestibule, with wooden pillars and door all round, was added fifteen or twenty years ago. The roof is hung with lamps. (8.) Temple of Krishnabaî, built by Krishna Dikshit Chiplunkar about 1754 A.D., does not deserve particular notice. (9.) Temple to Krishnesvara Mahadeva built by Krishna Dikshit Chiplunkar, about 1790 A.D. (10.) Temple to Bhairavadeva, built by Krishnabhat Talke about 1770 A.D. It is on a very small scale, and consists of shrine and open vestibule or verandah with three small arches. A hall with wooden pillars like that in No. 7 has been recently added. (11.) A temple with a handsome flight of steps from the river, begun by the Rânî of Sâtârâ in 1865. It is on the right of the road from Sâtârâ. Besides these temples there are, on each side of the road leading to the ferry, several tombs or cenotaphs to members of the late royal family of Satara and others. There is some simple but handsome stone carving on one or two of them. The figure of a dog sitting, which is to be seen on one of them, is said to mark the burial-place of a favourite dog of Raja Shahu called the "Veda Raja" from his eccentricities. It is probably the one which on one occasion he dressed in gold brocade, and exhibited in full darbar, and for whose use he kept up a palanguin establishment. The dog had once saved him from a tiger (vide Grant Duff's History of the Marathas, vol. II., page 30).

22. Satara: Palace and Gardens is a quadrangular block of building occupying several acres, and the large open space of ground in front admits of its being seen to advantage. There is nothing very imposing about the façade, the white plastered surface of which is only broken by numerous large square windows and their wooden framework. A low verandah on wooden pillars runs along the ground floor. There is some carving on the wood work, but it is too minute to produce any general effect on the building; a gateway leads into the courtyard, round which there is a broad colonnade. The walls are covered with paintings of mythological subjects and hunting scenes. It would be tedious to go into an enumeration of all the rooms, of which there are said to be 52, as a large portion of the building necessarily consists of the apartments of the Rani and royal retinue. On one side of the quadrangle is the hall of audience, at the upper end of which is a shrine dedicated to the great goddess of the Marathas, Bhavani. It was built by Appa Saheb about 1844 a.D. It is 83 feet long, 45 feet broad, and 25 feet high. The roof is supported on two parallel longitudinal rows of teak pillars, 16 in each row, with horse-shoe arches between the pillars. The roof is hung with lamps. Outside are fountains. In a small room opening from the colonnade above mentioned, are the thrones of Rajas Appa Saheb and Shahu. The carving in this room is exceedingly rich. The palace, although apparently one building, is really two, called respectively the old and new palaces. The former was built in 1820-21 by the Råja Pratåpsiñha. The latter, to which the rooms above described belong, was built about 1838 to supersede the Rangmåhal, another palace of less pretensions situated immediately under the fort. The old and new gardens and pleasure-house, to which the Råja is wont to repair in the hot weather, are separate from the palace and each other. The old ones were laid out about A.D. 1824-25 by Pratåpsiñha. The house is a plain building of one storey, with a large basin for fountains in front. It has one room, of which the wall and ceilings are covered with looking-glass. The new gardens which are somewhat larger, were laid out in the same year for the Råja's brother, Appå Såheb. The pleasure-house is of two storeys, and has, besides the mirror room, a room hung with pictures, mostly works of native art: some, however, would seem to have been brought from England, and that, too, at no very distant date.

- 23. Parli is the name given to an isolated hill about 6 miles west of Sâtârâ. The fort at the top is called Sujangadh, and was built by one of the Emperors of Dehli about 700 years ago. Additions were made by one Nâro Ballâl Soni, Mâmlatdâr, in 1775 A.D. It is now very much out of repair: over the doorway is a Persian inscription,—not translated. The temple was built about 1860 A.D. by Akabâi and Davâkâr Gosain, disciples of Sivâji's spiritual guide Râmdâs Svâmi, to whom the temple is dedicated and who lies buried here. Paraśurâm Bhâu Srigâńvkar repaired and ornamented this temple in 1800 and 1830 A.D., and Waijnâth Bhagvat, of Enteśvar, built the verandah. It is of basalt, with dome of brick and chunam.
- 24. Angapur.—The temple, which is dedicated to Ganapati, was built by Anandrao Bhiwrao, Deśmukha of Angapur, in 1779 A.D. It is of stone, with a dome of brick and stucco.
- 25. Patêśvar, 6 miles S.E. from Sātārā. Near the summit of a hill called Patêśvar, are some five caves. Besides the caves and buildings attached to them there are three or four temples almost on the summit of the hill. One of them, sacred to Mahādeva, is of moderate size, enclosed in a courtyard with a fine flight of steps leading down to a tank close adjoining. The other temples are small, sacred to Mahādeva and other idols.

The caves are now, with the exception of No. 4, crowded with lingas cut out of detached blocks of stone, some of very large size. Including those in the temples 43 were counted altogether. These caves were probably of Brah-manical origin (see Jour. B. B. R. A. Soc., vol. III., pt. ii., p. 58).

- 26. Dêgânw.—Temple of Srî Patêśvar with large sabhâ-maṇḍapa and śikhara.
 - 27. Khadganw .- An excavation to the west called Morghal.

9 .- JAVLI TALUKA.

- 28. Mahābaleśvar.—Temple described J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. IX., p. exev.; vol. X., pp. 1-18.
- 29. Råjpuri, 4 miles S.W. from Wåi and about 3 west of Bawadhan. A group of rudely cut Brahmanical caves, about 1,300 feet above the valley. They communicate with one another by a passage inside the rock. They face eastward and extend about 100 feet in length.

Inscription : - A detached slab of stone, leaning against the front of the cave, bears an inscription in old Devanâgarî characters (a).

- 30. Bawadhan, 4 miles S.E. of Wâi. Two small caves at about 600 feet above the level of the valley and very difficult of access; the most southerly is a cell 9' by 7', with a bed-place at the back and a stone bench on the right side; the other is similar and about 65 yards nothward.
- 31. Lohâri, 4 miles north of Wâi. On the south-western face of a short lofty spur are 8 excavations in a line extending about a furlong along the hill, and at an elevation of at least 400 feet above the valley. The four largest are evidently early Buddhist monastic residences, and one of these has had two rows of pillars, three in each, from front to back, and the remains of some sculpture on the right-hand wall, which, however, may possibly have been an after insertion; another, close to it, has a dâgoba in a shrine 16 feet square at the back, a cell on each side of it, and four in the right wall, with rock beds.
- 32. Wâi.—At this place there are 49 temples built by the Rasta family alone. besides others of older date; as it is unnecessary to particularize each only those of importance are mentioned. Commencing from above, the first group of buildings is on the north bank of the Krishna, and consists of a ghat, wada, and temple. (1.) The ghat goes by the name of Gangapuri, and is a flight of 12 steps. The first portion, 200 feet in length, was built by Gangadhar Raste of cut stone in 1789. To this, one Bhau Josi added 76 feet and Bajirao II. 80 feet. There is now, therefore, an unbroken length of 350 feet. At the back of this is a plain brick wall through which a door opens into the street with the Gangapuri Wada (now the Munsif's Court) on the left and the temple of Uma Mahesvara Panchayatana on the right. The temple on the right was, like the ghat, built by Gangadhar Raste and about five years before it. It consists of a vestibule and shrine, and is about 40 feet high. It has all the Muhammadan forms of architecture common at the period. In the four corners are separate shrines dedicated to Vishnu, Lakshmî, Ganapati and Sûrya; - Vishnu's is on the left on entering, and has a wooden mandapa, the back wall of which is covered with figures, so are also the outer walls. The great cluster of river temples begins at some distance nearly opposite to the traveller's bungalow. (2.) A shrine with dome containing a marble bull and the image of Mahadeva Dhaklesvara. It stands on a low ghat, 75 feet long. (3.) In a line with it, but near the bank on an upper ledge of the same ghât, is another temple to Gangârâmesvara Mahâdeva, built by Gangâdhar Raste about 1780 A.D. It is of basalt, and consists of an open verandah with 3 scolloped arches and a shrine. The breadth in front is 32 feet. The length from front to back is about 26 feet, with the dome, which is of brick and stucco with blank panels; the height is probably about 40 feet. In front is the sacred bull with a plain canopy. (4.) A temple to Ganapati built by Ganpatrão Bhikâji Raste in 1762 at a cost of Rs. 1,50,000, and a ghat 163 feet in length, built by Anandrão Bhikâji. Besides the usual verandah and shrine, in which is a huge image of Ganapati painted red, there is a covered court or mandapa 60 feet by 30. The roof is flat, and composed of square cut stones cemented with chunam. The walls are of the unusual thickness of 4 feet, which gives considerable dignity to the small arches, 5 on a side and 3 at the end, with which they are pierced. Except the dome, which is pyramidal or conical and of brick covered with, white plaster and fluted, the material used is grey basalt. The total height is about 70 feet. (5.) Ascending the bank is a temple to Kasi Viśveśvara Mahadeva, standing in a quadrangular court 216 feet by 95, surrounded by a wall. The temple was built by Anandrao Bhikaji in 1757 A.D., and consists of vestibule and shrine. Its length from front to back is 49 feet. The façade is about 28 feet from side to side. In the style Muhammadan forms prevail to a considerable extent. The spire has three rows of figures and a Muhammadan dome; the mandapa of the temple is domed. The large bull in front, under a plain canopy with plain scolloped arches, is carved out of a magnificent piece of black basalt; the bells and flowers with which it is decorated are very finely cut. The most conspicuous part of this building, however, is a covered Kunda mandapa at the east entrance, the roof of which is of squared stone cemented with chunam, and supported on 16 lofty pillars 10 feet apart, with neat semicircular moulded arches between them. On each side is a dipmal. (6.) Temple to Mahâlakshmî built by Anandrão Bhikâji in 1778 A.D. at a cost of Rs. 2,75,630. It is away from the river, on the east side of the bazar. It is about 70 feet high, and consists of a vestibule and shrine, which together measure about 70 feet from back to front. The façade is 39 feet from side to side. The vestibule is open in front with two pillars and pilasters in antis. The corners at the top are rounded off by scolloped work. There is a trap-door in the floor, and the roof is formed of large slabs stretching from lintel to lintel. The mandapa has two doors on each side, and the porch is wider than the mandapa. The mandapa has 5 pillars in depth with 2 in width, and on a lower step an additional range over a stylobate approached by three steps and tread. (7.) Temple to Vishnu, built in 1774 A.D. by Anandrao Bhikaji Raste at a cost of Rs. 2.16.250. A covered court 48' x 18' with a roof of cut stone without intermediate support leads to a raised verandah with three small Muhammadan arches, behind which is the shrine. The walls are very thick, 5 scolloped arches on each side and 3 in front—a small chattri of Garuda in front and a marble image.

The following temples are enumerated to complete the list of those on the river, but do not call for any special mention. The date is a clue to the style of architecture. The prevalence of Muhammadan forms may be assumed in those that are less than a century old. (8.) The temple to Mahadeva, built by Govindpant Velankar about 1744 A.D., east of Kâsi Visvesvara. (9.) Temple to the same by Bâbâ Appâ Sâheb Sâtê, 1854 A.D. (10.) Temple to the same with dharmasala attached by Chimanrao Narayana. (11.) Temple to Dattatreya. built by a mendicant named Venkoba Bawa in 1861 A.D. on a ghat made by Anandrão Bhikâji, 1785 A.D. (12.) Temple to Mahâdeva by Chimanbhat Dhirulkar about 1808 A.D. (13.) To the same, built about 1760 A.D. (14.) To the same, built by Meghasyam-nayak Megrek about 1740 A.D. (15.) Temple to Vithobâ by Jâi Sâheb, the great-grandmother of the Bôr Pant, mentioned as the builder of a temple at Måhuli. (16.) Temple to Mahådeva, built by Vishnu Bhat Dikshit about 1760 A.D. (17.) Temple to Mahadeva, built by Venkambhat Dhakne about 1760 A.D. (18.) The Rastia's Wadas.—Of these there are several in and about the town of Wai. The only one that requires special notice is the Mott Bagh, which is about 11 miles out of wai, standing in a large garden with water-tower and fountains. The wada was built about 1789 A.D. by Anandrao Bhikaji Raste, and is said to have cost Rs. 1,02,000. The interior walls are covered with paintings, the colour of which is unfortunately rapidly disappearing. The ceiling is very elaborately painted and gilded.

- 33. Dhom. -On the north bank of the Krishna, about 5 miles above Wai; the principal temple is between the village and the river, and is dedicated to Mahadeva. It is built of basalt, and consists of a shrine with a verandah in front of three small Saracenic scolloped arches supported on pillars about 6 feet high. The arches are covered with leaves and what appear to be fir-cones. Beyond the arches there is on each side of the façade a broad band of wall carved in arabesques. The height of the building, including the dome, is probably not more than 40 feet. Opposite the entrance is a bull of polished basalt under a canopy surmounted by a dome. It is seated upon the back of a turtle (which is found in nearly all the temples above mentioned) represented in the act of swimming. To complete the illusion, it is intended that the surrounding basin should be filled with water, which does not appear to be now done. Around this principal temple are four others dedicated, respectively, to Narasiñha, Gaṇapati, Lakshmi, and Vishnu. Several of the images in these temples are of yellow marble, said to have been brought from Agra. One, which stands outside by itself, is a representation of the Siva Panchayatana. Four heads look to the four cardinal points of the compass, and the fifth to the sky. The five temples were built about 1780 a.D. by one Mahâdevarâo Sivarâma, Sâvkâr of Pûnâ, where his descendants now live. A side door from the courtyard of this temple leads to a ghật built by one Nârâyanrâo Vaid about 100 years ago. On the right is a small temple to Râma attributed to Bâjirâo II. The conical dome has been broken short off by the fall of a tree. Below this, and facing the river, is a sort of cloister containing an image of Ganapati. The arches are pointed. The date probably about 1780 A.D.

About half a mile up the river is a small temple to Mahadeva, built by the Raja Sahu, who reigned at Satara between 1708 and 1750 A.D., and came to Dhom to bathe in the Krishna.

Two banyan trees at Mhusva. There is no record whatever of the age of these trees. They are known to be at least 200 years old, and they are probably double that age. Although the centres have decayed, the outer trunks do not show the slightest signs of any diminution in their vitality. The larger tree is 450 yards in circumference; the smaller about 100 yards less.

BÔR STATE.

- 1. Sirval, 39 miles north from Såtårå. Temple of Kedåreśvara, built by Ambåji Devji Dêśpåndê about 200 years ago, is a large and fine building about 200 years old: it was struck by lightning about six years ago. There is a series of 17 Buddhist caves about 2 miles S.W. from the town, one of them with a dågoba. They are of the same plain type as those at Karhåd.
- 2. Ranje, 14 miles S.W. from Pûnâ: a Vaishnava temple dedicated to Lakshmî Nârâyana.

VII.—SOLÂPUR ZILLA.

1.- AKALKOT TALUKA.

- 1. Åkalkot, 23 miles S.E. from Solapur. Outside the Maindurgi gate and adjoining the Sukhibansi is a small but chaste mosque attributed to the times of the Dekhan kings. It has but one arch and two low minarets, and much plain but delicate stone work.
- 2. Jeluer, 8 miles S.E. of Akalkot, near the railway;— (1) a mosque with some simple decoration said to have been built by one Farâs Khân, Vazîr to some king; (2) the temple of Mâruti at the gate is Hemâdpanti; the pillars in the mandapa run parallel to the front, and form a portico; (3) a small temple of Sêshaśâyî in the court of Kâśilinga Mahâdeva's has some figure carving about it. There is a fine well in the same court.
- 3. Mangrul, 14 miles S.W. of Âkalkot, and 3 miles S.W. of Karabganw station;—shrine of Pîr Sheikh Bâbâ; and at its S.E. corner is a tomb, built "by a Vazîr," with a good deal of plain decoration. It stands on a platform raised some 10 feet from the ground on arches.
- At a village S. from Karabganw are some very old Canarese inscriptions (a).
- 4. Chapalganw, 6 miles N. of Akalkot. A Hemadpanti temple of Malikarjuna Mahadeva, cruciform in shape or with three shrines, and about 60 feet long. The front is covered with carved figures, and the roof supported by columns.

2.—SOLAPUR TALUKA.

- 5. Solapur: the fort contains some Persian and Marathi inscriptions.
- 6. Kandalgånw, 14 miles S.W. from Solåpur, and 6 miles N.W. of Mandrup. A Hemådpanti temple of Kedarlinga Mahådeva. The porch has 3 pillars on each side and the mandapa 5 on each side in continuation of those in the porch. There are side shrines to Mahådeva and Malikårjuna.
- 7. Mardê, 8 miles S. of Solâpur;—a mosque which was originally a Saiva Hemâdpanti temple; also the remains of a fine old Hemâdpanti well, which must have had a good deal of curious sculpture about it.
- 8. Kåsegånw, 8 miles N.E. from Solåpur. Hemådpanti temple of Kåsesvara Mahådeva, approached by a flight of steps from the courtyard; some carving and figures on the left side of the entrance. The mandapa has 8 pillars.
- 9. Begampur (Ghodesvara) on the Bhîmâ, 23 miles W.S.W. from Solâpur. Tomb of Begami, a young daughter of Aurangzeb, who died while he was encamped at Machanûr opposite. It is in danger of destruction from the river.

3.—Sangola Tabuka :-- No return.

4 .- PANDHARPUR TALUKA.

- 10. Pandharpur, 48 miles W. from Solapur:—Great temple of Vithoba (see Tenth Annual Report of Sanitary Commissioner).
- 11. Machanûr, on the Bhîmâ opposite Begampur, 23 miles W.S.W. from Solâpur; a fort built by Aurangzeb; and higher up near Bâhmapuri, a temple of Siddheśvara, enclosed in a paved court and said to be old.

5.—Malsiras Taluka.

- 12. Målsiras, 11 miles W.N.W. from Velapur; an old Homådpanti temple of Somesvara.
- 13. Velapur, 20 miles N.W. from Pandharpur;—a large Hemâdpanti temple of Siva, with an image of Hara Narêśvara. There are two inscriptions here, dated Saka 1222, of which the following are copies by the Mâmlatdâr:—
- No. 1. ॥ स्वस्ति श्रीशके १२२२ प्रवनामसंवत्सरे मार्गशिर्षमासे सोमें अद्यह श्रीमत् पादपतापचक-वार्ति श्री रामचंद्रदेविकयवान् श्री तत्पादवदनोपकीवी सदावसांति अविकाविष्ठहरतत्प्रसादेयो हरे अनादिसिद्धदैवतदेवालय शिखरवान् देवक्षत्रस्व ॥ जोगश्वर द्विजोत्तम यानी पुरातन स्थापन केले. जी-णोद्धार देवराव विख्यातदानधर्म हवनं कृत्वा त्रैलोक्याविख्यात जीणोद्धार केला. प्रख्यातयशःकीर्तिमान् अस्तु. शुभं भवतु ॥

14. Nâthaputa, 11 miles W.N.W. from Mâlsiras;—two large carved temples of Girjyâpati and Parvateśvara, very old.

6. - MADHA OR MOHOL TALUKA.

- Wapha: a large stone slab 7' by 3', with an old inscription in Devanagarî upon it¹ (a).
- 16. Bavi: some apparently very old half underground temples, said to be Hemadpanti; they are very rude, unlike any others in the district, and disused.
- 17. Mohol, 18 miles S.S.E. from Madha; a temple of Hanumana, in which the image has four heads.

7.-BARSI TALUKA.

18. Bârsi, 20 miles E.N.E. from Bârsi Road station:—a fine large temple to Bhagwân, well ornamented.

8.—KARMALA TALUKA.

- 19. Karmâla, 11 miles N. from Jeur station :- a large temple of Ambâbâî.
- 20. Warkut: a half built, but old, temple with 21 sculptured slabs in excellent preservation arranged along the wall (a).

1.—DAPOLI TALUKA.

1. Bågmåndla, a large coast fishing village in the Dåpoli Tålukå on the north bank of the Såvitrî opposite Bånkot. Bågmåndla and Kolmåndla are probably the remains of Måndal, or Måndan, an old trading place of some consequence. Barbosa (1514) has a Mandabad at the mouth of the Bånkot river, where many ships, especially from Malabår, came taking stuffs and leaving cocoanuts, arecanuts, a few spices, copper, and quicksilver. The name and position suggest that it may be the site of Ptolemy's Mandagora.

2. Dåbhol, N. lat. 17° 34′ and E. long. 73°16′, lies 6 miles from the sea, on the north bank of the Anjanvel or Våsishtî river, eighty-five miles south-east of Bombay. Large remains, several feet underground, seem to show that Dåbhol was, in very early times, a place of consequence. An underground temple of Chåndikåbåi is said to be of the same age as the Bådåmi rock-temples (550-578 a.d.) Mr. Crawford's MS. A local history, bakhar, states that in the eleventh century, Dåbhol was the seat of a powerful Jaina ruler, and a stone inscription has been found bearing date 3rd Vaisakha 1078 Salivahana.

Of Musalman remains the chief is, close to the sea and almost buried in cocoanut trees, a handsome mosque sixty-three by fifty-four feet in its inner measurements, with minarets and a dome. The style is like that of the chief Bijapur mosques. It is on all sides enclosed by a stone wall and approached by a broad flight of steps. In the centre of the stone terrace, in front of the mosque, is a well and a fountain. The mosque is said to have been built in 1659, by Aisha Bibi, popularly known as lady mother, masahibah, a princess of Bijapur. The real date is probably much earlier. The local account is that the princess, with a retinue of 20,000 horse, arrived at Dabhol intending to go to Makka, but was kept back from fear of pirates. Determining to spend, on some religious work, the £150,000 (Rs. 15,00,000) she had with her, by the advice of the maulvis and kazis, she began building this mosque and finished it in four years. The builder's name was Kâmil Khân. It is currently reported that the dome was richly gilded, and the crescent of pure gold. The gold and gilt have long disappeared, but much of the beautiful carving and tracery remains. Eight villages, Bhopan, Saral, Isâpur, Bhostân, Chivili, Modpur, Bharveli and Pingari, were granted for its maintenance. After the overthrow of the Bijapur kingdom, the grant was renewed by Śivaji (1670). The mosque still bears the name of its founder Masahibah, but it is no longer used for worship. The local Musalmans are too poor to keep it in repair. From year by year it is crumbling into ruin; the minarets are tottering; the mortar has long since crumbled away; and the loosened stones are falling from their places. In 1873 a small sum was granted by Government to carry out the most necessary repairs. (Nairne in Ind. Ant., vol. II, p. 280-81.) Dâbhol has also a Jâma mosque built in 1650 (1059 H.) in the beginning of Aurangzeb's reign, by Pir Muhammad Abdullâh, the chief officer, subahdâr, of the district. What of the inscription on this mosque has been read runs: 'In the name of God, the Just, the Merciful. Verily mosques belong to God, so be not co-sharers with Him. The rival of this mosque in colour does not exist in the world. The best of well born Governors Pir Ahmed..................(built this mosque) in the year 1059 (1649 A.D.) of the Hijra of the Prophet, on whom be peace and blessing.' On the sea face of a third mosque an inscription has lately (1879) been found cut in wood. It begins with the usual Shia blessing of the Prophet, his daughter, and the twelve Imâms, and ends 'May God help Saâdat Ali, king of kings, who raised this building in 1558 (967 H.)' There is also a cenotaph, or mukâm, of Khâja Khizr, the Prophet Elias, bearing the date 1579 (987 H.), and a tomb of the Pîr Âzam Khân.

² Stanley's Coasts of E. Africa and Malabar, by D. Barbosa, p. 71:

- 3. Kol, across the Savitri river south of Mahad, to the south-east of the hill behind the village has two small groups of caves. The first to the north-east of the village consists of a few broken cells of no pretension as to size or style. The other group to the south-east has one cell rather larger than any of the others. All are apparently unfinished and are much damaged. In the second group are three short inscriptions.
- 4. Mandangad Fort, on the high hill of the same name, about twelve miles inland from Bankot, has two forts and a triple stockade with an area of about eight acres. Of the three fortifications Mandangad proper, with two reservoirs, lies to the south, Parkot is in the middle, and Jamba, with a dry reservoir, on the north. In 1862 the walls were in several places much ruined. The likeness of the name suggests Mandangad as the Mandagora of Ptolemy and the Periplus, a town of the Konkan coast. But Mandla at the mouth of the Bankot creek is perhaps more likely. Though they are probably much older, local tradition ascribes the fort of Mandangad to Sivaji, Parkot to the Habshi, and Jamba to Angria.

2.—KHED TALUKA.

5. Mahipatgad Fort, about twelve miles from Khed facing the Hâtlot pass and Makrângad the Mahâbaleśvara 'Saddleback,' stands at the head of a high spur, that running parallel to the Sahyâdris is crowned by the three forts of Mahipatgad, Sumārgad, and Rasālgad. Reached by a very narrow difficult pass six miles long, Mahipatgad is a tableland 120 acres in area, with no surrounding wall, but with well-built battlements and gateways in six places where the approach is easy. These defences are in bad repair. The wood-work is gone, and in many places the stone work is in ruins. Of the doors the Kotvâl gate to the north is formed by two battlements one on each side and joined with parts of the ramparts; and from the Khed door to the south are still traces of the path by which the garrison received their supplies.

3.—CHIPALUN TALUKA.

6. Chipalun, N. lat. 17° 30' and E. long. 73° 36', the chief town of the Chipalun sub-division, and twenty-five miles from the sea, on the south bank of the Våsishti river. Chipalun, the first home of the Konkanasths or Chitpåvan Brähmans, according to local tradition was peopled with Brähmans and supplied with sixty ponds and sixty gardens by Parasurâma the reclaimer of the Konkan; it has for long been a place of consequence. In the seventeenth century it was a great village, very populous and plentifully supplied with all kinds of provisions.

About a quarter of a mile south of the town is a series of rock-temples. Of these the chief is a tolerable large hall twenty-two feet long by fifteen broad and ten high, with, at its inner end, a Buddhist relic shrine or dâgoba. There are also two or three smaller caves and a deep pond thirteen feet square. Three stages on the road from Chipalun to Karâd in Sâtârâ is another series of Buddhist caves, consisting of a room with a small round relic shrine, six feet in diameter, and a hall, śâla, nineteen feet by eighteen, with a raised seat at one corner and three recesses at the inner end³ (a).

7. Anjanvel, N. lat. 17° 31' and E. long. 73°15', stands on the south shore of the entrance to the Vasishtî or Dabhol river : Anjanvel fort, called Gopalgad, was built by the Bijapur kings in the sixteenth century, strengthened by Sivaji about 1660, and improved by his son Sambhâji (1681-1689). It stands on a gently sloping point on the south shore of the creek entrance half a mile from Anjanvel. It covers seven acres, and is surrounded on three sides by the sea, and on the fourth by a deep ditch now partly filled.4 There is no complete line of outworks, only one or two covered ways leading down to batteries.5 The fort walls, built of stone and mortar, are very strong about twenty feet high and eight thick, with twelve bastions at some distance from each other, until very lately, armed with cannon. South of the fort is a deep trench eighteen feet broad. There are two gates to the east and to the west. On either side of the west gate is a guardroom. The interior of the fort still has traces of small houses. There are also three wells, with a plentiful supply of water. Near the wells is a building said to have been the store-room, close to it a granary, and, at a little distance, the governor's palace. Some Persian verses on a flat oblong stone give the date 1707 and the builder's name Sidi Sayyid. The verses are: Whoever built a new mansion, when he was called away did it not belong to another? God is immortal and all else subject to death. When the kind king, the light of the world, ordered, the fort was made which he could not live to see, Sidi Sayyid (built) the port. Written on the 10th of Zil Hajj the first year of the reign, Hijra 1119 (1707 A.D.).'

4.—Sangamesvar Taluka.

8. Sangamêśvara, N. lat. 17° 9′ and E. long. 73° 36′, a town on the Śâstri river, about twenty miles from the coast,—the meeting of the Alaknandâ and Varuṇā, is a place of some sanctity and of high antiquity. According to the Sahyādri Khaṇḍa it was originally called Râmakshetra and had temples built by Paraśurāma or Bhārgava Rāma. In later times, perhaps about the seventh century, a Chālukyān king Karṇa, coming from Karavira or Kolhāpur, made Saṅgamēśvara his head-quarters, and, founding a city, built a fortress, temples, and palaces. 1 Of the temples one, called Karnesvara after its founder, remains. Sangamésvara continued for some time the head-quarters of a Châlukyan chief. It is mentioned in a Châlukya grant probably of the eleventh or twelfth century. In the fourteenth century it was for long the residence of Basava, the founder of the Lingayat sect. Two miles up the river, in old Sangameśvara, called the kasba to distinguish it from the new town, pet, are several interesting temples. The chief of them is the temple of Karnesvara already referred to. But the shrine of the Sangamêśvara temple is said to be older dating from as far back as Paraśurama's time.2 Karna is said to have built or repaired 360 temples and granted the revenues of many villages for their support. Every year on Magha vadya 30th (January-February) a fair is held attended by about 1,000 persons. At the meeting of the rivers are several sacred places, tirthas, among them one known as the cleanser of sins, dhûtapûpa. There are also some rock excavations here.

5.—RAJAPUR TALUKA.

- 9. Adivra, 12 miles west of Rajapur, has a well known temple dedicated to Mahakali. In her honour, a fair is held from the second to the tenth day of the first fortnight of Aśvin (September-October). Petty shops are opened and about 1,000 persons attend.
- 10. Râjâpur, N. lat. 16° 38' and E. long. 73° 22', the chief town of the Rajapur sub-division, is built on a slope rising from the water's edge, at the head of a tidal creek, thirty miles south-east of Ratnagiri and about fifteen miles from the sea. At the time of the first Musalman conquest (1312), Rajapur was the chief town of a district.3 In 1638 it is said to be one of the best Dekhan maritime towns.4

probably Brahmanical.

11. Dhopêśvara, a mile or so west of the town of Rajapur. A noted temple; the village revenues are alienated for the support of the shrine, and every year a fair is held on Sivaratra (February-March) attended by about 1,000 people. A procession is formed, and, the idol, covered with a gold mask, is carried round the temple in a palanquin,

6 .- DEVAGAD TALUKA.

12. Khârepâtan, about 25 miles up the Vijayadurg river. On a small hill overlooking the town, is a fort about an acre in area. The walls and bastions originally built by Parasurama. Mr. Dowell noticed that the chief temple was of the same age and style as the Kolhapur temple. There were then (1829) the remains of over a hundred ruined shrines. Bom. Rev. Rec. 225 of 1851, 2780.

¹ The date of this Karna, who seems to be the same as the founder of the Mahâlakshmi temple at Kolhapur (J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. XI, p. 100), has not yet been fixed. The style of building is supposed (J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. XI, p. 107) to point to some time about the 8th century A.D. At the same time, according to some verses in the Kolhapur Mahalakshmi temple, Karna flourished about 100 A.D. (30 Salivahan) (J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. XI, p. 104), and according to the Sangamésvara Mâhâtmya he became king in 178 (S. 100).

were taken down in 1850, and used to make the Vâgotan landing place.¹ The sites of twelve or thirteen mosques are shown, and the remains of one, the Jamâ mosque, prove it to have been a building of large size. Outside of the limits of the present town is a very large brick reservoir, ruinous and nearly dry, with an inscription, stating that it was built by a Brâhman in 1659. Near the middle of the town is a half buried stone believed to have been the boundary between the Hindu and the Musalmân quarters. And in the middle of the town there is a colony of Karnâtak Jainas and a Jaina temple said to be the only one in the southern Konkan. In the temple is a small black marble idol, found three or four years ago in the bed of the river. Copperplates of the Râshṭrakūṭa dynasty were found here (Ind. Ant., vol. II, p. 321).

7.-MALVAN TALUKA.

- 13. Âchra, about 10 miles north of Mâlvan. Temple of Râmeśvara. The principal building, enclosed by a stone wall and surrounded by a paved courtyard, measures sixty-three feet by thirty-eight, and, besides the shrine, has a large rest-house with accommodation for all Hindu castes. A fair, held yearly on Râmnavami in Chaitra (March-April), is attended by about 1,000 people from the neighbouring villages. The village revenues (Rs. 2,500 per annum) are, by a grant of Sâmbhu Mahârâja of Kolhâpur dated 1674, set apart for the support of the temple.
- 14. Bharatgad Fort, on the south shore of Bâlavali creek, on a hill commanding the Mâlvan village of Masura, has an area of between five and six acres. The inside of the citadel is an oblong of 105 yards by sixty. The citadel walls are about seventeen or eighteen feet high and five feet thick. At the opposite ends of a diagonal running north and south are outstanding round towers. Within the citadel, about a quarter of its whole length from the north end, is a square watch tower reached by steps. Close to the north tower is a small temple, and near it is a well, about 228 feet deep, cut through the solid rock. About seventeen yards from each side, and 100 yards from each end of this citadel, is an outer wall with nine or ten semicircular towers. The wall is ten or twelve feet thick with an outer ditch. It is not very strong and seems to have been built without mortar. In 1862 the walls were in fair order.
- 15. Suvarnadurg, the golden fortress, with an area of eight acres, on a low irregular island, about a quarter of a mile from the shore, surrounded by a very high wall, is perhaps the most striking of the Ratnagiri coast forts. Great part of the fortifications are cut out of the solid rock and the rest is built of blocks of stone ten or twelve feet square. Relieved by bastions, and broken by one rough postern gate just above high tide mark, the walls are so overgrown with trees and bushes, that, except at low tide, it is impossible to walk round them. Within the fort are several reservoirs and a small step well with water enough for a large garrison. On a stone at the threshold of the postern gate is a figure of a tortoise, and, opposite it on the wall towards the left, one of Maruti, the monkey god. There are two guard-rooms to the right and left, and rooms also under the bastions. At a little distance is a stone building plastered with mortar, said to have been the magazine. Some very extensive foundations are probably the sites of old palaces. In 1862 the walls and bastions were in good repair, but the gateway was ruinous. There were fifty-six guns all old and unserviceable.

Suvarnadurg was built by the Bijâpur kings in the fifteenth century, and in 1660 strengthened by Sivâji, and was in 1698 a station of Kânhoji Angria's fleet and in 1713 was formally made over to him by Sâhu Râja. Under Kânhoji's successor Tulâji, Suvarnadurg became one of the head centres of piracy.

16. Målvan, N. lat. 16° 4′ and E. long. 73° 31′. In a bay, almost entirely blocked by rocky reefs, there were formerly three small islands, two of them about a quarter of a mile from the shore, and the third separated from the mainland by a narrow channel. On the larger of the two outer islands stands the famous fort of Sindhudurg, and, on the smaller, the ruined fort of Padamgad, now, at low tide, connected with the mainland by a neck of sand. On what once was the inner island, and is now part of the mainland, lies almost hid in palms the old town of Målvan. This inner island was called Medha, but the channel separating it from the mainland has been long dried up. This island stretched from a point about a quarter of a mile to the north of the old residency to the site of the custom house on the south, and in it stood the old fort of Råjkot. The modern town of Målvan has spread far beyond the limits of the former island.

About the middle of the seventeenth century, when Sivaji fortified Sindhudurg, the creek about a mile and a half north of Malvan was navigable some miles up to Maland or Milandi then a place of considerable trade. In 1750, under the name Molundi, it is mentioned as a fortified town belonging to Bhoaslê. The similarity of the name Melizigeris, the island of Meli, and the fact that the chief export was pepper, (Lassen Ind. Alt. I., 327) would seem to make it probable that Ptolemy's island of Melizigeris, and the mart of Melizigera, mentioned in the Periplus and perhaps Pliny's Zigerus, and Strabo's Sigerdis were the island-town of Milandi or Malvan. Ibu Khurdadba (cir A.D. 900) mentions Mâli, an island five days' south of Sanjân in the north of Thâna, (Elliot's History, vol. I, p. 15) and Al Biruni (A.D. 1030) has Mâlia south of Saimur, that is Chaul in Kolâba (Elliot, vol. I, p. 66). This may refer to Mâlvan or Milandi but they more likely belong to the Malabâr coast. Compare El Idrisi (A.D. 1150) in Elliot, vol. I, p. 85.

The chief object of interest is Sivaji's fortress and coast capital, Sindhudurg, or the ocean fort. On a low island, about a mile from the shore, although less striking than Suvarnadurg, it is very extensive —little less than two miles round the ramparts. The walls are low, ranging from twenty-nine to thirty feet. They are on an average twelve feet thick, and have about thirty-

¹ The name Malvan is said to come from the great salt marshes, maha lavana, to the east of the town.—Mr. G. Vidal, C.S.

The figure of the fort is highly irregular with many projecting points and deep indentations. This arrangement has the advantage that not a single point outside of the rampart is not commanded from some other point inside. Report on the condition of forts in South Konkan, 1828.

two towers from forty to 130 yards apart. The towers are generally outstanding semicircles with five embrasures for cannon. The entrance is at the northeast corner. The area of the fort is forty-eight acres. Once full of buildings it is now a mere shell with nothing inside but a few small temples. To the Marathas Sindhudurg is Sivaji's cenotaph¹ and in its chief shrine Sivaji's image is worshipped.² The image is of stone. The head is covered with a silver mask, or, on high days, with a gold one. In the stone of the walls prints of Sivaji's hands and feet are held in reverence and protected by small temples.

- Masura, about half way between Malvan and Maland, or Milandi on the Khâlâvli creek, has been identified with the Muziris of Ptolemy and the Periplus, then one of the chief places of trade in Western India. Muziris was probably further south on the Canara or Malabar coast."
- 18. Nivti, six and a half miles south of Malvan and eight north of Vengurla. At the mouth of a small creek in rather a striking bay, stands Nivti fort in the village of Kochra. If Rennell's suggestion, that it is Ptolemy's (150) Nitra and Pliny's (77) Nitrias 'where the pirates cruized for the Roman ships' is correct, Nivti is an old settlement. But as far as has been traced it has never been of importance as a centre of trade.7

Nairne's MS. Monday is the chief day for S'ivaji's worship and the Kolhapur chief sends turbans and other presents. The shrine is seldom visited by pilgrims and is not honoured by a fair. Mr. G. Vidal, C. S. Ind. Ant., vol. II, p. 293.

Muziris by Forbes, 1783 (Or. Mem. IV. 109), and by Rennel, 1788 (Map of Hindustan XXXVII.), has been identified with Mirjan near Kumta in North Canara. Dr. Caldwell's suggestion (Dravidian Grammar, Introd., p. 97) that Muziris is Muyir-kotta, the modern Kranganor in Cochin, though this is much further south than Ptolemy puts it, is now generally accepted (Balfour's Cyclopadia, Muziris: McCrindle Periplus, 131). Yule (Cathay II. 374) marks it doubtful.

Rennell's Memoir of a Map of Hindustan, p. 31. Nitra or Nitrias is more commonly identified with the Periplus (247) Naoura and so probably with Honavar. McCrindle's Periplus, p. 130. In 1819 its trade was quite insignificant. Malvan Resident to Government, 31st May 1819. Rev. Dia. of 141 of 1819, 2299.

IX.-KOLÂBA ZILLA.

- 1. Korlê Fort, on a rock about 400 feet high running half across the mouth of the river at Chaul. In plan and works it is different from any other on the west coast. It was taken by the Portuguese in 1594 and rebuilt by them between 1646 and 1680. It is about half a mile in length. There are several Portuguese inscriptions in it. The greater part of the works is still in good preservation. The promontory is fortified all round and crossed at the top by two lines of walls with gateways and bastions, and several of the gateways have the names of saints engraved upon them. At the point commanding the entrance to the harbour is a large battery, and the level space between this and the bottom of the hill apparently contained the quarters for the troops. The chapel, now roofless, is in the highest part of the fort and close to the magazine. (Ind. Ant, vol. III., pp. 100, 181.)
- 2. Rêvadaṇḍa, Alibagh. Ruins of large Portuguese buildings, principally churches built between 1630 and 1700 a. D.

Two miles north-east are two Buddhist caves.

- 3. Agarawa—Muhammadan mosque with an inscription;—also a Hamam-khana in ruins, built by a courtezan.
- 4. Chaul.—Many temples, tanks, &c. The temple of Śrî Hingalaja—in which are also images of Ashapurî and Chatuśśringi. The temple is said to be old, but is small and covered with whitewash. The temple of Dattatrêya has an inscription round the pâduka.
- Rayagadh Fort, 16 miles north from Mhâr. On the temple of Mahâdeva inside it is an inscription in honour of Sivâji.
- 6. Pâl—about a mile north-west from Mhâr—has a group of caves excavated in the sides of a hill, with some inscriptions (surveyed).

X.-PUNA ZILLA.1

1.—INDAPUR TALUKA.

1. Palasdeva on the Bhîmâ, 13 miles N.W. from Indâpur (18°15'; 74°57), formerly called Ratnâpur. The temple of Siva is built of stone below, and the upper portion is brick.

 Narsingpur, 12 miles S.E. from Indapur at the junction of the Bhîmâ and Nîrâ. Temple of Srî Lakshmî Narasimha, built by the Vinchorkar about 150 years ago. It is octagonal and built of black stone. The apex is of copper, gilt with gold. It is 70 feet high.

Pilgrimages are beld in the month of Vaisakha. The idol of this temple is known by the name of Sri Lakshminarasingh, whence it is called the temple of Narasingpur. A fable is given in the Purans called the Narasingh Mahatma. It is as follows:—Narasingh became incarnate for the sake of one of his votaries called Pralhada. Pralhada made a sand pindi for worship and through mistake left it there, and it afterwards became established. The reason for the name of Sri Lakshminarasingh is that the god was represented with a lion's face and man's body and with a woman by him.

2.- BHIMATHADI TALUKA.

- 3. Dhond, 8 miles E.N.E. from Pâţas, on the Bhîmâ. (1) A temple of Bhairavadêva said to have been built by Mâdhavji Sinde, to whom the village was given as an inâm. It is of stone with a superstructure of brick. (2) Temple of Viţhobâdeva, by the same; also in the village a large door called 'Ves' of polished stone.
- 4. Pâţas, about 2 miles from the railway station. Temple of Nâgeśvara Mahâdeva, is said to have been built about 200 years ago. It is constructed of hewn, polished stones, and has an audience-hall with veraudahs on both sides.
- 5. Supâ, 8 miles S.S.W. from Pâţas. (1) Dargah of Shamau Shur Pir, with a dharmaśâlâ. A large fair is held on the 16th Zilkâd. (2) Temple of Tukobâdêva built by Aṇṇâji Râo Marâţha.
- 6. Kurkamb, 5 miles S.E. from Pâțas. (1) Temple of Phirangâi Devî. (2) A similar but smaller one to the same idol stands on a hill near the village; in this latter there is an inscription dated 1681:—

श्री चरणीं तत्पर वंश निरंतर वणगे।जी नाईक निवाळकर त्यांचे पुत्र मुधोजी नाईक त्यांचे पुत्र संभाजी नाईक त्यांचे पुत्र तुकाराम नाईक त्यांचे पुत्र अमृतराव शाहाजी व पिराजी नाईक निवाळकर देशमुख प्रांत फल्टण देश याणीं श्रीचे आहेवरून देशल्य समग्र सिद्ध केलें. शके १६८१ सीम्प नाम संवत्सरे. श्रावण शुद्ध पंचमी. श्रीरस्तुः

From Collector's returns of 16th March 1878. Those for the northern talakas prepared by the late G. H. Johns, C.S., are good and inserted almost verbatim; the others very meagre in details.

- 7. Roti, 3 miles S. of Pâțas. Temple of Tukâidêvî built by the Medhê family.
- 8. Pargánw, 11 miles N.W. from Patas. A temple to the same idol, which is said to have been brought from Taljapur.

3. - PURANDHAR TALUKA.

- 9. Malhargad, 5 miles N. from Sasvad, fort built by Bhivrao Eshvant and Krishnaji Madhavrao Phanse about 1775 a.b. There is an outer line of fortification taking the triangular shape of the plateau, and an inner square one. It contains temples of Khandoba and Mahadeva. The main entrance is at the N. E. corner.
- 10. Jejuri, 10 miles E.S.E. from Sasvåd. Temple of Khandobå-Malhåri-Mårtand-Bhairava-Mhålasåkånta,—Khandobå, because he has a dagger; Malhåri, because he killed the demon Manimall. The temple was built by Malhårråo Holkar and completed by Ahalyåbåî. There are several short inscriptions, all modern.

4. - SIRUR TALUKA.

- 11. Rânjangânw at the junction of the Bhîmâ and Muthâ-Mulâ. Temple of Ganapati. The village is supposed to be the scene of one of the Ashta Vinâyaka Avatârs of that divinity. The other seven Ashta Vinâyaka temples are situated at Morganw, Theur, Lenadri, and Ojhar in the Puna Collectorate, at Pâli in the Pant Sachiv's territory, at Mad in the Thâna District and at Sidtek in the Collectorate of Ahmednagar. The present temple at Ranjanganw occupies, it is said, the site of an old Hemadpanti edifice, of which 4 pillars remain, two of them at the entrance to the enclosure. The present shrine is said to have been constructed by Chintâma na Maharaja Dêva two centuries back, and on the north side there is a fine corridor with a façade of 15 arches, each arched compartment being vaulted in a low conical form. This arcade is due to the Povar family, and is contemporary with the present temple. A flight of steps leads to the roof of the corridor which is flat and a pleasant place of resort during the jatra season, i.e., at Ganesa Chaturthi. The temple consists of a mandapa with rows of wooden pillars and an outer and inner Garbhara; a stone rat is stationed at the entrance of the mandapa, as the usual vahana of the elephant-snouted god. The outer Garbhara is surmounted by a small śikhara and the sanctuary by a more imposing one; both sikharas are somewhat rude; the larger rises in four storeys, the lowest being the widest, and the three higher ones being each ornamented with a frieze; a small kalasa, flanked by 4 minars completes the spire. There is a tiny shrine dedicated to Mahadeva on the extreme west, i.e., beyond the Garbhara and joined to it. The cornice of both temple and corridor is supported by brackets of the Phallic symbol type.
- 12. Påbal, 25 miles N.N.E. from Punå. Old temple of Någesvara Mahådeva on the west of the town, said to have been built 5 centuries ago by Kånhu Råjpåtak. The mandapa is divided into three small aisles by two rows of 3 pillars each, the outermost pillars being slightly sculptured. In front and on the east is a small tank in the Hemådpanti style, constructed, according to tradition, by Kånhu's favourite dancing girl. Flights of steps lead down to the water and the side walls contain small niches with sculptured jambs. On north-east of the temple is a fine Stambha; its shaft, which stands on a lofty pedestal and supports a massive capital, is monolithic (a). (2) Mastân Bâî's tomb, to which a mosque is attached, is situated among some fine trees in an enclosure on the north of Pâbal. This lady received as saranjâm Pâbal and the neighbouring villages of Kendur and Loni from Bâjirão Peśwâ, and though she died in the Saniwâr Palace at Puṇā, she was buried in her inám town of Pâbal; she was probably a native of the north of India, and is said to have been taken captive by Sindhia in his wars in Hindustân and to have been made by him a present to the Peśwâ. There is nothing of architectural merit in her tomb or its surroundings.

Talegânw Dhamdhere, 20 miles N. E. from Puna (18° 40'; 74° 12'). Of the many temples in this town the most remarkable are: (1) Siddhêśvara, a large Saiva shrine enclosed by lofty battlemented walls and built on an elevation. A Kulkarni of Talegânw, who was also Sindhia's Divân, is said to have erected it. On the east and west there are high flights of steps leading into the temple inclosure. (2) Ganapati's temple owes its existence to the Dhamdhere family. The sikhara surmounting the Garbhara is profusely adorned with quaint little figures in niches, and the vestibule is entered on the east and south through arched openings, and has a vaulted roof. (3) Natha's shrine is built on the bank of the river and is dedicated to the Sadhu whose name it bears. On Sivarâtra there is a jatrâ of about 3000 persons to this shrine. Nâtha lived in Sivaji's time, and was a friend of Itnak Bawa whose tomb is in the Musalman cemetery to north-east of the town. The townsfolk have a tradition that Nåtha and Itnåk were great card-players, and spent most of their spare time in playing together. This shrine is supported by inam land assessed at Rs. 49, and is the scene of a jatra of about 2000 persons on Magha Vad 13. (4) Uttaréśvara temple was built by one of the Mahajan family about two centuries back. There is a fine well on the north side, and an ancient Dipmal outside the enclosure. (5) Takleśvara is an old building dedicated to Mahâdeva and is to the west of that of Ganapati. There is an old dharmasala opening into the bazar through which this temple is entered. Besides these sanctuaries, there is a temple outside the town, about half a mile to the north-west, dedicated to Bhairava, - a quaint old structure, enclosed by walls; its mandapa is divided into three aisles by two rows of low stone pillars supporting brick arches.

5 .- JUNNAR TALUKA.

14. Junear (19° 12'; 73° 56'). There are about 140 caves in some six groups round Junear, which have been described in Ind. Ant., vol. VI, p. 32, and Cave Temples of India.

Among the Muhammadan remains the Juma' Masjid is said to be 500 years old, and there is no doubt that it occupies the site of an old Hindu temple. It is approached through a narrow gateway surmounted by an arch which is flanked by 4 minars; the gateway is recent as the year 1235 (Hijra) is engraved below the arch; the roof of the mosque is flat and wooden, and is supported by 18 stone pillars; these pillars are plainly Hindu,—a fact admitted by the Musalman in charge; the outermost row of pillars, 6 in number, are assisted in supporting the roof by beautifully carved wooden brackets, which are taken by the goldsmiths of the town as patterns in carving their ornaments; the front is surmounted by six minarets.

The present fort of Sivneri outside the town on the south-east is of Musalman origin. It is accessible on the south side only, where a steep ascent conducts to the entrance gateway, which is massive and flanked by towers; several other gateways, all strongly built and bastioned, are past through before the first of a triple line of fortifications is entered, and when the fortress proper is gained and the summit of the hill, which is near 1000 feet above Junnar, reached, the thought can scarcely fail to present itself that nature and art combined have created here one of the most impregnable of mountain strongholds. The present fort was built about A. D. 1445 by Malik-al-Tijar, the lieutenant of the Bahmani king Alau'd-din II., but doubtless additions were frequently made to the fortifications under subsequent rulers. It played a not unimportant part during the earlier Maratha period, and is celebrated as being the birthplace of Sivaji. A memorable night attack was made on it in 1680, near the close of Sivaji's career. The most striking of its remains is a mosque with two flanking minarets, the latter being united by a graceful flying arch. This mosque is built over a rock-hewn tank, the water of which outlasts the hot season, as does also that of several of the other reservoirs on the hill. On the summit of the plateau is an Idgah, and the tomb of Adam Subhedar.

Perhaps the most interesting buildings are those outside the town on the east; and the most ancient of these is a Dargah close to and on the right of the high road as one goes from Junnar to Narayanaganw. It is plainly built and has three entrances, and some of the stones used seem taken from a Hindu temple. North of this Dargah and near the Delhi Ves is an old mosque, said to be of the time of Shah Jehan.

About a couple of miles east of Junnar is a garden of some extent called the A6z Bagh. More than one solution is given of the name, but perhaps the most plausible is that which makes Afiz a corruption of Habshi, this garden and its mansion having, tradition states, been in the possession of, if not founded by, an Abyssinian chief. The mansion is a substantial, and not inelegant building: three balcony windows on the south side overlook a small tank; these windows are supported by somewhat heavy looking brackets, and are canopied; the east and west sides have each a bay window; the entrance is on the north, the steps being flanked by bay windows similar in adornment to those on the other three sides; there is an upper storey to the house; the roof of the ground floor is arched, and ornamented with lozenge-shaped mouldings.

At a little distance west of the garden, and therefore nearer Junnar, is a fine Dargah or Gumbaz which is supposed to contain the ashes of the Habshi founder of the Afiz Bagh. This mausoleum has a domed roof, and within it are nine tombs said to be those of the Habshi, his wife; six children and a servant. There are entrances on the south and east. The south entrance is beautifully carved and pierced; it is flat-headed, with pierced work above, and sculptured jambs, and is contained within an ogeo arch; there is an inscription above the lintel. The east is a narrow doorway under a pointed arch. The interior is an octagon, and every other octagonal side is embrasured and arched; the west is covered with texts from the Kuran. The exterior walls form a quadrangular figure; the upper portion of the wall-veil terminates in an artistic cornice of brick and chunam, consisting of pointed arches resting on tiny pedestals and interlacing each other; a small minaret graces each of the four corners of the building. The walls are, as regards ornament, divided into two series of blank and arched windows, the upper consisting of five and the lower of three windows, the middle, lower panel on the south and east walls being exchanged for a doorway.

To the west of this large mausoleum is a small Dargah, with a pyramidal roof.

- 15. Behlé, 21 miles E.S.E. from Junnar (19° 7'; 74° 15'), contains a fine Hemâdpanti bâori. This tank is about 20 yards square, and is entered by two flights of ten steps each on opposite sides; the walls are adorned with 18 canopied niches, of which 4 ornament each of the sides where the steps are, and 5 each of the remaining sides. These niches are somewhat under 3 feet high, and are 1½ feet wide by 1 foot deep; they are square-headed with carved jambs, and their finial is a canopy knobbed at the top. There was an inscription on the south wall, but it has been worn away.
- 16. Pur, 10 miles W.N.W. from Junnar: Temple of Kukadeśvara at the source of the Kukadi a few miles east from the Nana Ghat, and attracts an assemblage of from one to two thousand persons on Magha Vad 14 (Sivaratra). It is situated within the village limits of Pur, and is supported by a Devasthan allowance of Rs. 76 per annum. The abrupt mountain fortress of Chawand 3 miles to the east and an amphitheatre of hills which encircle it on the south and west, combine to make the site of Kukadeśvara very picturesque. The temple itself is in the Hemadpanti style and in fair preservation; its court is strewn with portions of the carved work which have from time to time fallen, their places in the structure being filled in with plain masonry. The position of much of the carved stone work on the exterior of the building would lead to the impression, that at one time the temple was partially in ruins (possibly rendered so by Musalman fanaticism) and in its restoration somewhat careless or unskilful hands pieced it together. The elaboration of the sculpture and the size of the stones used are striking. The west and only entrance is especially worthy of notice. Those in charge are peculiarly jealous of the intrusion of strangers, and even the mandapa is closed to heretical footsteps. From the doorway, however, may be seen 6 fine pillars, 3 on either side, dividing the mandapa into nave and aisles with a 7th column at the entrance to the Garbhara. These pillars bear sculptured figures on their capitals. On the north-west of the temple is a small shrine, now in ruins, dedicated to Bhairava; either jamb of the doorway bears a Dwarapala in relief. The temple itself is protected from the severity of weather by a thatched roof supported on a wooden structure.
- 17. Månkêśvara is a small village a few miles west of Junnar. Its only claim to notice are a few remains of what must once have been a Hemådpanti temple of great merit; the remains now visible are 3 or 4 artistically sculptured pillars without base or capital, some fragments of capitals and two large Nandîs. Probably, if the mound on which the ruin is were excavated, a large portion of the old temple might be discovered. The belief of the villagers is that the Musalmâns during their rule destroyed the building, and this belief is rather strengthened by the fact that within a stone's throw on the south is a Pir's tomb.
- 17. Nåråyangad, 10 miles S.E. from Junnar, and 3 miles E. of Nåråyangånw. The hill is isolated and rises abruptly from the plain on the north-west and south. The fortifications are almost completely dismantled; portions of 4 bastions, however, and part of the north wall remain, though in a ruined state. This fort, said to have been built by the first great Peśwå, i.e. Bålåji Viśvanåtha, was given as a sarinjâm to Sayåji Powår at the end of the last or the beginning of this century, with the duty of keeping the neighbouring country in a quiet state and in the interest of the Peśwâ. There is a tradition in the neighbourhood that Nârâyangad surrendered to the British after only one shell or cannon ball had reached the interior of the fortifications. There is a small shrine to Hastabâi on the extreme summit of the hill. Water is plentiful, being supplied by two tâkâs or spring cisterns and by several hands; the former are full of water even in May, and of them the Nârâyana Tâkâ is the more famous. In this tâkâ, Nârâyana Deva is said to have appeared, though invisible to the uninitiated, 40 years ago, on which occasion the hill was for 2 or 3 years the scene of a weekly Somawâr Jatrâ attracting some thousands of persons. There are some ruins on the hill, but the only one worth mentioning is a stone doorway bearing on its lintel a figure of Gaṇapati and two attendant tigers.

- 18. Ojhar, E. from Junnar, is the supposed scene of one of the Ashta Vinayaka avataras. The present temple is modern, being only a century old. It is in an enclosure, which is entered under a somewhat interesting looking gateway; the sides of the gateway bear sculptured Dwarapalas, and a row of four musicians in bas-relief adorns the lintel; these figures are all gorgeously painted. On entering the enclosure two fine Dipmals first attract attention; they are in front of an extremely fine corridor of 7 cusped arches; this corridor serves the purpose of a dharmaśala. The temple itself is entered by three doors, each of which is sculptured on the jambs and lintel; the east entrance is the chief, and bears in relief over the lintel a figure of Ganapati with parrots and monkeys disporting themselves in trees. A small dome flanked by 4 minarets surmounts the mandapa, and over the Garbhara is a śikhara adorned with the ordinary rows of niches and figures. This temple is very little frequented. For the other Ashta Vinayaka's temples see Ranjanganw in Sirur Taluka.
- 19. Karêśar, 3 miles N. W. from Madh—a very interesting temple of perhaps the 11th century, falling to ruins (a).

6. - KHED TALUKA.

- 20. Khêd, 23 miles N. from Puṇâ. Here the places of interest from an architectural or archæological point of view are—the tomb and mosque of Dilâwar Khân, an old temple at Tukâiwâdi and the recently built shrine of Siddheśvara on the left bank of the Bhîmâ.
- (1.) Dilâwar Khân's tomb and mosque are situated on the north of the town just outside the Delhi gate, and are surrounded by a wall enclosing a spacious compound, the greater portion of which is put each year under cultivation. The Dargah is on a raised platform of some height, the upper part of which is ornamented all round with a pendent wreath of sculptured foliage. Within the Dargah, which is domed, are two tombs said to contain the remains of Dilâwar Khân and of his brother; a third brother is said to have been buried at Rahimatpur. The inscription over the entrance of the Dargah shows that it was built in the year of Hijra 1022, i.e. A.D. 1613, or early in Jehângir's reign. The exterior is quadrangular, with a minaret flanking the dome at each corner; the four walls are decorated each with a double row of blank arches, three in number, the central arch in the lower and the two side arches in the upper row being minutely cusped. The mosque on the west is a graceful specimen of Musalmân carved stonework. It is small, on an elevated platform, and has a double row of arches.

(2.) The temple of Tukâi Devî at Tukâi Wâdi is a few yards to the east of the Puna and Nasik road. It is entered on the east through a small porch with wall and pillars on either side, which expands into a mandapa containing 12 columns, in rows of three, and guarded by a high parapet wall, surmounted by short pillars. The pillars throughout the building are rude and massive; half way up they are square and are then chamfered off so as to be octagonal, returning quickly however to their quadrangular form which again becomes eight-sided, the shaft ending in a series of round members, surmounted by a square abacus, which is itself topped by a heavy bracket with four projections: they support a flat stone roof which, receding slightly between each set of four pillars, is relieved somewhat of its flat monotony. The pillars are monolithic as is also the Dipmal at the entrance. The external roof of the mandapa or nave is flat with a kalaśa at each of the four corners, and at the junction with the Garbhara has a small spire. The Garbhara is itself surmounted by an egg-shaped dome, with a rude minaret at each of the four corners. This temple must be some centuries old, but it is impossible to arrive at its age from local inquiry and there is no inscription discoverable.

(3.) The temple of Siddhéśvara is picturesquely built among trees on the banks of the Bhîmâ, about half a mile to the east of the town of Khêd. On the northeast of the temple is a corridor dharmasala of brick and chunam, now somewhat out of repair; it is rectangular, the eastern side consisting of four cusped arches, and the north of seven arches, the middle one of which only is cusped; the roof, which is flat, is ornamented with a pierced cornice. On the north of the temple is a small tank with flights of steps on east, north and south, the west side being occupied by a corridor guarded by 8 pillars and 2 pilasters in its frontage towards the tank. The steps on the north are interrupted by two small shrines facing similar shrines on the south. The temple, which consists of nave, transept, and Garbhara, is entered from the north through a small vestibule, the roof of which is supported by two pillars; a canopied Nandi and several Dipmals face the entrance. The Garbhara is surmounted by a pyramidal and fluted or ribbed roof, with a dome above, some snake ornaments adorning the ribs on the east and west; there is a smaller dome over either transept and a tiny one over the nave. The projecting entablature of the temple is adorned underneath with ribs terminating in what resembles a drop, and with an occasional figure. There is an inscription over the doorway in Sanskrit, which shows that the temple was built by a Wani-Trimbak Madhava-in the year Viśvavasu, which, if considered as a year of the 3rd Samvatsara from the present, will make the building about 150 years old, i.e. the age assigned by local tradition. The date Saka 1647 is however discoverable in the last 4 words of the 3rd line of the inscription. Sivarâtri there is a small Jatrâ here.

Besides the three buildings above mentioned there is a temple dedicated to Vishnu on the south of Khêd on the bank of the Bhimâ built by Chandiram, a Sâdhu, about 50 years ago, to which the neighbourhood resorts in small numbers on Gokul Ashṭami.

21. Bhîmâśankara, 27 miles N.W. from Khêd, is a temple built at the source of the river Bhîmâ near the crest of the Ghâts and is within the village limits of Bhauargiri. The temple, which is dedicated to Mahâdeva, was built by Nânâ Phadnis on the site on an older one, and his widow built the spire. The entrance portal is elaborately carved. Well-built cisterns near it afford a good water-supply the whole year round; at a distance from the temple towards the northwest is a small eistern which is pointed out as marking the exact source of the sacred river. At this spot, so Hindu mythology relates, Bhîmaka, king of Ayodhyâ, of the Solar line, did (tapaścharyâ) penance before Mahâdeva and implored his pardon on account of having, during a hunting expedition, wounded two deer, into whose bodies the souls of two Rishis had transmigrated: the god pardoned Bhîmaka and offered to grant him any wish he might mention, and Bhîmaka asked that the sweat of Mahâdeva's brow might be converted into a river for the benefit of himself and of mankind. Mahâdeva had just then been engaged in a successful but fatiguing contest with the Rakshasa Tripurasura, and, wearied out by the conflict, was resting from his labours when Bhimaka addressed him: from the sweat of Mahadeva's brow was thus produced the river Bhîmâ. The conjunction of the names Bhîmâ and Sankara, the latter being a synonym of Mahâdeva is probably due to this tradition. There is an annual Jatrà here on Sivarâtri (Magha Vad 14) when as many as 20,000 persons collect together from the neighbouring parts of the Dekhan and Konkan.

- Bhâmchandra hill, 7 miles W. of Châkan within the village limits of Sindê close to the boundary of Bhâmboli. The hill rises steep from the plain on the south and west, and in the escarped southern side are the caves in question. After a somewhat arduous climb a cistern is passed on the right; the villagers call it Sita's bath. A little further on after rounding a promontory the principal cave of the series is reached; it is small, faces south-west, and is now dedicated to Bhamchandra Mahadeva. There is a cistern on the left as one enters. The entrance which is 8 feet in height by 13 feet wide is now built up, leaving a small arched doorway in the centre. The temple is very nearly square, rather more than 14 feet long by 15 feet wide; the height is 7 feet and the roof is flat. Four pillars, two on either side, divide the cave into three compartments, the side compartments being each adorned with two pilasters similar to the pillars, and having each a niche with pillared jambs and canopy. There is a chhatri frame carved in the roof. The pillars are massive and square, but half way up are chamfered so as to be octagonal. The capitals have massive brackets. This temple has an inner shrine occupied by a linga and an image. The inner is separated from the outer cave by an elaborately sculptured doorway, the opening being 2 feet by 4 feet high; the carvings are chiefly of human figures. There are no Buddhist ornaments about the cave. The rock, of which this hill is composed, is of a soft character and the screen or doorway dividing the two shrines has had to be cemented or mortared by the villagers to keep it in its place. Further on is a cell or rather cavern, and at some little distance, and in the middle of an escarpment, and therefore reached with difficulty, is a cave, at the end of which is a winding cavernous road, low and narrow, said to permeate the hill and to be many kos in length. There are one or two inaccessible caves higher up; and beyond, on the west is also a small cave. The Gaurava of Bhamchandra Mahadeva is supported by inam land in Bhâmboli.
 - 23. Alandi, on the Indrayani, is a small municipal town possessing a population of 1649 persons and an annual municipal revenue of about Rs. 3500. This income is chiefly derived from the Poll tax levied on the pilgrims who resort to Jñanoba or Jñaneśvara's shrine on Kartika Vad 11th and following days. There are small Jatras on the Vadi Ekadasi of every month, but that of Kartika witnesses the assembling of a very large concourse at Alandi, as many as 50,000 being the estimated average attendance at the jatra. The town is a Devasthan with a revenue of Rs. 1080, and the management of the temple is in the hands of six administrators elected by the inhabitants, the election being subject to the confirmation of the Collector, and conferring a life tenure on the elected. The temple of Jaanesvara is not picturesquely situated, being surrounded by houses. It is entered through three chief doorways named Chandulal's, Sindhia's and the Gaikwar's, the second being the principal and fronting the Bazar. The temple enclosure has an arched corridor running all round, which is now divided into separate compartments used as dwelling houses. The mandapa is large and arched, and built of basalt or trap, and between it and the shrine is an unwalled covered way; the shrine itself consists of a small vestibule and a Garbhara, in the latter of which is Jñanoba's tomb or "Samadh," over which in a sitting posture is the image of the Sadhu dressed in red, and behind him are figures of his patron gods Vithoba and Rukhmai, Jhanêsvara being regarded as an incarnation of Vishnu; both night and day is the Garbhara kept lighted. The shrine is said to have been built three centuries ago by Ambekar Despandê and the large mandapa by Râmchandrarâo Senvê, a Divan of Sindhia's, 125 years ago. The west wall and corridor were erected a century and a quarter since at the Peśwa's expense and the balcony or "Nagarkhana" over the west gateway was constructed by Ganpatrao Gaikwar at an outlay of Rs. 2000 some 30 years back; hence the west entrance bears the name of 'Gâikwâri.' A century and a half ago a descendant of the founder Ambekar Despande built the east and south wall and corridor, and the balcony over the east entrance being erected by Chandulal, a Divan of the Nizam, he gave his name to that doorway. The north corridor has been in existence for a century and a quarter, being constructed at the expense of Sindhia and Kasi Pilaji Wagholkar. The balcony over the gateway is due to Balaji Govind, one of Sindhia's followers, 75 years ago, at a cost of Rs. 8000.

Some account of Jnaneśvara will not be out of place here:-

This celebrated Sådhu was, with his brothers Nivriti and Sopana and their sister Muktâbâi, born about six centuries ago at Alandi. His father was a Sanyâsi and called Chaitanya, and as marriage is forbidden to devotees of that class Jhanesvara and his brothers and sister were regarded as illegitimate and outcasts. They, however, being desirous of admission into the caste of their father, left their native place and made a pilgrimage to Paithan on the Godavari, a town held in high veneration among Hindus, to beseech the Brahmans of that place to absolve them from the crime of illegitimacy and to admit them within the pale of the "Twice-born." The Brahmans of Paithan at first strenously refused to listen to their supplication, but were at length convinced by a miracle performed by Jnanesvara that he and his brethren were not ordinary mortals, but were Avatars of Vishnu and Siva, and that therefore no expiatory rites were necessary. The miracle performed was that of endowing a he-buffalo with speech and causing him to recite the Vedas! Some Brahmans still doubted, and a second miracle becoming necessary, Jñanêśvara took advantage of a Sraddha festival to call down from heaven "the manes" of the host's ancestors. who duly appeared, did justice to the viands offered them, and then vanished. Jnaneśvara and his brethren now bethought them of returning to Alandi, and during their journey thither the Veda-speaking buffalo died; they duly performed the Samâdh ceremonies, and gave him the name of Mhasobâ. This occurred at Kolwâdi, a hamlet of Alê in the Junnar Tâlukâ, and to this day his Samâdh there is worshipped by a large number of devotees on Chaitra Suddha 11. Jñânobâ's most notable miracle after returning to Alandi was on the occasion of the Sâdhu Chângdev's visit to that town. The latter came riding through the air on a tiger and using a snake for a whip; but Jñânobâ determining not to be outdone, went with his brethren to the wall of the town, and striding on it with them caused a portion of it to move forward and meet Chângdev; this wall is still pointed out, and at present surrounds a small temple of Vithobâ on the river bank.

- 24. Châkan, 18 miles N. from Puṇâ, was a place of some importance so far back as the Bâhmani rule when Malik-al-Tijâr in Alâu'd-dîn the II's reign made it his head-quarters (circ. a.p. 1445) during the 7 or 8 years that he was engaged in reducing the Konkan and the Western Ghât regions to the subjection of the Bâhmani Sultân. The fort, which has been dismantled, is nearly square and is strengthened by towers at the four corners: each front too is bastioned; the entrance is from the east and through more than one gateway; the walls are high and the moat at their base deep. There are also the remains of a mud out-work protected by a ditch, which were probably once a portion of the mud fort constructed centuries ago, tradition says, by an Abyssinian polygar and strengthened by Malik-al-Tijâr in the middle of the 15th century. It sustained a memorable siege in 1662, when Phirangaji Narsala, one of Sivâji's officers, held his own for nearly two months against the Moghul army, under Shayishteh Khân, one of Aurangzib's generals.
- 25. Châs-Kamân, on the Bhîmâ, 6 miles N.W. from Khêd, with a population of 2200. In the Peśwâ's time it was a place of some importance, especially in the middle of the last century, when Rakhmabai, the daughter of Balaji Bajirao Peśwa and the sister of Balaji and Raghunathrao, became the wife of Krishnarao Mådhay Joshi of Chas, who is said to have perished at the battle of Panipat. Rakhmâbâi expended a large fortune on the town and constructed a fine ghat to the river, besides building a notable temple on the west near the river, dedicated to Mahâdeva under the name of Somêsvara. The temple is surrounded by a quadrangular enclosure, the exterior walls of which terminate in blank petal-shaped battlements and are bastioned at the four corners; the battlements of the southeast bastion bear each a snake ornament. The enclosure contains some goodly trees; its chief entrance is by the east doorway fronting which and inside is a very striking Dipmal or round Stambha of basalt, ending in an elaborately carved capital with a square abacus above; the receptacles for the lights, a few of which bear sculptured figures in alto-rilievo on their front, are said to number 350; this Dipmal is lighted on the full moon of Kartika only. Beyond the Dipmal and facing the temple is a Nandi on a raised platform and under a domed canopy; the latter has below the dome and on each of the four sides a fine cusped arch slightly ogeed; the Nandî, however, is not worthy of its baldacchino. The temple itself is oblong, consisting of the ordinary mandapa and Garbhara, the latter being surmounted by a chunam and brick dome, the sides of which are adorned with niches, figures, and miniature domes so usually the adjuncts of a Dekhan temple. Three elaborately pierced and small apertures in the wall-veil admit light into the Sanctum, while three square-headed doorways permit access into the mandapa, those on the north and south having each a grotesquely carved human head as a stepping stone. This town is usually styled Châs Kamân to distinguish it from Châs Nârodi in the north of the tâlukâ, Kamân and Nârodi being villages adjoining the two towns of Chas respectively.

PUNA ZILLA.

7.-PUNA OR HAVELI TALUKA.

Puṇâ.-The principal temples in and about the city of Puṇâ are the following :-

A.—Saiva temples:—Pârvatî, Pâshân, Vriddhêśvara, Bhairava at Yeraudâ, Pańchâlêśvara or the Cave temple at Bhâmburdî, Omkârêśvara, Hariharêśvara, Amritêśvara, Nâgêśvara, Sômêśvara, Râmêśvara, and Sangamêśvara Mahâdeva;

B.—Vaishņava temples:—Bâļāji, Narsobâ, Khunyâ Murlîdhara, Vishņu in Gosampura, Tulsibag Rama, &c., Belbag Vishnu, and Vithoba at Lakdipul;

C .- of Devî: Bhawanî and Tambdi Jogêśvarî; D .- of Ganapati in Kasba.

Parvati.—On a hill south-west of Puna, at about a distance of a mile, there is a collection of temples, approached by a spacious flight of rough cut stone steps with a wooden hand-rail on the left side. From the entrance, which is on a level with the second plateau on the hill, to the right, there is another flight of steps leading to the upper plateau, on which is an irregular octagonal enclosure of vaulted, terraced roof buildings. Within this enclosure there is a cut-stone kerbed platform 72' × 66½'; on this the temple of Parvati and Sambhu is built of brick and lime masonry $33\frac{1}{2}' \times 27\frac{1}{2}'$ and $45\frac{1}{2}$ feet high, having open verandahs on three sides and a spire above, with stucco ornaments, surmounted by five ornamental sheet-copper domes, with finials plated with gold, the centre one being the higher and larger. At the four corners of this platform are 4 small temples with spires of burnt brick and lime masonry, each 6'x6' and 161 feet high, dedicated to Devi Pârvatî, Ganapati, Vishnu and Sûrya Nârâyana, respectively. In front of this, to the east side of the platform, is a fountain and a stone shed for Nandi 74' x 74' and 10 feet high. Opposite and outside the enclosure is an upper-storeyed building called the Nagarkhana. On the plateau is a wada, or enclosure of plain buildings chiefly occupied by the devotees of the Samsthans.

In rear of the wada, in a small quadrilateral enclosure measuring 83' × 531, is a temple of Kartika Svami, of cut stone and burnt brick and lime, with a stucco ornamental pinnacle, surmounted with a dome of the same material and a finial. The measurements of this temple are $14\frac{1}{2}$ × $14\frac{1}{2}$ and 32 feet high. A jatra is held every year on Kartika Purnima in honour of this god. Women are prohibited

To the south of the temple of Kartika Svami is the temple of Vishnu. The exterior dimensions of this temple are $35\frac{1}{2}' \times 35\frac{1}{2}'$ and $65\frac{1}{2}$ feet high, on a platform of cut stone $41\frac{1}{2}' \times 52\frac{1}{2}'$ and 2 feet high. To the south and west side of this temple, is the ruin of an upperstoreyed burnt brick and lime masonry building, called the Divankhana, said to have been burnt down by lightning in 1815 A.D. These temples were erected by Peśwâ Bâlâji Bâjirâo, in the year 1758 A.D. The annual Government grant for this Samsthana is said to be Rs. 18,000.

Páshán Haveli, 5 miles to the north-west of Puna, is a temple of Someśvara Mahâdeva, on the bank of a small river called Râmnadî. The temple is in a walled courtyard. The exterior dimensions of the temple are 17' x 17'. It is built with a cut stone facing up to a cornice 91 feet high; from this the dome commences, which is of burnt brick and plaster; the spire is 20 feet high. Attached to this temple is a mandapa of cut stone up to the cornice. The exterior measurements are 24' x 21'; the cornice is surmounted with corbels, projecting about a foot. The building has a vaulted roof, surmounted with cut-stone parapet and cornice, rather ruinous. About 3 feet from this in front is another mandapa. The plinth is 2 feet high of cut stone, and $22\frac{1}{2}' \times 21\frac{1}{2}'$. On this is built a brick domed building measuring inside 16' 3" × 15' 9", with four pointed arches one on each side; the inside height, being 16 feet, is plastered with chunam; the walls and stuccoed ceiling are painted with pictures of different deities and anchorites. The vault of this building is surmounted with a parapet having four octagonal minarets, one at each corner, with domes; the outside stucco plaster is highly ornamented, but in a very dilapidated state. In front of this second mandapa is a shed for Nandî, supported on stone pillars, with a vault surmounted with masonry dome. Further in front at the distance of 8 feet, on a stone platform 28' x 21' 8" there is a temple of Maruti, 61' x 6', of plain cut stone with cornice. Behind this temple is an unfinished Dipmal of the form of a frustum of a cone, of stone up to 6 feet, the whole height being 30 feet; the upper 24 feet is of brick and line; the top is approached by a winding flight of steps inside. On both sides of this column are small temples of Ganapati and Bhairava, of equal size, 81 × 81, of plain cut stone, surmounted with masonry spires or domes with stucco plaster ornament. Above this platform, 7 feet high, is the entrance platform approached by steps recessed; this platform is partly paved. The entrance is a flat arched vestibule with horse-shoe form arches. Near the entrance is a dharmasala of common sun-dried brick and mud consisting of one open hall enclosed on three sides and 28' × 11½'. In the courtyard is a square unfinished kachcha building, intended for homakunda now in ruins; the roof is nothing but bare rafters. This temple of Pashan was built by the mother of Sahu Maharaja about the year 1726 A.D. The annual Government grant for this Samsthana is Rs. 1013. The first mandapa is said to have been built by the Daphles, and the second by a Bhata named Chitrâo. These mandapas were built about eighty years ago.

Vriddhéśvara.— To the north of the city of Puṇā near the village of Bhâmburḍa, on the bank of the river Mulla, is the temple of Vriddhéśvara, which is approached from the river bank by a flight of steps $25\frac{1}{2}$ feet broad called a ghât, with circular bastions on both sides of the several landings, leading to an enclosure $70' \times 51'$. The enclosing wall is of stone and brick, pointed outside and plastered inside, with an entrance door from the river side, set in cut stone framing; the floor of the enclosure is paved with rough stone. The temple is $28' \times 19\frac{1}{2}'$ built of ashlar masonry up to about 12 feet, with vaulted roof and pinnacle of stucco, ornamental and surmounted with domes and finials. In front of this temple is a maṇḍapa, $25\frac{1}{2}' \times 23'$ on a stone plinth; the roof is terraced, supported on heavy posts and post-plates, joists and planking; there is a sacred bull placed in this mandapa.

In the same enclosure 31 feet apart, is another temple dedicated to Siddheśvara, built on a plinth 4 feet high and 38' × 20'; the front portion of this temple is of stone and lime masonry, and plastered. The rear portion has a stone superstructure; the roof over the front portion is vaulted, surmounted with low dome and finial; the roof over the rear portion is also vaulted, a cut stone cornice projecting over corbels, surmounted with a pinnacle and domes with finials, ornamented with stucco. Next to this temple, on the north side, is a dharmaśala, not worthy of note.

Opposite the temple of Siddhésvara is a sacred bull under a canopy supported on four pillars. The east side entrance to the enclosure of these temples is ornamented with stucco plaster, with horse-shoe arch over it, approached by a flight of steps; near the steps is a masonry Dîpmâl.

This temple with ghật and dharmasala is said to have been built by one Vallabhdas Tanksali, a Gujarati, in the time of the Peśwas.

Bhavant.—The temple of Bhavanî is situated in Bhavanî Peth, in the city, in an enclosure $97' \times 58'$ on a stone plinth 3 feet high and 16' 7" by 25' 9". The temple is 12' 9" square; the superstructure is of stone 12 feet high, with fine cornice projecting on corbels; roof vaulted, surmounted with a sikhara and finial. In front is a vestibule, $14' \times 10'$, supported on stone pillars, with scolloped arches. In front of this is a maṇḍapa $24\frac{1}{4}' \times 21\frac{1}{2}'$ terraced and with tiled roof, supported on posts. In front of this is a small Dipmâl. Near the temple is a well called Bâw, with steps, and two dharmaśalàs of common structure on one side, and on the other a long tiled building, occupied by the devotees of the temple. Over the entrance is a small upperstoreyed room for a Nâgarkhâna. This temple is said to have been built by one Ranguâth Sadâsiva Satavne, a shroff, about a century ago.

Bâlâji.—This temple is situated in the same pêth opposite to that of Bhavânî on the other side of the road a little to the east, on a platform 33' 9" × 32, and consists of a shrine and vestibule; the former is 194 feet square; the superstructure up to the cornice is of cut stone, the roof is vaulted, surmounted with a sikhara and domes with finials, ornamented with stucco plaster, and contains images of different deities. This temple is in a mala (garden) with a well. In front is an enclosed mandapa of common materials, very dark inside, and rather ruinous. The entrance to this temple has an upper storey over a stone vestibule called the Nagarkhana, in front of which is a fine Dipmal. This temple is said to have been constructed by one Godaddas Bairagi, about a century ago. The expenses are defrayed by the product of the mald in which it is situated. The temple is said to have been struck with lightning, some 25 years ago, and received slight damage. Close to and in front of this temple are two dharmasalas one on each side; on the other side of the road are three small temples of Ganapati, Maruti and Bhairava.

Temple of Bhairava at Yeraudâ.—To the north of Puṇâ, on the left bank of river Mullâ Muṭhâ, on a hill near the village of Yeraudâ is the temple of Bhairava, consisting of a shrine and vestibule; the former is $29' \times 20'$ and 7 feet high, cut into the rock. The vestibule has a flat slabbed roof, with thin pointed arches and pillars 8 feet broad; and has an open shed in front on posts and postplates with flat terraced roof on planks and joists. It is $17' \times 16\frac{1}{2}'$ and $8\frac{1}{4}$ feet high, and contains an image of Nandâ. In front is a Dipmâl. There are one or two small temples besides within the enclosure wall. The temple is reached by a roughly paved flight of steps 5 feet broad, through an entrance door, under an

Cave Temples of Bhâmburdt.—To the west of Puṇā near the village of Bhâmburdi, is a cave temple cut in the rock under ground, and called Pañch Pândavâchî Guhâ. In the temple cave are the images of Sâmba, Devî Ambîkâ, Vithobâ, Rakhumâî, and Gaṇapati. The cave is 77' × 74' and 10¼ feet high. It is a hall supported on thirty pillars, 2½ feet square, and is open on one side.

The enclosure in front is open, and in the centre of it is a round shed supported on 14 pillars; a portion of it with two pillars has fallen down. In this shed is a Nandi. The bases of the pillars are slightly ornamented.

Narsobâ.—The temple of Narsobâ is situated in Peth Sukrawâr, Kalkorepurâ, near Kalewawar, and consists of a shrine, surmounted with a dome. The body of the temple is of stone; the śikhara is of bricks and stucco plaster. In front is a sabhā maṇḍapa on wooden posts and post-plates, with wooden cusped arches and tiled roof, wooden plank ceiling, with ornamental cornice. The length of the maṇḍapa is 40 feet, and breadth 28 feet; the temple itself is $17' \times 9' \times 15'$ 3", and is within a paved courtyard. To the left is a long hall $51' \times 9\frac{1}{4}'$ open on the inner side, the rear being enclosed with a wall painted with pictures. This temple is said to have been built by one Nārāyaṇa Wāman Jośi, a priest, about a century ago. In the shrine is the marble image of Narsobâ.

Khunyâ Murltdhara.—This temple is in the same street, to the north, within a partly paved courtyard. The entrance to it from the east side is of neat cut stone, and has an upper storey for a Nâgarkhâna. The temple consists of a shrine and a vestibule, the latter supported on ornamental stone pillars with three horse-shoe shaped arches. The body of the temple is of stone; the roof is surmounted by polygonal domes of sizes, ornamented, of brick and stucco plaster. In front of the vestibule is the sabhâ maṇḍapa in which is a small shrine on a stone platform with an image of Garuḍa made of marble. In the temple is the image of Vishņu also of marble. The temple is $28' \times 23\frac{1}{4}'$ and the sabhâ maṇḍapa $45\frac{1}{2}' \times 30\frac{1}{2}'$. It is said to have been built by one Dâdâ Gadre, one of the Peśwa's Karbharis, about 90 years ago.

Temple of Omkareśvara is on the south bank of river Mula in Sanwar Peth, in a closed courtyard. It is about 55' square; in the centre is a shrine 24' x 24' (external dimensions) in which is the image of Samba. This whole building is divided into nine rooms, one enclosed in the centre and eight round it, with archways between each other, which are narrowed and pointed at the crowns. The rooms have separate vaulted roofs of cut-stone beautifully carved in the inside. The body of the building is of cut-stone, with plain projecting cornice supported on ornamental corbels. The top of each of the vaulted compartments is surmounted by domes, with finials of brick and stucco-plaster, which is out of repair in places; the middle dome is the highest. On each side of the temple the courtyard enclosure contains rows of rooms for the use of devotees but now vacant. In the courtyard opposite the temple is the image of Nandî in a small building on a platform. The courtyard is paved, and a portion in front is raised. The entrance to this courtyard is in three compartments, with archways recessed on the sides and between each other, the former having raised platforms under them for sitting in. Each compartment has a cut-stone vaulted roof with ornamented cornice, with diamond-shaped spaces at the corners. The front enclosure of the courtyard has also rows of rooms on the inside, on both sides of the entrance, and on the outside vaulted roofed compartments (two on each side of the entrance) having open archways, narrow pointed at the crowns; in front, the compartments on one side contain the images of Maruti and Sani, and in one of the two on the other side is the image of Ashtabhuja Devi; the second is vacant. The entrance and the temple is strong and highly finished. In front of the entrance outside is a small dharmasala used by the Hindus for performing ceremonies after the dead bodies have been burnt on the river bank, which is approached by two flights of steps. There is also a small temple of PUNA ZILLA. 95

Vishņu, of a very inferior description. Behind it is a small cut-stone Dipmāl and a few tombs of various sizes and shapes. This temple is said to have been constructed by one Sivarāma Janārdana Chitrão, a Bhikshuka in the time of the Peśwas, about 150 years ago.

Temple of Hara Hareśvara is in Sanwâr Peth, in a small courtyard, and consists of a shrine and enclosed octagonal vestibule with three horse-shoe shaped small archways on three sides. The shrine is surmounted with a dome of brick and stucco plaster, and ornamented like the other temples. The vestibule has a terraced roof. In front is an image of Nandî, on a platform under a canopy supported on four pillars and archways surmounted with small domes, now in ruins. The courtyard is partially paved. In one corner of it is a small upperstoreyed building occupied by a devotee; on the top of the doorway is a small rough stone Dipmâl.

The temple of Amritesvara is situated in Sanwar Peth, on the bank of the river Mula, on a high platform in a paved courtyard, the walls of which are of cut-stone below and brick and lime with a round chunam coping neatly finished. The temple consists of a shrine and open vestibule, the latter being supported on three archways of horse-shoe shape and pillars. The body of the temple is of cut-stone; the shrine is vaulted and surmounted with a dome of stucco plaster ornamented. The platform on which the shrine and vestibule stand is 28 feet by 19 feet and 4 feet high. In front of the vestibule is the image of Nandî under a canopy, supported on four pillars, over a platform of the same height as that of the temple, which is approached by steps on each side, the space between the vestibule and Nandî forming a landing. The entrance to the courtyard is also reached by a flight of steps. On the river side of this temple is another courtyard about 3 feet lower, in which is a temple of Sâmba nearly of the same size, but less ornamental. To the north of this is a verandah, open in front, in which are marble images of Vishnu and Lakshmî, and of Garuda opposite to them. The platform of this courtyard is about 25 feet above the bed of the river, which is approached by a flight of steps and sloping ground. These temples were constructed by Sivarama Janardana Chitrao, about a century ago.

The temple of Ganapati is situated in Kasba Peth, in a courtyard, and consists of a shrine and enclosed room on a platform 35' × 23'; in front of this is a sabha mandapa 28' × 23', supported on posts and post-plates of wood, beautifully carved ceiling, with tiled roof. In front, on a high stone platform, is a small plain enclosed temple in which there is an image of the (Undir) rat. Behind this is a cut-stone Dipmal in ruins. At the entrance side of the temple is an upperstoreyed building; the lower storey is open in front; the rear and end walls are decorated with pictures; occasionally used as a dining room.

The temple of Vishnu is situated in Gosavi Pura, Somawar Peth, in a courtyard, and consists of a shrine and vestibule. The vestibule is supported on highly ornamental stone pillars and three horse-shoe arches; the body of the temple as usual is of cut-stone; the shrine is vaulted, surmounted with a stucco dome, ornamented and painted. In front of the vestibule is a sabha mandapa on posts and post plates; in the courtyard is a small fountain of water, with some trees round it. This temple was constructed by a Gosavi Narpatgir, some 30 years ago. The courtyard wall is finished off with ornamented stucco plaster all round. In the court are other buildings; in the shrine is a marble and large, are all surmounted with gold gilt finials.

The temple of Nageśvara consists of a shrine and enclosed room in front, of stone, and dome of stucco plaster, much out of order. A sabha mandapa in front is chiefly of wood work, 38½ long and 24′8″ broad, with ornamental wooden ceiling and gallery all round. In front is an image of Nandî in the mandapa. At the entrance is an upper storey for a Nagarkhana, and on the walls figures of Rishis, &c., are painted.

The temple of Someśvara is situated in Kapudgunja near Aditwâr Peth. in an enclosure partly paved. It consists of a shrine and vestibule, open in front, supported on two stone pillars. The body of the temple is of rough stone, surmounted with brick and chunam dome; the entrance door frame and shutters of the shrine are covered with ornamental brass sheets. The temple is 19½ × 14; in front is a sabhâ mandapa 29 × 28', open, supported on square wooden posts and ornamented plank ceiling with terraced roof. In the mandapa, on a small platform of decayed stones, is the image of Nandî, with a plain little shrine over it. On both sides of the temple are other shrines, smaller in dimensions, 8' 4" × 8' 4", with small open verandahs in front; in one is the image of Ganapati of common stone and in the other is that of Parvati. These small shrines are surmounted with domes of brick and stucco plaster, set with different images. In the principal temple is the image of Sâmba, a pindi. In the courtyard are open long buildings used as dharmasalas, and a fountain. This temple is said to have been constructed by Ganapatrão Nâtû, a Sâvkâr, n the time of Peśwa, about a century ago. At the entrance is a Nagarkhana of stone and timber; this is a recent addition. The courtyard has a small garden near the fountain and some trees.

The temple of Râmeśvara is in Sukrawar Peth, near Khasgiwala's garden, and consists of a shrine, on a platform 25' x 25'. In front and attached to it is another platform 25' x 25%, on which is an enclosed mandapa. The body of the shrine is of brick and lime plastered, and that of the mandapa is of cut stone; the walls inside are painted with pictures of Rishis and gods; the shrine is surmounted with a spire of brick and stucco plaster, ornamented; the latter has a smaller plain dome at the top. In front is another open sabha mandapa on square wooden posts 291 × 271, with a gallery on three sides, approached by a stair-case on the outside. In this mandapa, in front, is an image of the sacred bull on a small low platform under a canopy, supported on four pillars, surmounted with cornice and a dome with finial. The courtyard is partly paved; the entrance and portion of front wall is of fine cut stone with a small doorway. This temple is said to have been constructed by Bhâu Sâheb Khâsgiwâlê in the time of Peśwas, about a century ago. The open sabha mandapa was added about 8 years ago by Mr. Govind Raghunath, a contractor. In the courtyard, on one side, is a long open building used by the devotees, and a large well on the other side.

Tulsibag Temples.—Tulsibag is situated in Budhwar Peth in an enclosed yard. These temples are of very long standing, but the principal shrine dedicated to Rama is being renewed with additions to its dome and sides. The sabha mandapa is already completed 48'×41'; the shrine is 19'×19', with an open vestibule. The body of the shrine is of cut stone as usual, and the top of it is surmounted with a high spire, set with columns and domes of sizes, and will of course be of stucco plaster. In the shrine are the images of Rama, Laksh-mana and Sîtâ. On each side are smaller shrines of Gaṇapati and Sâmba. Behind the large shrine are small temples of Seshaśâyi, containing small images of Mâruti, Gaṇapati, and Viṭhobâ and Rakhumâî. In front of the principal temple, on a high platform, in a shrine, is a large stone image of Mâruti. This temple is said to have been constructed by Nâro Appâji, Peśwâ's Daftardâr, about 125 years ago. The present additions are being made by one Mr. Naudrâm Sundarji Nâik, a contractor. The entrance has Nâgarkhâna. This temple is approached by a paved lane, from under a treble-storeyed building. In the courtyard are other small temples not worthy of note.

Belbag is an old temple consisting of a shrine and a very small simple mandapa. The shrine is of the usual construction and contains marble images of Vishnu and Lakshmî; on each side of it are smaller shrines of Ganapati and Sâmba. In front is the image of Garuda in a shrine like that of Mâruti in Tulsibâg. In the courtyard is a well and small houses for devotees to live in. This temple is said to have been constructed by Nânâ Phadnavîs, the Peśwâ's Kârbhâri, about a century ago.

The temple of Vithobâ is situated in Nârâyanâ Peth, in a small courtyard to the south-east of the Nârâyanâ Peth Bridge called Lâkdipul, and consists of a shrine and an open vestibule supported on pillars and arches of ornamented cut stone. The shrine is surmounted by a spire of stucco plaster, highly ornamented, and set with images of Rishis and animals. In the shrine is the image of Vithobâ and Rakhumâî, and in the vestibule are those of Gaṇapati, Vishṇu and Lakshmî and other deities. The platform on which the shrine and vestibule are constructed is $24' \times 16'$. Attached to the shrine is an enclosed sabhâ maṇḍapa with a tiled roof, without ceiling, $53' \times 39'$. The entrance to the courtyard is of stone and has a small upper storey for Nâgarkhâna. In front of the sabhâ maṇḍapa is a small shrine in which an image of Garuḍa is set. This temple is said to have been constructed by one Joti Bâwâ Bhikshuka some century and a half ago.

The temple of Tâmbdi Jogêśvari is situated in Budhwâr Peth and consists of a shrine and open vestibule supported on three arches and pillars. The courtyard is very small, and contains two other small shrines dedicated to Vishņu and Mahâdeva. In front of the latter is the image of the sacred bull under a small canopy. Besides, there are small temples of Gaṇapati and Mahâdeva. To the left of the shrine is a verandah open in the front. The framework of the entrance to the shrine is covered with ornamented sheet brass. In the shrine is the image of Jogêśvarî; in the vestibule are the images of Nâgobâ, Vithobâ, Rakhumâî and Ganapati.

Sangameśvara Mahadeva.—This temple, as its name signifies, is at the confluence of the river Mulâ and Muthâ to the north-west of Puṇa, and on the south bank of Mulâ Muthâ. It is dedicated to Mahadeva, and is approached by a flight of steps or ghât. The temple consists of a shrine and open verandah on stone pillars. The body of the structure is of stone, and the shrine is surmounted by a double spire of brick and stucco plaster. Over the entrance door is a high minaret approached by steps inside the structure. The minaret is set with human and animal images, and is much out of repair now. On the left as you enter is a small shrine in which is a large image of Mâruti. Behind the temple is a tomb said to be of some member of the Holkar family; the enclosure is a garden containing orange and plantain trees. On the platform of the ghât abutting the temple enclosure, outside, are two open verandahs used as dharmaśalas. The tomb is an excellent specimen of beautiful cut-stone work, and is surmounted with a low stone dome. This temple is said to have been constructed by a tailor, and the ghât, minaret, and enclosure wall by Harinamgir Gosavi, the former about a century ago, and the latter about forty years ago. In front of the temple is the image of Nandî on a platform. In the shrine is the image of Ashṭabhujā Devî of marble. In the vestibule is the image in stone of Ganapati.

8 .- MAWAL TALUEA.

28. The cave temples at Kärlê are well known and have been surveyed (see Cave Temples).

29. Bhaja, 3 miles S. from Karlê, -a small series of very early Buddhist caves: surveyed (see Cave Temples).

30. Bedså, 6 miles S.W. from Khadkalå; another smaller group of Buddhist caves (see Cave Temples).

31. Pâțan, 1 mile S.E. from Kârlê station: a rude unfinished cave with a dâgoba in it, and the beginning of another cave.

32. Ayarâ, 3 miles W. from Talegânw Dâbhâdê: some caves, unvisited (a).

- 33. Nånoli, 3 miles N. of Talegånw Dåbhåde on the left bank of the Indrayani:—Caves in the escarpment of the hill, a mile north of the village. A steep climb three-fourths up the hill brings the traveller to the base of a high scarp facing south-west, skirting which a cistern and a cell are first passed, and then a high flight of steps rudely cut and well worn is reached; ascending them a square flat-roofed cave is entered about 18' × 18', with a height of upwards of 7 feet; this excavation is now used as a temple to Feringåbåi; a small cell is caverned out of the south side wall. Further on the escarpment is hollowed out into two small cells.
- 34. Sêlârwâdi excavations are high up in a hill about 2 miles to the southeast of Talegânw Dâbhâdê, and are most of them in the village limits of Gahunjê and facing south-west. The north-west caves are in Selarwadi, which is a hamlet of Taleganw, and consist each of 2 or 3 cells only; they are nearly inaccessible and have some fine Champu trees (Mesua Ferrea) near them. The southwest excavations possess more merit; at the base of the scarp, out of which they are hollowed, is a narrow foot-path, pursuing which a two-celled cave high up in the cliff is first passed and then a fine cistern; 2 cells succeed, one with an inscription of 5 lines cut on its outer face (see No. 10), close to which, but further south, is a large excavation consisting of a nave or vestibule 24 feet by 18 feet. with 4 cells on either side and of an inner shrine, near the end of which are what would seem to be the remains of a dagoba, viz., an abacus of 4 slabs, the lower the smaller, pendent from the roof, and an indistinctly traced base of the drum, the latter is now occupied by a śalûnkhâ and linga. The roof is flat and about 9 feet from the ground. The entrance to this cave is now walled up with two round arched doorways as means of ingress. Further on are a cistern and well.
- 35. Lohagad, 4 miles S. of Kårlê. The fort is on a striking hill in the same range as the neighbouring Fort of Visâpur. At the foot of the escarpment below the fortifications is the hamlet of Lohawâdi, embosomed in trees and plentifully supplied with water. The fortifications consist of an outer and inner line of defence, and are entered through four formidable gateways in succession called the Ganesa, the Narayana, the Hanumana, and the Maha gates, the last introducing to the summit of the hill. The hill is a fine plateau of great extent, and was once extensively built over, as is shown by the ruined walls and foundations still existing. There is no lack of cisterns and water. Lohagad is a fortress of some antiquity and importance: in 1485 Malik Ahmed, the founder of the Nizâmshâhi dynasty at Ahmadnagar successfully besieged it; and a century and a half later, during the struggle which ultimately led to the establishment of the Maratha power by Sivaji, Lohagad was not overlooked as a place of strength; in 1648 Sivâji surprised it, but 18 years later had to surrender it to Aurangzib's Lieutenant, Jaysing,—retaking it, however, in 1670. When the Marâtha rule was firmly established its strength and position marked Lohagad out as a suitable place for a Kamavisdar's Treasury and Kacheri. The hill is the scene of an 'Urus' each Paushya full moon, to the tomb of Sheikh Umar, who is supposed to have been a celebrity on the hill and to have been buried there before Lohagad became a fortress. The long, narrow north-west spur of the hill is called 'Bichu Kanta' from its supposed resemblance to a scorpion's sting.

PUNA ZILLA.

- 36. Visâpur: The fort which crowns an adjoining and higher hill is of larger area than that of Lohagad, but not so strong either artificially or naturally. It is said to have been constructed by Bâlâji Viśvanâth Peśwâ. Its entrance gateway is now in ruins but the walls encircling the hill are in tolerable preservation. On the east, there is a well-built tank, and there are other tanks and cisterns on the hill. A small temple of Mahâdeva within the fortifications is supported by a Dewasthân allowance; this temple is not far from the Peśwâ's residence, now a ruin.
- 37. Râjmâchi is a fortress on the crest of the Sayhâdri range a few miles N. of the Bhor Ghât. It is more than once mentioned in Marâtha history during the struggles of Sivâji and his successors with the Moghuls.

XI.—THÂNÂ ZILLA.

1.-SALSETTE TALUKA.

1. Ghodabandar.—Old church dedicated to St. John, monasteries, and fort. The church is now a bungalow. Owing to the influence of a Pir buried close by, all the efforts of the builders to construct a tower or spire are said to have failed and a Muhammadan dome was the result of their labours. A party of Śivâji's troops tried to surprise Ghodabandar when in the hands of the Portuguese in 1672, but were repulsed.

2. Borwali-Station, on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway:—at Montpezir (Mandapésvara), old churches, watch tower, convent and caves, which have been turned into a crypt for the church dedicated to N. S. da Conceição. College for the education of orphans. Duperron speaks of the Marâthas after destroying the church carrying the timber to Thâna. Over the college door, is an inscription with arms of Portugal to the effect that the edifice was built in 1623 by order of Infant Dom John III of Portugal. In the Patel's garden are some very curiously carved memorial stones, with sea-fights sculptured upon

3. Kanheri Caves.--Kanheri village. The well-known Kanheri Rock-temples (see Cave Temples).

4. Amboli, Magathana, and Kondivte have rock-temples (see Cave Temples of India).

5. Dharavi.-Old fort and tank.

6. Mur (Versowa village).—An old fort rebuilt by the Marathas.

7. Bandora.—An old Agoada or fort at the Point, with following inscription:—

ESTE. BALVAR TE. SEFESEM LOVOR. DONO ME. DEIESVS EM. 1640.

According to Da Cunha the Portuguese fleets supplied themselves with water here. There are a number of old Roman Catholic churches about Salsette, many of which were destroyed when the Marathas conquered the island in 1738.

8. Chemur, near Kurle, probably the Chemuda or Chemula of inscriptions and the Timula or Simula of Greek writers.

2.—Bassein Taluka.

9. Bassein or Wasai.—Fine fort and old Portuguese churches with inscriptions: well-known.

10. Nirmal Village.—Temples and tanks. Pilgrimage here in the cold weather, in the month of Kartika. Jatra on 11th Kartika. The Portuguese or rather the Inquisition pulled down the temple and desecrated the tirtha and caused the linga of Siva to disappear. On the Marathas taking possession of Bassein, Nirmal was again purified, a tank constructed, and temples built.

11. Jivdhan, Virar Village.—Fort, tanks, and caves, seemingly of early origin.

12. Tungar Hill.—Tanks, Tongéśvara.—Temple half way up the hill with carved stones (a).

- 13. Pelar.—Temple and two large stones, with long inscriptions (a).
- 14. Parol.—Three temples with handsomely carved stones (a).
- 15. Mândvi.-Fort and carved stones.
- 16. Tansa River.—Along banks here and there are carved stones (a).
- 17. Kamandrug.-Old hill fort.
- 18. Agashi.-Arnala Fort built by the Portuguese. Tank.

Inscription in Marathi stating that the fort was built during the reign of Bajirao I. in Saka year 1659, A.D. 1737, by an architect named Baji Tulaji.

- 19. Sopåra.—The Soupara of Ptolemy, the Sopara of the Periplus, the Subara of the early Arab voyagers, and the Surpåraka of the Cave Inscriptions. There is a village close by in Måhim bearing a very similar name, Saphala, but it never seems to have been a place of note.
 - 20. Karbão.-Old Portuguese Fort.

3.-MAHIM TALUKA.

- 21. Kelve and Sirgaum.-Old forts.
- 22. Asheri.—Asheri Fort described by Gemelli Careri. Besides being seated on the top of a hill, where there is no higher ground to command it, a crooked path cut out of the mountain, along which two men cannot go abreast, leads up to it and is defended by several guards who might withstand an army, by only rolling down stones placed there for the purpose. Dickinson described it after the Marâthas had held it 80 years as accessible only at one point and of such natural strength that with a handful of men to defend it, it might justly be considered impregnable. The latter part of the ascent is up an almost perpendicular staircase (with a precipice of several hundred feet immediately below it) hewn out of the solid rock, forty feet higher. (Da Cunha's Bassein, page 206.)
 - 23. Kaldrug, Tandulwari, and Tak Mak .- Old forts.
 - 24. Târâpur.—Old fort repaired by the Marâthas in European style.
- 25. Pargaum.—A gadda karao or curious boundary mark with donkey and woman.

4. - DAHANU TALUKA.

- 26. Mahâlakshmî.—Very peculiar and conspicuously shaped hill. Shrine very holy and a pilgrimage to it in March.
 - 27. Gumbîrgad.—Vihali village, a very large hill fort.
 - 28. Segwå.-Shishne village, an old hill fort.
- 29. Chikle.—Fort. Anquetil Duperron, 1760, says this was repaired to protect inhabitants from pirates.

- 30. Dâhânu and Umbergaum.-Old forts.
- 31. Barat Hill.-Kondvireh village,-fort and tanks.
- 32. Sanjan.- Fort; this place is that to which Parsi fire was originally brought by Parsis.
 - 33. Indurgadh.-Karambeli village, fort.
 - 34. Katalwara.-An old fort.

5 .- WARA TALUKA.

- 35. Koj .- Fine hill fort and tanks.
- 36. Gunj.—A temple of Śri Bhargavarama, tank and ruins.
- 37. Tilsê.—Temple and sacred pool in islet in Vyturni River. Pilgrimage in hot weather.
- 38. Wârâ.—Remains of temples and tanks; an inscription discovered here, of the Sîlâhâra dynasty, is in the Bombay Asiatic Society's Museum (a).

6.—SHAHPUR TALUKA.

- 39. Atgâm.—Remains of an old temple.
- 40. Vihigam.—Old fort close to Reversing Station and past Kasara Station, Great Indian Peninsula.
- 41. Måhuli.—On the summit of a most striking mountain are the remains of a fine old fort: in two of the gate bastions are caves with some Hindu and Muhammadan remains and inscriptions. The only Hindu inscription is on a Satt stone; first line illegible; 2nd "Srî Padmåvati Satî." Two Musalmân inscriptions on the Idgah, one fallen and the other in situ. Four more picked up lying about are now in charge of Mulna Shahpur. When Jîjîbâi, Sivâji's mother, was flying from the Muhammadan troops from 1633 to 1636, she with her young son frequently took refuge in this fort. In 1670 Moro Trimal, the Peśwâ or Prime Minister of Sivâji, sustained a repulse at this fort from the Moghul troops with reported loss of 1,000 men. After a seige of two months, the fort, however, surrendered to him.
 - 42. Mokada Peta, Bhopatgarh.—Kurlot village, old fort, and tanks.
- 43. In Wâshâli in Mokhâda is a rockeut temple called Wâse, situated on the north slope of a small hill. It was blocked up for about 3 to 4 feet with earth which has partly been removed and the remaining is being excavated at the expense of Mr. Gibson, in the hope of a kunda being found. The inner space is nearly square, about 12'×12'. The height about 6' 6". In the rock facing the door on either side of a niche, are two images each about 3' high. They appear to have very large ears, and with their arms and hands by their sides are in the attitude of "attention." One has his sign of sex clearly shown, the other not. Over the lintel is a small broken image. There is a porch roofed with stone slabs held up on two pillars, squared, and having the angles cut off in portions. There is in front of these pillars a small enclosure, perhaps 3 feet or 4 feet from them, with walls of rock on either side, and a doorway through two little parapet-like walls 3 or 4 feet high. It is not much of a temple or cave in itself, but its locality makes it important. It appears to be Jaina (a).

7.—BHIWANDI TALUKA.

- 44. Gutara (Dugåd Village).—Fort and tanks.
- 45. Wadaoli.—There is a celebrated modern temple here of Vajråbåi with six indm villages granted by Government for its support, where a pilgrimage is held in Chaitra.
- 46. Lonâd.—A small old temple of Mahâdeva of the style of Ambarnâtha. Also a cave with some sculptures, but it is doubtful whether they are Hindu or Buddhist. The cave has been surveyed (Ind. Ant., IV, 65).
 - 47. Bhiwandi.—A beautiful tomb of Husain Sah (Ind. Ant., IV, 65).
- 48. Gaņeśapuri.—Some sculptures of an old temple (Ind. Ant., IV, 67). Temple of Bhimeśvara Mahâdeva with five or six hot springs.
- 49. Bhiwandi.—Varala Tank. The legend runs that the tank was dug to a certain depth but would not hold water. It occurred to a man in a dream that the tank awaited the sacrifice of a man and his wife within its area, that the said man having proceeded with his wife to the site of the tank during the night touched a large boulder in it. The tank was instantaneously filled with water and they were drowned in it. Latterly it has been enlarged by the Municipality of the town and the Bhiwandi water-supply is obtained from it.
- 50. Akloli.—Fine temple of Mahadeva and five hot springs much resorted to.

8. - KALYAN TALUKA.

51. Kalyan.—An old tank built with stones all round, said to have been constructed by Isaf Adamshah, Raja of Bijapur, in Hijri San 914, supplying three reservoirs in the town with water, a very fine Idjah and Pir's tomb on the banks. Old fort on the bank of river.

Kalyan was taken possession of by the Portuguese in 1535. It afterwards fell into the hands of the Raja of Ahmadnagar and then into those of the Raja of Bijapur in 1636, and lastly into those of the Marathas in 1648, it being the first important place subdued by Sivaji; and Abaji Sondeva who reduced it was made Subhedar of the province.

- 52. Badlâpur,—Temple of Khandobâ.
- 53. Bâwâ Malung.—Kusiwali village, old fort, and two plain cells. Fort, Muhammadan shrine and another called Pâlki. Information required.
- 54. Ambarnatha Village.—Temple of Ambarnatha, a fine temple of the style of the 11th century (A.D. 1060). Though small it is richly carved and of great interest as a good type of its age. Festival held on the Sivaratra in Magha.

Inscription of the Sîlâhâra dynasty in the temple, dated Saka 982, A.D. 1060 (a).

9 .- MURBAR TALUKA.

55. Pulu Sonâla.—Several plain caves, Brahmanical, near the foot of Nânâghât.

10 .- KARJAT TALUKA.

- 56. Chochi Village.—Gumbirnathadeva and caves.
- 57. Kondâne.—Near foot of Rajmachi Hill. A very early vihâra similar to Kârlê with other interesting caves. Pâli inscription (see Cave-Temples).

- 58. Dok Village.—One cave and a Bhairavadeva and cistern.
- Ambivale, near Jambrug, N. from Karjat under Kotaligadh, and to the east of it. It is cut in a long low hill forming the concave side of a curve in the bank of the river. The cave overlooks the river, being about 20 feet above it, sloping rock leading up to it from the water. It consists of a large square hall, about 42 feet by 39 feet and 10 feet high, having four cells off each of three sides (12 cells in all). Around these same three sides runs a low bench similar to bench in Cave 35, at Kanheri. Two doorways, a central and a side one to the right, lead into a verandah, 31 feet long by about 5' 10" deep, the eaves of which are supported by 3' 9" of return of the wall at either end and by four pillars. Between each pair of pillars (except the central pair—the entrance) and the end pillars and pilasters is a low seat, with a parapet wall running along the outer side and forming a back to the seat. The outside of the parapet wall was ornamented in the same style as Cave III at Nasik, with festoons and rosettes, but is so damaged that little now remains.

The pillars are of the same pattern as those of Nasik—pot capitals with the flat tiles surmounting them, but roughly finished. The shafts springing from the seats have no bases. The central pair of pillars have octagonal shafts, the remaining two 16-sided.

The doorways have had modern carved doors inserted, and, with built easements with some figures carved on them in 6 cells at the back, the cave has been converted into a Brahmanical temple. A Jogi, recently dead, occupied the cave, the consequence being that the surface of the rock, in the hall and verandah, could not be much blacker.

On the second pillar of verandah, on the left of entrance, is a Pâli inscription in one vertical line, reading downwards. There are some remains of letters on each of the centre pair of pillars, though indistinct.

60. Kotali Fort.—There are a few excavations of no pretensions or interest in the base of cliffs of Kotali Fort. In one is the ubiquitous red daubed stone converting it into the village shrine of Peth which lies at the foot of the fort. A spiral staircase leads up through the rock for about two-thirds of the way to the fort, and then emerges and continues the rest of the way up the precipitous surface of the rock. The fort on the top is about 150 yards long by 60 yards wide. There are one or two water cisterns, but nothing else.

On the hill side, on the ascent to the fort, are two iron guns about 5 feet long and one small bronze mortar, the latter in good condition. In the excavations in the base of the cliffs are several iron cannon balls lying about.

- 61. Gaur Kamat Village. Some small caves with cisterns.
- 62. Hul Khurd Village.—Six small cells or caves round a central one.
- 63. Mur Village .- A fine temple of Ganapati.
- 64. Kampoli.—A beautiful tank, the finest in the district, of clamped stones and a fine temple built by Nana Phadnavis. There was also an Annachhatra to feed all who came to the place. This has been pulled down, but the huge grinding stones for the grain are still lying close by.
 - 65. Prabal-Moranjan.-Waroshi village: An old hill fort.

- 66. Patraj.-An old fort.
- 67. Hurungânw.—Bhivapuri. Tank said to have been constructed by Pârvatîbâi, widow of Sadâśiva Chimnâji, a member of the Peśwâ's family, at a cost of Rs. 75,000. The tank is situated at the foot of the Kusur Ghât on the road to Punâ.

11. - PANVEL TALUKA.

- 68. Elephanta Caves.—Ghârâpuri Island, well known (see Cave Temples, &c.).
 - 69. Manikgadh.-Old hill fort and tanks.
- 70. Funnel Hill.—Karnala village fort. This, with a number of other petty hill forts belonging to the Râjâs or Koli Polygars, were taken by the Marâthas in 1672.
- 71. Panvel.—Two fine tanks and mosque. One tank, the Vadala, has land granted for its repairs. The other Izraili, constructed by one Kurumsi Hansrâj of Bombay, cost Rs. 80,000.

12.-URAN PETA.

72. Uran.—Two small forts and some old churches; some small cells behind the distilleries either Buddhist or Brahmanical (?).

A full description of all the old forts in the Konkan was written by Captain Dickinson, who took possession of them in 1818 in the name of the British Government. The report, which is in manuscript, is to be found in the Secretariat, Bombay.

XII.-AHMADNAGAR ZILLA.1

1.-KARJAT TALUKA.

- 1. Karjat, 42 miles S.S.E. from Ahmadnagar:—(1) Temple of Mahådeva (Naktichå dêwal) with nine domes and the shrine, the centre dome being cut smooth. The pillars are a good deal cut. The door is opposite the shrine, and on each side of the mandapa are shrines containing images. In the main shrine, which is on a slightly lower level than the mandapa, is a linga. In the wall on each side of the door are a good many carved figures, principally obscene. In front of the door is a bull under a dome, and on the left-hand side of the door is a detached shrine with a linga. (2) Temple of Mahådeva, adjoining the above has 9 domes to the mandapa, and a linga in a pit-like shrine. There is no carving about it.
- 2. Takli, 6 miles north of Karjat. Temple of Khandêśvara Mahâdeva (Hemâdpanti) in ruins. The stones are said to have been taken to build the fort at Parainda (?) between Bârsi and Karmâla.
- 3. Rehekuri, 6 miles N.W. from Karjat. Temple of Komnåtha Mahådeva has 12 domes to the mandapa, one to the shrine, one door, under which is a bull, beside which is a cobra on a detached stone. It is surrounded by a wall which is capped with big stones.
- 4. Korêgânw, 2 miles E. of Karjat. (1) West of the village is an old Hemâdpanti temple of 9 domes to the mandapa; linga in the shrine. (2) Temple of Koreśvara Mahâdeva, old, said to be a Hemâdpanti temple. The shrine only is left. In it are a linga, Nandî, and figures of Gaṇapati and Pârvatî, all in white marble. The pindi of the linga is composed of four faces of Mahâdeva adorned with snakes, and there is a snake on the narrow part of the śâlunkhâ. One Bâburâo Gôvind Vakil is said to have brought these figures to Karmâla from Hindustân about 100 or 150 years ago; and they were brought from Karmâla by Râoji Lakshman, father of the present Kulkarni of Koregânw.
- 5. Rassin, 10 miles S.W. from Karjat. (1) Hemådpanti temple of Mahådeva (Kåladėval): nine domes to the maṇḍapa, one dome to the shrine, and one dome to porch. The pillars are a good deal carved. In the centre of each dome is a carved stone, something like a star; figures on the capitals of the pillars. Three shrines; the main one opposite the door, and one on each side of the maṇḍapa. The main shrine is a pit with a linga in it. A stone platform runs round the temple, about the level of the floor. (2) Temple of Dêvî, said to have been built, with two or three other temples here, by a Wâṇia about 100 years ago. On the site of the present temple, there is said to have been an old brick one 200 or 300 years old, the brick Dipmāls and well attached to which still remain. One of the Dipmāls has a stair inside, and a man at the top can make it oscillate perceptibly. It is 43 feet high, and 22 feet in circumference at the top. The well is of brick, where devotees bathe and make the water most filthy.
- Gurao Pimpri, 8 miles N. from Karjat. Temple of Pimpreśvara Mahâdeva.
 Nine domes to the mandapa; and a linga in a pit-like shrine. The work is all plain; an extra pillar, put in to support one of the stone cross-beams which is cracked, has an inscription on it. There is also an inscription under the door of the compound. There is a ruined temple of Ramesvara Mahadeva in the village (apparently modern) with a ruined baro and drinking trough attached to it.

First three talukas from the return of A. F. Woodburn, Esquire, C. S., No. 194, dated 30th August 1878.

7. Kokangânw, 14 miles N. of Karjat. Hemâdpanti temple and well, both in ruins. Of the temple nothing is left but the shrine. The villagers say the stones were taken for the forts at Nagar, Parainda, and Karmâla, and for the Nimbâlkar's Wâdâ at Mirajgânw.

2. - Śrigundi Taluka.

- Srigundi, 20 miles W.N.W. from Karjat and 32 miles S. from Ahmadnagar. (1) Temple of Vithoba of Hemadpanti masonry, i.e., of large blocks of stones without cement in imbeded courses. Mandapa of nine domes supported on six pillars; shrine -one dome; portico in front-one dome; cobras' heads on capitals of pilasters, and other figures on the capitals of the pillars; shrine on a lower level than the mandapa. There is an inscription on the door step in front of the temple, but the steps appear to be modern. Round the door of the shrine are two rows of figures. The inner row represents females, and the outer one monkeys. On the raised block forming the threshold of the shrine are carved two tigers' heads, one on each side. Projecting from the top of the entrance to the shrine, and from the middle of the front of the mandapa, are carved blocks, resembling those in the temple of Lakshmi Narayana at Mandoganw. The length of the mandapa is about 28 feet and width about 21. The pillars are similar to those of the temple of Lakshmi Narayana at Mandoganw. Externally also the two temples are similar, but what carving there is on the latter gives the shrine the appearance of being built of a succession of pillars packed together, while in the former, being perfectly plain, this effect is not produced. (2) Temple of Rukhmai adjoins the above and is in the same style, but on a smaller scale; both temples have a good deal of carving. (3) Temple of Mahadeva Hatkesvara, the same as the above as to the number of domes. Cobras on the capitals of pillars, and a linga in a pit-like shrine. Style plainer than any of the above. The front of the mandapa is built up with bricks. (4) Temple of Mahâlakshmî, the same as the above as to number of domes. The shrine has been built up, and parts of the mandapa also. It is not used for worship and is in a horrible state of filth. The work appears superior to that of the preceding two.
- 9. Pedgaon, 8 miles south of Śrigundi. There are some old Musalman remains here. The most interesting is a nal for bringing water from the Bhima to the village. The water was raised from the river by an elephant môt still in existence. The nal seems to be in good repair outside. The fort of Pedgaon was built by Khan Jehan in 1673 and called Bahadurgadh. It was an important frontier post of the Moghuls. The fort is in ruins. Besides the elephant môt there is a tower for a Persian wheel, still in pretty good condition. (2) Temple of Malikarjuna Mahadeva—Hemadpanti. Nothing remains but the shrine and two pillars of the mandapa, a linga in the pit-like shrine. No carving except cobras on the capitals of pillars. (3) Temple of Rameśvara Mahadeva:—on three sides of the mandapa are shrines, the door being on the fourth side. The root of the mandapa is of one dome supported on four pillars, the space between the pillars and the wall being covered with plain flat stones. The shrine opposite the door has a linga, on a slightly lower level than the floor of the mandapa. There are cobras on the capitals of the pillars, and a good deal of carving. (4) Temple of Lakshmi Narayana—Hemadpanti. The mandapa is covered by 9 domes. The centre dome and the dome of the shrine are carved. There are three doors to the mandapa; the shrine is on a lower level than the mandapa, and is filled with rubbish. Outside and inside the temple is elaborately carved, and the pillars are beautiful. The carved work has been dreadfully spoiled by the "Arabs." On the outside, the lowest line of carvings consists of elephants, then come tigers, and then figures of all sorts, male and female. On the outside of the wall directly behind the shrine is a figure of Vishau (a). (5) Temple of Baleśvara Mahadeva—Hemadpanti. This has all disappeared but the shrine. There is a linga in the shrine on a lower level than the mandapa; cobras on the capitals of pillars; what is left is nicely carved.

- 10. Kothal, 10 miles N. of Srigundi. Temple of Khandoba on the top of hill: the roof supported by six pillars in octagonal and square sections. The date is unknown, but there is an inscription on an old temple behind the principal one which might be made out. The temple has been struck by lightning, which has left the marks of its course, but not injured the building materially. In front of the temple is a place where the Patel says he used to see people swung round on a pole by a rope with a hook on Margasirsha Sud 6th and Paush Sud 6th.
- 11. Limpanganw, 5 miles S. from Śrigundi. Hemadpanti temple of Siddheśvara Mahadeva. The mandapa has nine domes and the linga is in a sunk shrine. The pillars are fine, and there is a good deal of carving. Lying near the temple are two slabs, one with a cobra cut on it and another with an inscription, of which the date appears to be Saka 1308 (a).
- 12. Belwandi Kothar, 4 miles N. of Śrigundi—Hemadpanti. Baro or well quite perfect. A Hemadpanti temple projects into the baro on one side. There are two doors to the mandapa and one to the shrine, all uncarved; also a dome over the bull, in front of the door. Above this dome is a place for raising water to the top, and a stone water-way running the length of the temple on the roof, and emptying into an old water trough. The shrine is on the same level as the mandapa, and has a linga in it; cobras on the capitals of the pillars; no carving. The baro is not used, as it is supposed to be haunted, a man having been drowned in it once. There is a good deal of mud in it.
- 13. Kolgânw, 12 miles N.W. of Śriguṇḍi. Hemâḍpanti temple of Vâlkeś-vara Mahâdeva, with nine domes; linga in a sunk shrine; pillars much carved, with figures on the capitals, but they are all covered with chunam. Two recesses, unused, one on each side of the maṇḍapa. In front of door the remains of a verandah built of large blocks of stones let into each other in receding courses. A new shrine with a linga on the left of the verandah. In front of the verandah a Nandî under a dome supported by 4 pillars. Over the shrine of the temple is a brick and chunam dome in the usual style. In front of the temple a brick Dipmāl with staircase inside. The original outside of the temple has evidently been removed and replaced by modern masonry.
- 14. Mandogânw Katrâbâd, 20 miles N. of Śrigundi. Temple of Dêvî formerly of Lakshmî Nârâyana; mandapa of nine plain domes, supported by 4 pilars and 8 pilasters. The pillars are in square, octagon, and round sections; on their capitals are various figures, with cobras on the brackets of the pilasters. The shrine is a sunken one with an image of Dêvî; also a large mutilated one of Lakshmî Nârâyana about 5 feet high. The mandapa has three entrances, and the shrine door and main door of the mandapa are well carved. In front is a pavilion on 4 pillars. The outside has not much carving except string courses of lozenge ornament. The outline is broken by a succession of right angles. The mandapa is 24 feet square inside.

15. Devalganw, 8 miles N. from Śrigundi. An old Hemadpanti well, which has been repaired in later times and the old stones broken up, so as to make them manageable, by the modern Wadars.

3. - JAMKHED TALUKA.

16. Arangânw, 10 miles W. of Jâmkhêd. Hemâdpanti temple of Aranesvara Mahadeva, rather larger than usual, but plain. An inscription.

17. Jâmkhêd, 45 miles S.E. from Ahmadnagar (18°43'; 75° 22'). (1) Hemâd-panti temple of Malikârjuna Mahâdeva. The shrine only left, the pillars of the mandapa lie about. (2) Hêmâdpanti temple of Jaṭāśankara Mahâdeva was long buried under the earth and is in good preservation; it resembles the one at

- 18. Telangsi, 11 miles E. from Jamkhed. Hemadpanti temple of Jatasan-kara Mahadeva; nine domes to the mandapa; cobra in pit-like shrine. Cobras on capitals of pillars: no carving. Not far off is a Hemadpanti baro. Four stairs descend from the middle of the four sides. Between the stairs in the wall are niches. The baro is broken at one corner.
- 19. Sirur, 24 miles N. of Jâmkhêd. Temple of Siddheśvara Mahâdeva; nine domes; cobras on the capitals of the pillars. Shrine opposite the door. The front (on both sides of the door) and the entrance to the shrine are nicely carved. There is also a shrine on the left side of the mandapa. In front of the door is a single dome with a Nandî. Roof of temple modern, of chunam.
- 20. Bhalganw, 26 miles N. by E. of Jamkhed and 3 miles N.E. from Sirur. Temple of Bhalesvara Mahadeva; 9 domes on fairly carved pillars with lozenge-shaped ornaments on the faces. One shrine in ruins, another has a mandapa.

21. Dhoke, near Takli, 12 miles N. of Pârnêr:—The Dhokêśvara Cave is a large hall with triple cells, on the east side of one of two rugged hills rising from a stony plateau. The largest is 20 yards deep and 15 wide, the front open and supported by two massive square pillars and two pilasters; a little inside of these another similar row supports a great architrave running right across the temple; and within this, again, is the shrine, hollowed out of a rectangular block left standing from floor to roof, and surrounded by a dark passage.

The chief object of worship is a mean little linga in the central shrine; but there is another to the right of it, faced by a large Nandî carved in situ on the same side; and nearer the light, in a sort of chapel, is a four-armed figure grasping several weapons. One is a live cobra; another, perhaps, the damru or drum, the others indistinguishable. This figure is worshipped under the name of Kal Bhairava. Opposite him are eight dévis called Ashtamatra (one has the head of a pig) accompanied by Bhṛingi and Gaṇapati. They appear in the

Dhumar Lena at Elura, and in the chapel in the east wing of the great cave at at Elephanta. Besides, there are giant dwarpals, Sita, attended by elephants, (on the central architrave,) and a multitude of other figures; some cut in situ, others on detached or even imported stones, and evidently of various ages up to the present. The lesser cave is a triple cell; the inner part separated from the outer by a dwarf partition without gap or doorway. It is approached by a risky stair in the rock, south of the big cave; between them is a larger cistern full of good water. There is no inscription except an unimportant one in modern Marathi on a small thadki outside the large cave. This cave may perhaps be ascribed to the latter part of the 8th century A.D.

- 22. Vadgånw-Daryå, 9 miles N.W. from Parner: Enclosed in the wild beauty of a little glen, are some natural caverns under a cliff by a waterfall, which have been altered by modern masonry. There are a few coarse sculptures on the rock and on detached stones, but no architectural interest attaches to the place.
- Pârnêr, 20 miles W. by S. from Ahmadnagar: —Temple of Sangameśvara 23. or Tryambakesvara at the junction of two small nalas. The ground plan is the normal double-broken diamond or square; not very much facetted, there being only three superior re-entering angles on the front sides of the mandapa and one lesser similar angle near the front porch. There have been three porches, as usual. All of them are now in ruins, the front one least so. Its door strongly resembles the inner door of Temple No. II, at Belgaum, but has not the pierced flanking panels. The pillars are more in the style of temple No I, at Belgaum. Four large pillars, with the help of the walls and surviving pilasters, support the roof, composed of nine small rough domes. This would appear to have been the original plan, but the whole roof has been destroyed, (tradition says by the first Musalman invaders,) and restored from a height of about 9 feet above the ground. This is shown by the use of mortar in the restored portion and by the inverted position of some of its decorations. The lower or ancient part is of dry stonework in receding embedded courses of very large blocks, and the linga is enshrined in a deep pit. The whole exterior is covered with a decoration representing in low relief, sometimes an arch, sometimes a dome. This is observable also in a large "bardo" now attached to a modern mosque east of the town of Parner (which has probably usurped the site of a temple), and in the remains of a small temple between the town and river at Palshi (20 miles N. of Parner) in the same taluka. The roof has been destroyed, but a few fragments of cornice seem to indicate that it was Dravidian in style; like that of Malai Devî at Nighoj, 10 miles S. W. of Parner. The pillars of this temple closely resemble the two shown in the front of the temple figured in Plate I. of the Archaeological Report for 1874. The Nandi in front of the principal entrance now rests at the bottom of a pit lined with modern masonry, and partly covered by a rough dome constructed of the debris of the porch, and, perhaps, of a destroyed pavilion. On this rests a stone representing apparently an inverted bunch of grapes, which the people call a linga, but do not worship: probably it was a finial of the pavilion or of one of the porches. Several slender pillars of a broken square section have been built into a small modern temple in the middle of the place, which is, however, chiefly now admired as possessing a relief, in moulded clay coloured and gilt, of Chandika

Vide Archaeological Report for Western India; 1874, Pintes H, V.

Devî in strife with the buffalo demon, the work of a local artist, a patel of the village of Renawadî. Under a pipal tree before this temple are several fragments of sculpture, among which are a huge gargoyle in the form of a monster's head, and a great stone rânjana, or vase, the superior and inferior portions of which have been hewn separately and afterwards fitted together. It is of the still popular form of an egg truncated at both ends, and is 4½ feet both in height and in external diameter. It is very rough; its simple ornamentation does not correspond with that of any of the other remains; and it might have been made at any period by the stone-cutters who hew out oil-presses.

The old temple of Naganatha Mahadeva, to the east of the Nagar gate has also a barão or well.

Inscription:—In the bardo at the Naganatha temple is an inscription in Devanagari dated Saka 1015.

24. Palshi Mandwe :- Two fine modern temples.

5.—SANGAMNER TALUKA.

No remains of any interest reported.

6.-ANKOLE TALUKA.

- 25. Ankole, 14 miles west of Sangamner: (1) Temple of Sri-Gangadharêśvara, -- a handsome modern one. (2) Temple of Siddhêśvara Mahadeva, very old and half buried in the silt of the Prawara, under which the whole building is said to have been buried till accidentally discovered by a ploughman about 100 years ago (J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. III, pt ii, p. 85). It belongs to the nine domed class, but has probably been changed from a Vaishnava or Jaina shrine to a Saiva one. The image over the door lintel of the shrine is defaced beyond recognition, and the front porch has been restored in a bastard Saracenic style within living memory. A pillar belonging to it, with a long Sanskrit inscription, was thrown down at this time, and so ill used that it is now barely traceable and quite beyond the power of transcription or impression. Mr. Sinclair had it removed to the Kacheri, in the hope of a stray scholar passing that way. Dr. Bhau Daji, as usual, had a copy taken when the pillar had suffered less; and this, if preserved, may throw light on its contents (a). The roof of the temple is entirely gone, and replaced by a chunam pie in the usual style of modern Hindu restorations. What is visible of the original building, is exceedingly rich; and when complete may have closely resembled the temple at Udalpur in Bhopâl. It has one peculiar feature, -a small domed porch opening into the shrine from behind (see Ind. Ant., vol. IV, p. 9) (a).
 - 26. Ekdare, 15 miles N.W. from Ankole: -Two caves in Mahakali hill(?).
- 27. Ratanwâdi, 10 miles W. from Rajur: the river Prawarâ takes its rise from a small architectural work here. A small old Hemâdpanti temple of Annutesvara, of about the 12th century, in ruins (a).
- 28. Kothůlmukunji, 16 miles S. W. from Ankole: the ruins of the temple of Narayaneśvara, with a fine doorway; foundations of the temple of Koteśvara.
- 29. Harischandragad with a group of late Brahmanical caves. A little below the row of caves is a large Hemadpanti "bardo" or reservoir, with steps, along the southern side of which is a row of little niches or shrines, some still occupied by images. This is surrounded by small temples and thadkis or cenotaphs. Below the reservoir is a small temple in a pit, half cave half building, consisting merely of a cell with a shrine at each side, one of which contains the socket of a departed linga. Below it again is a deep hollow or pit, formed by cutting away the rock at the head of a ravine, so as to leave a small level space, in the centre of which rises a structural temple with a central spire. It has a very ancient appearance, probably contributed to by the tremendous rainfall of these highlands but is also remarkable for its plan. There is no mandapa; the shrine is under the tall spire, which is of the "Northern" form, and the linga within is worshipped from any one of four doors with porches. Another shrine, containing the image of some goddess, is half built, half hewn, in the south-east corner of the pit, and the western side is occupied by caves used as dharmaśalâs, two or three in number, for they are much mixed up together.

About 50 yards down the ravine is the best cave in the place, a great cistern about forty feet square, the centre of which is occupied by a huge linga surrounded by four pillars,—something resembling in pattern those of the chief cave at Elephanta, but much more slender. The worshippers swim and wade round this, splashing it. There is a good relief to the left, and a small chamber above the water.

7.-KOPARGANW TALUKA.

- 30. Kopargánw, 60 miles north of Ahmadnagar on the Godávarí: Temples of Sakreśvara and Kacheśvara, repaired by the Peśwâ's Government: the temple of Vishņu was built by one of the Peśwâs.
- 31. Kokamthan, about 5 miles down the river from Koparganw. It is of the normal double diamond ground plan, most intricately facetted and elaborately ornamented. The spire over the shrine is of brick and mortar, evidently a restoration; but upon comparison with the rest of the building, which is of course of dry stone, it seems likely that it was an intelligent one, agreeing very closely with the little ornamental buttresses outside the shrine, as these did with the original stone sikara. It is certainly very old; the bricks are such as are never made now in the Dekhan. The main beauty of the building is the dome of the mandapa, which closely resembles that of Temple No. II. in the fort at Belgaum figured in the Archaeological Report for Western India, 1874. Its diameter is about 19 feet. Though this is astylar, two porches occupying the angle of the mandapa opposite the shrine and that to west of it, have domes supported on pillars, but decorated internally with the same wealth of carving. The fourth angle is occupied by a square transept apparently not integral to the building, but very curious. It is composed of rectangular panels of stone carved in patterns not often seen elsewhere. The likest thing to them is the geometric pattern on the great Tope at Sarnath near Banâras. This shrine is now occupied by a goddess who is remarkable for her power to cure the itch. The main shrine is occupied by the linga, which is perhaps an intruder. There have apparently been several smaller temples within the court, of which the wall is still traceable, but they were destroyed by the great flood of 1872. Probably this temple like the one at Sinnar belongs to about the 12th century (a).

- 32. Kumbhari, about as far up-stream from Koparganw as Kokamthan, is down the river, and upon the same (the right) bank has a temple possessing a mandapa of the same class, as beautiful, and a little larger, being 21 feet in diameter. The ground plan is the same; and here also two pillared porches have domes which are miniatures of that of the astylar mandapa. The temple, however, is much more plain and massive externally than that of Kokamthan; and the transept, which here occupies the western corner of the mandapa, is in this case undoubtedly integral. It at present contains the linga. The main shrine holds an asana or throne, an ornamental figure on which is worshipped as Lakshmi. A number of niches around the exterior evidently once held figures which have disappeared, as has the roof, though enough cornices remain to impress one with the idea that it was of a modified Dravidian form, which also appears on the niches of a barão at Ranjanganw Desmukhachê, 10 miles off,—the other ornamentation is the same as on these temples (a).
- 33. Kasre, Tālukā Kopargāńw. Here is an ugly mean temple of Bhairava beside a nalā. It has Hemādpantī foundations, probably one of the oldest pieces of built stone-work in the district, as the ground plan, a rectangular mandapa with a shrine forming a very slightly broken square, is exceedingly archaic.
- 34. Puntâmbe on the Godávarî, 12 miles S.E. from Kopargânw, has numerous temples, mostly recent: one of them is to Chângadeva, a famous saint said to have had 1,400 disciples: the temple is said to belong to the middle of the 17th century. There are also temples here of Kâsi-Viśveśvara, Jagadamba, Bâlâji, Kâl-Bhairava, Râmachandra, Keśavarâja, Gopâl-Krishna, Viţhal, Annapūrņā, Bhadrakâliśankara, Trimbakeśvara, Râmeśvara, Mahârudraśankara; also a ghâţ built by Ahalyâbâi of Inder, and another by Sivarâma Dumal.

8.—Newasa Taluka.

35. Mîrî:—another very old temple (J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. III., pt. ii., p. 87).

9.—AHMADNAGAB TALUKA.

- 36. Ahmaduagar. Fort; Alamgîr's dargah, 1707; and tombs of the Nizâm Shàhi kings; Faryabagh and Bhishtî Bagh palaces, and mosque at the latter; and Damri Masjid.
- 37. Mehekri, 7 miles E. from Ahmadnagar. Salabat Khan's tomb, commonly called Chand Bibi's Mahal, an octagonal dome surrounded by a three-storeyed verandah: it is 100 feet high and about the same in maximum diameter; now used as a military sanitarium.

10.—SIVAGAUM TALUKA.

- 38. Gotan :- a very old temple (J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. III., pt. ii., p. 87).
- 39. Toka: -- an old sacred place with some interesting temples.

11 .- RAHURI TALUKA: No return.

XIII.-NASIK ZILLA.1

1.-NIPHAD TALUKA.

 Nândûr, 20 miles E. from Nâsik at the junction of the Kadvâ and Godâvarî: Temple of Madhyamêśvara Mahâdêva, on a small rocky islet; said to be about 200 years old.

2.—SINNAB TALUKA.

- 2. Sinnar, 18 miles S. E. from Nasik:—Temple of Gondeśvara or Govindeśvara, a Saivapaāchāyatana or group of five temples within a large enclosure, the central one being dedicated to Siva. The smaller shrines are two to the north side of the enclosure dedicated to Narayana or Vishnu and Ganapati, and two to the south dedicated to Sarya or the Sun, and Mahāśaktî or Dêvî. The temple is about 750 years old and is one of the finest in this part of the country. It is ascribed to a Gauļi chief called Singani Rajput and his son Govind. It is richly covered with sculpture, but is deserted and falling into decay (a). The temple of Aieśvara is on the north-west of the town. It is said to have been built about 1450 a.p. and had originally a sabhā maṇḍapa, but this has been carried off to build or repair other structures, all except four beautifully carved pillars and the lintels over them. The shrine is left but without the sikhara. This temple has been, like the other, a Saiva shrine.
- 3. Bhojapur, 10 miles S. from Sinnar:—Temple of Khandoba cut in the rock in the hill fort.

3.-KAVNAI OR VIGATPURI TALUKA.

4. Tringalwadi, 3½ miles N. from Vigatpuri:—Temple of Brahmadêva in ruins. Close by is Met Chandrachi with three caves, much filled in.

Inscription :- A Sanskrit one dated Saka 1266.

4.—NASIK TALUKA.

Nasik on the south bank of the Godavari, with Panchavati on the opposite side of the river:-has a large number of temples but mostly dating from last century and not remarkable for their architectural beauty. No very accurate or detailed information as to their history or dimensions has been obtained as yet. The principal are:—(1) Temple of Srî Râma, in Panchavați, said to have been built by Rangarão Odhekar about 1782. It is a large stone temple with a handsome dome, and stands in the middle of a court with a Någarkhåna over the entrance. (2) Temple of Râmêśvara Mahâdêva, in Pańchavati, built about 1754 by Nârośankar Râjebahâdar, a noted chief under the Peśvâ Bâļâji Bâjirão (1740-1762). (3) Temple of Kapâlêśvara, in Pańchavati, said to be the oldest here (Jour. Bom. B. R. As. Soc., vol. III., pt. ii., p. 87). (4) Temple of Sundar Nârâyana on the Nâsik bank of the river, is dedicated to Lakshmî Nârâyana. It is uncertain when it was erected, some say about 1748. It enjoys a large inâm managed by the pujaris. Opposite to it is the Ramakunda or Astivilaya Tîrtha. (5) The Sitá Gumpha or Cave of Sîtá. (6) Temple of Venkatêśa, or Bâlaji as it is commonly known, a pretty large building, enjoys a jahgir worth Rs. 20,000. (7) The temple of Gora Rama close to the river, built by Ahalyabai of Indor.

- (8) Temple of Murlidhara, with an image exactly like that of Kunyâ Murlidhara at Puṇâ. (9) Temple of Bhadrakâlî. (10) Bhatjibâwâ's Math built by an ancestor of the Vinchurkar. (11) Palaces of the Pêśvâ and Nârośankar. Besides which there are many others, besides ghâts, &c.
- Pându Lênâ or Triraśmi, 5 miles S. from Nâsik. A well known series of Bauddha caves with many inscriptions of Ândhra, Kshatrapa, and other kings (see Cave Temples).
- 7. Trimbak, 20 miles W. from Nåsik. Temple of Trimbakêśvara, built by Sadåśivaråo alias Bhâu Såheb, about 1750, has a Government endowment of Rs. 12,000 per annum, under the charge of the pujäris (Jour. Bom. B. R. As. Soc., vol. III, pt. ii, p. 86). There is also a temple built by Ahalyâbâi of Indor in 1779, and five others.
- 8. Pâtharde, 15 miles W. from Nâsik,—Anjanêri Hill (perhaps originally Anjanigiri), some rock-excavations and very old temples (J. B. B. R. As., vol. III, pt. ii, p. 86). On the top is a temple of Dêvî. (Information much wanted.)

 Inscription:—At least one old one.
- 9. Châmâr Tenkdi, a hill about 600 feet high, 5 or 6 miles N. from Nasik: A few small Jaina caves, of no great age or merit. They are at a height of about 450 feet from the base of the hill, and face about S.S.W. The upper part of the ascent is by a stair of roughly dressed stone, containing 173 steps of very varying heights, and with a parapet on each side. At the 163rd step a path leads to two rock-cut tanks on the right, -one having the top broken in and the other with two square openings. Above the built steps the stair is continued by 16 more steps, cut in the scarp, landing on the terrace. The excavations, beginning from the left or west, are: -(1) In a slight recess is a tank with two openings broken into one. (2) A cave, the verandah of which has four columns; the left one and left pilaster are left square in the rough, the others plain octagons. On the rock over the cave is built a lotus-bud cupola like those on structural temples. In the left end of the verandah is a covered cell; in the back, at the left side, a door has been begun but not cut through the wall; next to it is a plain rectangular window; the central doorway is plain with a raised sill, and has Tîrthankaras or dwarapalas by the sides of it; Gautama, on the left, is 5' 2" high and is attended by two female figures about 31 feet high. Over the door is a Jina seated cross-legged, about 14" high, on a throne with three lions on the front of it, with a male chauri-bearer 21" high on each side. To the left of this is a fat figure seated on a kneeling elephant; and to the right, a female (Ambikâ) is also squatted on some couching animal, and holding a child on her knee. Pårsvanåth stands on the right of the door with the five-hooded snake canopying his head. On his right a female attendant, about 3' high, has a single naga hood over her head; and to his right a male kneels on one knee. To the right of this is another window, and then a side door leading into a rough part of the cave walled off from the rest. In the right end of the verandah is an unfinished cell with a bench, and over the door a sculpture very like that over the central door but somewhat larger. All the sculpture, however, being in a very coarse spongy rock, is rough and seems to have been touched up at a comparatively late date. The interior is but roughly hewn and not properly squared. At the left end is a group of figures in a slight recess and consisting of,-a Tirthankara seated cross-legged, 10" high, on a cushion on a throne bearing the bull, the chinha of Adinatha, in the centre; to its left a squatted figure, and then two standing males, 5" high,-the other side below is unfinished. Outside each of the Jina's arms is another, similarly seated, 5" high; and over each of the three heads is a painted canopy with a male figure 31" high on the central one, and a similar one at each side of him. Around this group are 21 shallow recesses 11 inch square each containing a seated Jina: five down each side, three sloping upwards on each side towards one in the centre at the top of all, one under each of the lowest on the slopes and in line with the upper ones in the sides and one over each shoulder of the larger figure; these make in all the 24 Tîrthankaras or Jinas. A bench goes round three sides of the cave. On the back wall, above the bench, is a group of figures: in the centre is a seated Parśvanatha, 3' 2" high, on a throne with three lions below; his head is canopied by a seven-hooded snake. Above is a small seated figure and on each side a standing figure 2'9" high with high cap and chauri. On each side of this is a large seated figure with high ornamental cap, necklaces, earrings: the left one is a male on a kneeling elephant with foliage below; the right one is Ambikâ on a crouching lion or tiger and at her knee is a reclining female figure. Beyond each of these is a seated male 3' 5" high, similar to the central figure and with similar standing males at each side, but also with a triple umbrella upheld by Vidyadharas over the seven-hooded snake. The right group has Gautama standing under foliage and with no other canopy. To the extreme right is part of a standing male figure and of others unfinished. (3) About ten yards to the right is a recess as if for the beginning of a cave, and seven yards farther is the third excavation, with an open verandah. On the left wall is a figure 2' high, squatted on an animal, with a canopy above and pilasters down each side of the compartment. On the right wall, in a similar recess, is Ambika on her tiger with a child on her left knee and a standing figure 1 foot high below her right knee and behind the tiger; figures also stand by the pilasters and appear in the canopy overhead. In the back of the verandah is an ornamental central doorway with raised sill having two griffins or lions' heads in front; an ornamental pilaster is on each side, and a cornice over the lintel with small standing males above over each pilaster and the centre of the door. To the left of the door is Pârsvanâth Seshphani, with two smaller attendants, and an ornamental pilaster down each side of the panel, on which are carved some small standing figures. On the right side of the door is Gautama but much defaced, with decayed seated attendants below on each side, and several small figures on the side pilasters. The hall is 8 or 9 feet square. On the left wall is a group, containing two seated Jinas, 10" high, on a cushion with two lions below each; right and left of them are Ambika and Indra with attendants. To the left of each Jina is a standing male. The canopies and 21 very small seated Jinas are nearly the same as before. By the sides of the central figures are three males in a row with triple chhatris over their heads very rudely cut. The back wall has a built bench in front and 3 male figures standing, the central one 3' 5" and the side ones 3' 3" high with four ornamental pilasters between and at the sides of the compartments they occupy; and at the base of each pilaster is a standing Jina. Overhead is scroll work and figures. The base of each pilaster contains a small standing male with his arms down and the capital a very small squatting Jina. Beyond the outer pilasters are other standing figures 15" high. To the left of this group is another squatting figure 14" high with clasped hands and a large back knot of hair. On each side of each of the three large male figures in the lower corners are very small kneeling female figures with large back knots of hair. On the right wall are two small seated Jinas and to the right is Ambikâdêvî, 12" high, on her vâhana, with a child on her left knee and the stem of a tree (mango) behind and above her head with a bunch of fruit hanging on each side, and a small seated male above. (4) About 10 feet to the right is a recess 15 feet wide and 7 deep. In the centre of the back wall, in high relief, is the upper part of an unfinished gigantic seated Pârśvanâtha, 7' from the top of the head to the waist and with a polycephalous snake canopying his head. Just to the right of this the rock is undercut and on the top of the projecting part are three half lotuses carved on the level surface. The middle one 4'6" in diameter and the side ones half the size and 5' from centre to centre. A square socket for a flagstaff is sunk in the centre of each lotus, and two raised pâdukas or footprints are sculptured on the flat centre of the middle lotus. A recess has been commenced just to the right of these and over the top of the stair. All the carving is of a very inferior character.

10. Anjaneri hill (Anjanî-girî), a hill to the east of Trimbak and 15 miles S. W. from Nâsik. There is a temple on the top dedicated to Dêvî, and several old temples in ruins, in one of which is an Inscription dated 5th Jyeshtha Sudh, Saka 1063, in the reign of Sennachandra, a Yâdava prince (see Ind. Ant., vol.

XΠ).

5.—DINDORI TALUKA.

11. Râmasêj, 6 miles N. from Nâsik: A hill fort in which is a large well with a flight of steps descending into it. There is also said to be an underground passage leading from it.

12. Jambutke, 4 miles S.W. from Dindori,—A plain Hemadpanti well

45 feet square.

13. Ambegânw, 13 miles W. from Dindori,—Hemâdpanti temple of Mahâdêva, 40 feet by 36,—the roof and portions of the walls fallen, but richly covered with sculptures (a).

14. Wani, 12 miles N. from Dindori and 26 miles from Nasik-A plain temple of Mahadeva, partially ruined.

15. Chandikâpur, 15 miles N. from Dindori.—The ascent to Saptaśringi. Inscription, stating that the steps were made by Konhar Girmâji, Krishna Girmâji, and Rudrâji Girmâji in Saka 1692.

6,-KALWAN TALUKA.

- 16. Saptaśringa, in the Chândod range of hills, with masonry tanks, and the temple of Siddhêśvara, now mostly in ruins, but with the dome standing, and having some rather elaborate stone carving. It was built of large blocks of stone without mortar. Near a dharmaśâlâ stands the samādhi or tomb of a Râja of Dharmapur. Near by is a fine old basti. The cave of Dêvî Mahishamarddani or Saptaśringa Nivâsnî is at the base of a perpendicular scarp near the summit of the hill (Ind. Ant., vol. II., pp. 161-164).
 - 17. Dhodap Hill fort with an Inscription on the gate.

7.—SATANA OR BAGLANA TALUKA.

18. Divalâne, 9 miles E.N.E. from Satâna,—A very curious old Hemâdpanti temple of Mahâdêva in excellent preservation, consisting of a porch, a p 781-30 118 domed mandapa, and a shrine containing a linga. The carving is excellent and well preserved. There are some of a humourous but indecent character.

8.—CHANDOD TALUKA.

19. Chândod, 12 miles N.W. from Manmâd,—(1.) A temple of Renukâ Dêvî, ¾th mile N.E. from the town, cut in the rocky side of the Ráhud-bâri. Flights of built steps lead up to the portico attached to the excavation. The image is rock-cut and is about 5 feet high. (2.) On the west side of the Chândod hill-fort, to the east of the town is a rock-cut temple in the form of a deep apse, 30 feet wide by 21 deep, with Jaina sculptures in it but now dedicated to Kâlikâ Dêvî. (3.) The Bâdshâhi mosque built by Firuz Khân Bâdshâh.

Inscription :- A Persian one in mosque (a).

20. Indraiwâdi Hill, 5 miles W. from Chândod,—An old fort with caves and some sculptures in the side of the hill.

Inscription in Persian at the foot of the steps leading up the rock (a).

21. Dhodambe.—Curious old temple of Mahadeva with carved figures.

9.-MALEGAUM TALUKA.

- 22. Chikhal-wahal, 10 miles from Mâlegaum,—An old Gauli temple 73 feet by 22, with carved pillars.
- 23. Jodge, 15 miles from Målegaum,—Temple of Śri Śankar, a very old Hemådpanti temple, about 67 feet square, partly in ruins. Inscription on the temple almost illegible.

10 .- NANDGAUM AND YEOLA TALUKAS.

- 24. Bangaon, 5 miles from Nåndgaon-Hemådpanti temple of Banêśvara.
- 25. Någapur, 12 miles from Nåndgaon—carved Hemådpanti temple, 34 feet by 26.
- 26. Ankåi, 6 miles S. from Manmåd station,—Above the village are 7 or 8 Jaina caves of some interest though small: the carved doorways are specially rich. In the fort of Ankåi are some Brahmanical caves of late date, and in the sister fort of Tankåi are some old temples (see Archæological Survey Reports, vol. V).

11.—PEINT TALUKA.—No return.

XIV.—KHÂNDESH ZILLA.

1. - DHULEN TALUKA.

- 1. Amboda, 12 miles from Dhulen: a small temple said to be Hemâdpanti, of the 17th century.
- 2. Laling, 6 miles S. from Dhulen: two temples and a well said to be Hemâdpanti.

2.—PIMPALNER TALUKA.

3. Balsane, 14 miles E. from Pimpalner:—A group of very interesting temples. The principal one, though small, is elegant and elaborately carved both inside and out. The figure sculpture, though like all Indian work of the kind, is tolerably good and has been compared with similar work at Elura. The mandapa has 4 pillars in the area and 16 attached ones, with bracket capitals upheld by four-armed dwarf figures. There are seven other temples, some of them said to be very fine. They are all Saiva (a).

Inscription :- On the lintel of one of the temples.

- 4. Bhâmer, 4 miles S. of Nizâmpur:—This seems once to have been a large place, the whole area being covered with ruins. On the west is a gate flanked by round towers, with two pillars about 9 feet high for gate posts. There is also a finer gateway in better preservation, near which is a characteristic Hemâdpanti or Gauli Râjâ's well. The fort on the hill above the village contains many rooms excavated in the rock. The caves of most importance face the S. W. and are nearly all on the same level. The first group consists of three openings into each other; the roof of the central and largest room is supported by pillars. On the face of the hill facing Nizâmpur is a range of caves said to be inaccessible (Ind. Ant., vol. II, p. 128; vol. IV, p. 339).
- 5. Nizâmpur, 17 miles N. E. from Pimpalner: a Jaina temple dedicated to Pârśvanâtha.

3.-NANDURBAR TALUKA.

 Nandurbâr, 19 miles N. from Nizâmpur, contains many mosques. The house of the Sar-Deśâi is said to be about 400 years old.

Inscription :- In Persian on a ruined tower.

- 7. Narayanpur, 5 miles W. of Nandurbar: an old fort close to a stone dam on the Sivanad river, and a little way up the stream are fragments of a curiously carved temple built into a well, and others lying near.
 - 8. Watada, 5 miles E. from Nandurbar: old and large temple of Vithoba.

4.—TALODA TALUKA.

9. Amlåd, 2 miles from Taloda: temples of Chankêśvara and Rokdeśvara.

5.—SHAHADE TALUKA.

10. Prakâśeň on the Tapî, 10 miles S. W. from Shâhâdeň: a number of temples and tombs built on rocks, some five of them, viz. the temples of Gautama, Sangamêśvara Mahâdêva, Kedârêśvara, Mansâpurî, and a temple of Mahâdêva, are fine handsome imposing buildings. The town is old and interesting (a).

Inscriptions:—Two Sanskrit inscriptions over the door of the temple of Sangamésvara Mahâdêva; one in a large sabhâ maṇḍapa; and one partially effaced on the south side of the gate of Mahâdêva's temple.

11. Tavlåi, 2 miles N. of Sultånpur: a very fine well with stairs descending into it like the baolis of Gujaråt, and in excellent preservation (a).

6.—SINDKHERA TALUKA.—No return.

7 .- AMALNER TALUKA.

- 12. Pårolå, 22 miles E. of Dhulen:—Imâm Bådshåh's Dargah on the east of the fort; Chattri of Girdhar Seth Bålåji Wålak; Svåmi temple about 24 feet square of stone, with brick spire ornamented in plaster; and temple of Japåtå Bhåwa about 58 feet by 56.
- 13. Undikheda, 3 miles S. W. of Pârolâ:—large temple of Śri Nâgêśvara Mahâdêva on an island in the Bori river. The outer walls of the spire have many angles and are highly carved: it is ascribed to Trimbakrâo Mâmâ Pethe.

8.—CHOPADE TALUKA.

- 14. Chopade, 21 miles N. W. from Amalner:—Juma' Masjid said to have been built by Miran Muhammadkhan, one of the Farukhi kings; Kali Masjid; and other mosques; Satkothadya well, 37 feet square.
- 15. Adavad, 10 miles E. of Chopade: a fine old well 30 feet by 12, with steps, but ruined; and Masjid.

a short Persian inscription.

16. Unabdeva, 3 miles N. of Adavad :- a hot spring with some buildings.

9.—SAVDE TALUKA,

- 17. Rasulpur, 2 miles from Raver: an old fort and palace.
- 18. Bhokarîdigar, on the Bhakar river, west from Râver:—Temple of Omkârêśvara, and a dharmaśâlâ said to have been built by Ahalyâbâi Holkar. Inscription:—On the temple reads:—

चरणरज बिहुल बलाळ दासे मौजे धालोली परगणे राजापूर तालुके विजयदुर्गकर निरंतर ११९९.

- 19. Pal, on the Suki Nala, N. of Raver: A mosque of black stone, with three bays, and of considerable architectural merit.
- 20. Mânâpuri, N. W. of Yâwal: about a mile from the village is an old temple ascribed to the Gauli Râjâs.

10.-BHUSAWAL TALUKA.

21. Changdeva, 4 miles N. W. from Edalâbâd: a temple of black stone in the Hemâdpanti style built without cement, with numerous figure sculptures on the walls (a).

Inscriptions :- On each side of the entrance, but much effaced.

22. Charthân, 12 miles E. of Edalâbâd:—Hemâdpanti temple of Mahâdêva of great age, but in good repair, with some sculptures.

23. Kandari, 2 miles N. E. of Bhusawal :- Temple of great age partially in ruins.

11 .- JAMNER TALUKA.

- 24. Gârkhed, N. of Jâmnêr: an octagonal temple of Mahâdêva elaborately carved but much weatherworn.
- Khâtgânw, 3 miles N. of Jâmnêr: a temple built of very large blocks of black stone, now in ruins.
- 26. Sendurui, 16 miles S. W. from Jâmnêr: a Hemâdpanti temple built without cement, of very large blocks, but small and in ruins.

12.—PACHORA TALUKA.

- 27. Sangamêśvara, 4 miles E. of Kajgaon station: a fine Hemâdpanti temple of Mahadeva, with carved doors, the roofs supported by pillars.
- 28. Pimpalganw Budruk, 6 miles S. E. from Warkhedi: a fine old temple of Hâra Harêśvara Mahâdêva.

13.—IRANDOL TALUKA.

29. Irandol, 9 miles W. from Mhasawad station: a fine quadrangle called Pâṇḍawâchâ Wâḍâ, appropriated by the Musalmâns, and partly used as a mosque; with much ornamental scroll and lattice work in stone.

14. - CHALISGANW TALUKA.

30. Påtanen, a deserted village 10 miles S.S.W. from Châlisgânw and under the Satmala hills. There are some Brahmanical and Jaina temples of the 11th and 12th centuries, mostly in a more or less ruinous condition. The temple of Ai Bhavani is the only one still in use, an annual jatra being held at it in the month of Chaitra. It has been so often repaired and altered that it is not easy to say what the original plan has been: at present there are five shrines in it. In the south-west corner is an inscription of one of the Yadava kings of Davagiri. Steps lead down to the stream. In the sabha mandapa is a tomb, said to be of Kanhara Svâmi, who is reputed to have brought Seshasâi Devî to the place. It is on the way from the village to the Pitalkhora caves (b).

The great temple of Mahêsvara in the village is built in the style of the large Jaina temple of Belgaum with fourteen pillars on a low surrounding screen wall, and four more in the middle of the floor. The antechamber in front of the shrine has two slender, highly moulded pillars and two pilasters in front, and in the left side an inscription of a Yadava king of Dêvagiri dated Saka 1095. The door of the shrine has been most elaborately carved and is of great beauty, though the figures on the lower portions of the jambs have been defaced, probably by Muslim bigots. The pillars that support the roof are also well moulded (b).

North-east from this is a Jaina temple, about 17 feet 4 inches square inside, supported by four pillars. In front it has a portico the whole width of the temple supported by two pillars, one of them now fallen. Behind the mandapa is a small vestibule and shrine with an asana or throne in it with some carving on the parigara or back of it, but the image has been removed.

A temple to the north of this is similar in plan, but without the shrine, and has an inscription over the entrance door. Four more shrines in a more or less dilapidated condition occur within the limits of the village.

Sringar Chauri is the name applied to a cave about half a mile up the hill N.W. from the temple of Ai Bhavani on the way to the Kanhara fort. To the right of the entrance the excavation is continued forward at right angles with a low screen wall and pillars closing it in. This part is about 25 feet in length by $7\frac{1}{2}$ deep, while the principal hall of the cave is about 18 feet by 15. Outside is a rock-cut cistern.

Nagarjuna is a third cave just above the village, consisting of a padasáli or verandah and an inner cave. It is a Jaina excavation and contains several figures of the Digambara sect (a).

Sîtâ's Nhâni, near the preceding, is a plain Brahmanical excavation.

Pitalkhorâ, a glen not far from Pâţanen, to the S.E., contains a ruined Chaitya and Vihâra, very early Bauddha works, with some fragments of inscriptions in the Maurya character,—probably dating two centuries B. c. (See Care Temples.) (a)

31. Wâghali, 6 miles E. of Châlisganw:—An old temple of Mudhâidêvî, on the bank of the river, said to be built in the Hemâdpantî style and to measure 55 feet in length, 24 wide, and 17 feet high enclosed in a walled court 142 feet by 84. It is falling to decay. It is generally plain, but the doorway and 24 pillars are chiselled. Inside is a figure of Bhavânî.

A small ruined temple stands to the right, and contains an image.

A temple of the Manbhava sect said to be in the Hemadpanti style, 33 feet in length, 22 feet wide and 13 high. The pillars and door are sculptured. There is a Nandi outside but no linga within. The Manbhavas say it has been in their possession for the last seven generations.

Inscriptions:-Three large stones within bear Sanskrit inscriptions in

15 .- NASIRABAD TALUKA.

- 32. Kånalde, to the N. W. of Nasiråbåd:—There is a quaint-looking temple of carved black stone, below the village on the banks of the Gîrnâ. Close to it is the house of the Gosåin; in the middle of it is a flight of steps leading to a door beyond which are more steps and then a big hole, climbing through which we enter a small cell about 5 feet by 10; from this a door leads to a second 7 feet by 4; beyond it is a third measuring 4 feet by $3\frac{1}{2}$, and then a fourth $3\frac{1}{2}$ feet by 3. There is nothing remarkable about them, however, as they are dug out of the clay.
- 33. Selagânw, N. of Jalgânw:—A math or monastery said to have been built by Masangir Gosâvi about 200 years ago. It stands on high ground near the junction of the Tâptî and Wâghar rivers opposite Borawal, is built of stone and lime, and is about 80 feet long, 60 wide and 30 high. The east wall is falling. The temple is approached by steps.
- 34. Kandarî, S. of Jalganw:—Temple of Mahadeva of small dimensions said to be in the Hemadpanti style and going to decay.
- 35. Palasade, N. W. from Jalganw:—Temple of Ramesvara built on a raised podium (ôtâ) upon a small hill near the junction of the Girna with the Tapti. The temple is about 17 feet long, 14 wide, and 21 high and is said to be 300 years old.

16 .- SIRPUR TALUKA.

36. Thålner, 10 miles from Sirpur:—Ten Muhammadan tombs, of which eight are built with country cut black stone and two of burnt brick. One is octagonal with carved black stones and the others square and plain. Parts of the domes are destroyed but they are in good condition inside. Three of them are occasionally used by Europeans on tour. The largest three are 11 feet square each. The octagonal one is 10 feet wide. Two are 8 feet square, one 6, two are 4 feet square and one $3\frac{1}{2}$ feet square.

Inscriptions:—On the octagonal tomb are some Arabic inscriptions, but they yield no date. The Musalmans of the place say they were built about 500 years ago by one Shah Ajam Mule Sharani, whom they call their Pir, and whose tomb is the 6 feet square one. One inscription reads :-

XV.-SURAT ZILLA.

1.-CHORASI TALUKA.1

1. Surat: The Mirza Sâmi Rozah, said to have been built about 1540 by Khudâwand Khân, the architect of the Surat Castle; it is in the style of the later Muhammadan tombs at Ahmadâbâd. The windows are of perforated stone and the reticulated interiors of the cupolas are of rare beauty. At present it is in a dilapidated state. The wooden mosque in the enclosure is said to have been erected of the materials of a Jaina temple in the Shâhâpur ward.

Mosque of Qâzi Diwân Sâheb, who is said to have come from Janok near Bukhârâ and died at the age of 116 Muhammadan (about 112) 'years. The mosque is said to date from A.D. 1530; other accounts make it two centuries later.

The Nau Sayyid's Masjid on the banks of the old Gopî lake, in honour of the nine warriors whom Qazi Diwan asserted were buried there.

Mulla Muhammadu'd-dîn's Masjid, near Mulla Khadki, built in A. н. 1136

(A.D. 1724).

Sayyid Idrus Masjid in Sayyidpura, Variavi Bhagal, with a lofty minar; built in A. H. 1049 by Mirza Sayyid Bêg in honour of the ancestor of the Idrus family, who is said to have come to Surat in 972 and died 1032 A. H. (?)

Daria Mehel Masjid in Bakshi's Daria Mehel, built by the Bakshi Mir

Azimu'd-dîn in A. H. 1196 (A.D. 1782).

The Castle of Surat, now occupied by public offices.

The Old English tombs outside the Katargam gate and the Dutch tombs deserve attention (Jour. Bom. B. R. As. Soc., vol. VI, p. 146; vol. VIII, pp. exlii, exlv; Calcutta Rev., vol. IX, pp. 125-ff.; Thevenot's Voyages, vol. V, p. 71).

The two Rozahs of the Bohorah high priests, in Jhâmpa, with the palace of the Mulla and a large wooden mosque (see Mr. Bellasis' account). Also the Rozah of the Momens in Rustampura, built by Sayyid Qâsim Ali about 1835, and the Musalmân Rozah in Nausâri Bhâgal, built about the middle of the 16th century.

JALALPUR, CHIKHLI, BALSAR, PARDI TALUKAS .- No remains reported.

XVI.—BHAROCH ZILLA.

1.—BHAROCH TALUKA.

1. Bharoch :- (1) Jama' Masjid in the south of the city, perhaps constructed previously to the reign of Ahmad Shah, but formed almost entirely of pillars taken from earlier Hindu or Jaina temples on the site of one of which it stands. It is 135 feet from north to south, and some of its details are very beautiful. The 72 pillars are carved, and the stone ceilings at the sides of the domes as well as the domes themselves are very elaborately sculptured in the Jaina style, -more so than is usually the case in mosques. It is used mostly as travellers' quarters by Muhammadan mendicants. Though a very fine specimen of an early mosque with domes, it is falling into a very dilapidated condition (Jour. Bom. B. R. As. Soc., vol. X., p. 19). Over the mehrab on the west wall is a modern Arabic inscription containing extracts from the Korân. (a)

(2) Bâwâ Rahan Sâheb's Dargah in the Dungri suburb to the north of the city, said to have been built about the end of the 11th century, but now falling into decay. Forbes (Oriental Memoirs, vol. II, p. 252) describes it as a "grand mausoleum," "where columns and arches form corridors, and support several large domes, and smaller cupolas richly ornamented, which cover the marble tomb." (a)

(3) The Idrus Mosque, built as a tomb in A. H. 1022, for Sayyid Idrus, near the northern wall of the town. In the south of the large area belonging to it are the tombs of some of the Nawabs of Bharoch. To the east of the mosque is a shed in which are tombs of several of the family of the late Faujdar of Bharoch. A fair is annually held here on the 3rd of the Shab-i-barat holidays and Musalmans visiting the fair and passing the night in the precincts are next morning feasted by Sayyid Husain el Idrûs, C.S.I., who pays the expenses from the revenues of the village of Umraj in Bharoch Taluka which be holds in inam.

(4) The Seth's Haveli in Lallubhai Chakla in the east of the city, built in 1791, with a front of carved wood very richly designed.

(5) The tomb of Chattar Pir, east of Bawa Rahan and 11 miles north-east of the city, an old Muhammadan tomb formerly famous for its cistern which it is said could not be emptied.

(6) The Madrasa Mosque near the Civil Hospital, built by Nawab Murtaza Khan in A. H. 1018. The floor is of marble as are also the bases of the pillars which are of teak: they are 30 in six rows of five each; and to the front is a verandah with a tiled roof. In the enclosure is a hauj or fountain and several Inscriptions: -On two wooden boards fixed over a latticed window on each side of the east door are the following Persian inscriptions :-

تاريخ تعمير نواب مرتضي انتساب مرتضي خان مونسي دوش در سراي خيال با دل درد مندو سينه ريش

Other buildings are:—(7) The Sthan of Bhrigu Rishi in Kalmi-waga, outside the Jhadesvar gate: a plain domed temple containing 17 lingus. It is built of brick and lime with teak beams and has several dharmasalas in the court.

(8) The Sthan of Kabarji in Kabarpura. The image is in a small underground cell having a plain domed brick temple over it. It is used by the Kabîr-panthis.

(9) Temple of Ganganath Mahadêva in Khatriyada, has also a linga in an underground cell. It is of brick and is said to be old, but is being rapidly destroyed by the encroachments of the Narmada River upon it.

(10) The temple of Ambâjî Mâtâ in Kalmi-wagâ built of brick and not at all old, but in decay. It has a large court containing the tombs of Gosains.

(11) The temple of Pingalésvara Mahâdêva în Dâsasvamêdha Tîrtha, is a plain brick and lime temple not a century old.

- (12) Lallubhái's Wâv in Dàndiá Bazár, has 10 arches and 75 stone steps. with a cell in each side wall, built of brick in the end of last century, but going to ruin.
- (13) Kheru'd-dîn's Wâv in Vejalpor, a suburb on the west of Bharoch, is said to be about 250 years old. The steps and cross lintels are of stone and the side walls of brick with stone pilasters and lintels to strengthen them. A passage on each side leads to a gallery below. The part nearest the well is of three storeys.

(14) The Phâtâ-talâo Wâv has nine arches, and is said to have been built by Lallubhâi Majmûdâr, and repaired about 1850 by Pharasrâm Tuirâm, a såhukår. It is of brick and the steps of Porbandar stone.

(15) The Dutch tombs, a mile west of Vejalpor, are massive structures over the remains of members of the Dutch factory and date from 1654 to 1770 (b).

(16) Adesvara Bhagavan's temple in Vejalpor Patti, erected in 1869-70,—a Jaina temple of the Ladwa Srimalis, built of brick, with marble floor and carved pillars.

(17) Temple of Bahucharáji Mátá in Vejalpor, a plain temple, nearly washed away by the river. It contains an image of Ambâjî.

(18) Nathu Thôbhan's Dharmaśala, between the Jhadeśvar gate and Dândiâ Bazâr, was built in 1875 by a member of the Kadavâ Kunbi caste, of Porbandar stone, is three storeys high in front and richly carved.

(19) Svâmi Nârâyan's temple on the Jhadesvar gate slope built on a raised platform ascended by 45 steps of Porbandar stone. It was built in 1833, and is of brick and plaster. It is under the Wadtal high priest of the sect. It is surrounded by other buildings connected with it.

(20) Temple of Somanatha Mahadêva near the Jhadesari gate in what is called Old Bharoch, contains a linga in an underground cell over which is a plain, domed, brick temple.

(21) Temple of Bhrigu Bhaskarêśvara in the Nava Déhra, is built of brick and teakwood by Bhâskar Râo, a Kâmdâr of Bharoch in the time of the Pêśwâs.

(22) The temple of Bhutanatha Mahadeva in Bhutanath Phalia, contains a linga in an underground cell said to be of great age, but the temple was enlarged and partly rebuilt in 1857. It is quite a plain building.

(23) Kåśi Viśvambhara Mahâdêva or Mugat Gor's temple at the Bhågåkot, built in 1848 by Mugatrâm Valabhrâm of the Bhitrâ Khedâwâl caste. It is a brick erection, and has a dharmaśâlâ in the court. The linga is of a greenish stone.

(24) Manasuvrat Svâmi's temple in Undi-vakhâr is of stone, carved and painted; the floor is of white and black marble in alternate squares. It is a Srâvak or Jaina temple and was built on the site of an earlier one in 1872, by the Srîmâli Banyas.

(25) Dêrâsar, also in Undi-vakhâr, a Jaina temple with an underground shrine and a two-storeyed brick temple above it.

(26) Chovivatto Temple in the Srimâli Pol, contains a Jaina image bearing the date Samvat 1664 (A.D. 1608). Behind the image is a recess in the wall about 3 feet by 2, containing several rows of the twenty-four Tîrthankaras from which the temple takes its name.

(27) Temple of Parsvanath in Srimali Pol: a plain temple of the Sagaragachha Jainas with an underground cell containing 11 white marble images. The middle image bears the inscription "Vijayasimha Saryacharya pratishtha." Just over the cell, on the ground floor are seven images one of which bears the inscription "Phalgun Sudha 5, Samvat 1849, Chandragachha Nathū Kiksi Bimbbharavit." There are also several metal images on one of which is the date "Śrāvaņa Samvat 1085." The upper room contains ten images, the earliest date on them being Samvat 1844. The temple is of brick with wooden pillars.

(28) The temple of Adésvara Bhagavan in Srîmâli Pol, an unpretending temple of the Sagara-gachha, paved with white and black marble: the pillars are of teak and painted vermillion. The images are marble or brass, on the backs of the latter are the dates of their consecration, the earliest being Sanvat 1499 or A.D. 1443. One of the marble images bears the date "Phālgun Sudh 5, Sanvat 1849" (A.D. 1793).

(29) The Kôthî or Dutch factory near Kansârwâd is a large building and has been a fine one. On a sun-dial on the upper portion of the northern wall is the date Anno 1700. The west side is two-storeyed.

(30) Bhìdabhanjan well in Alî, a suburb on the north of Bharoch, belongs to the Dargah of Nawab Sultan Yar close by. In a niche in the eastern wall is an image of Hanuman which has for its pujāri the Muhammadan Mujāvar of the dargah, who receives all the gifts made to the god.

(31) Temple of Nîlakantha Mabâdêva in Alî, contains the linga of the tutelary god of the Darzi or tailor caste: it possesses a revenue from a land grant

- (32) Sindhavâî Mâtâ's temple in Kalmwagâ is of brick and has a cash allowance of Rs. 37.
- Bhådabhut, 9 miles W. of Bharoch, a place of pilgrimage during the intercalary month of Bhådrapad, with a temple of Bhådabhut or Bhådeśvara Mahådeva noways remarkable.
- Kadod, about 6 miles E. of Bharoch:—Temple of Kotéśvara or Navaréśvara, a place of pilgrimage during the intercalary month of Vaiśakh.

4. Šukla-tîrtha, 10 miles E.N.E. from Bharoch, a sacred place near to which are also Humkareśvara-tîrtha and Ravi-tîrtha. It has a temple of Omkareśvara Mahâdêva noways remarkable.

5. Shâhabâd, 13 miles N. E. from Bharoch, has a Jaina Apâsarâ of Parsvanatha, of no special interest.

2.-WAGRA TALUKA.

6. Gandhâr, 26 miles N.W. of Bharoch: a Jaina temple built in 1619 with a sunk storey containing the image, and some carved work. About the town are mounds of brick and stone scattered over an area 3 miles in circumference. Splendid tanks at the neighbouring village of Keswân; and an old stone bridge and fine tombs at Chanchwâl (b).

3. - JAMBUSAR TALUKA.

7. Kâvi on the Mahi River (Sans. Kâpika); an old Jaina tîrtha with two temples known as Sâsu and Vahu-nu-dêheru. There is also a temple of Rupêśvara Mahâdêva of some pretensions (b).

Inscriptions :- One in each of the Jaina temples. Some Brahmans in the village have some old copperplate grants.

ANKLESVAR and AMOD TALUKAS .- No remains reported.

XVII.-KHEDÂ OR KAIRA ZILLA AND KHAMBAYAT.

1.—BORSAD TALUKA.

1. Borsad: The step well near the Kachêri, built in 1497 by one Vasu Soma and his family, is of 7 storeys and has 13 arches, the surface of the water being reached by flights of steps. It was cleaned out in 1872-73.

Inscription:—On this well in Sanskrit, dated Sanvat 1553, 13th Sravan Vad.

Napa Wanto tank ascribed to Mahmad Bagarah, with a house in the middle of it.

There is a temple dedicated to Mahânkalêśvar Mahâdêva, about half a mile from Borsad,—not remarkable in any way but contains an enormous Siva linga.

2.—Anand Tabuka.

2. Umret, 12 miles N.N.E. from Ånand, on the Dåkôr branch railway. Another bauri or step well, perhaps 400 or 500 years old, and by some ascribed to Siddharâja. It is built below of stone, and above of brick. It is between Umret and Dåkôr, is of five storeys and is descended by 109 steps. In the upper storey is a seat and a niche dedicated to Bhadrakâlî. It bears no inscription.

3. Od, about 8 miles to the N. E. has another bauri, seven storeys deep, arched over, very plain, with external coating of chunam.

4. Varod, 4 miles S. E. from Ânand, has a very old bauri said to have been built by Siddharâja Jayasingh. It was repaired and cleaned about a century ago by Jaysinghbarthi Malbarthi, a Gosain.

Sârsâ, 8 miles E. from Ânand. Another bauri said to have been built years ago by a Khirawal Brâhman. It was repaired in 1820 and in 1866.

- 6. Wâsad, on the railway, 9 miles S. E. from Ânand is a Phirnal or well with a spiral stair leading down to the water. Over the well are terraces on two sides, that on a third has fallen, and the well is out of repair.
- 7. Sili, 12 miles E. from Ânand. A splendid tank 73 yards square with temple, &c., constructed by Bâi Bâlibâi, daughter of Râjaśrî Mêhral (or Malhâr) Nârâyan of Barodâ about 1826 A.D., known as the Hiri Tank, for the repair of which the rent of 321½ acres of land are set apart, assessed at Rs. 113.
- 8. Bhalaj, 7 miles N.N.E. from Ânand on the Dâkôr line. A bauri of six storeys with 70 steps down to the water,—attributed to Siddharâja, and in fair preservation. It has a seat at the foot of the first descent of 9 steps.
- 9. Napad, 14 miles W. of Wasad, a handsome octagon pond, with a cause-way on twenty-four arches to the middle of it, where are the remains of a chhattra. Also some stone trellis work at the inlet. A wav of the same age (about 400 years old) is to the east of the village.

3 .- THASRA TALUKA.

10. Sarnâl, 5 miles E. from Thâsra, said to be on the site of an old city Kuntalpur, where Râja Chandrasen ruled 300 years ago. A temple of Galêśvar Mahâdêva, on the banks of the Mahî and Gultî, built of stone and said to have been desecrated and the dome destroyed by Ala-u'd-dîn Khilji; it is much ruined, but has been a very large one: the sabhâ mandapa is supported by 35 well carved pillars (a). The Gosain in charge has an income from Government.

Close to Sarnâl are Bhadrasa and Aklâcha also said to be on the site of part of the city of Kuntalpur, and ancient foundations may still be traced.

11. Dâkôr. Temple of Ranchhôdji, built a. p. 1772 by Gopâl Jagannâth Tambekar, a Sâtârâ banker to the Pêśwâ, and is said to have cost a lakh of rupees. The image was brought from Dwârkâ by Bodânâ, a Rajput. The temple is 168 feet from E. to W. by 151 feet from N. to S. and has 8 domes and 24 turrets, of which the highest is about 90 feet.

4 - KAPADWANJ TALUKA.

12. Kapadwanj contains some very old buildings. A beautiful arch described by K. Forbes in his Râs Mâlâ and a kuṇḍ and well; also an underground temple of Siva (a), and a fine Jaina temple.

Inscriptions :- At the entrance to the Mamlatdar's Kacheri is one of the

5.—NARIAD TALUKA.

- 13. Degâm on Dêvtî, 7 miles S. E. from Mahmudâbâd and 4½ or 5 miles N. W. of Nadiâd, on the left bank of the Sheri river, the site of an ancient capital; old lingas, Nandis, and broken statues lie about, and coins are sometimes found bearing the legend—parama bhaṭṭâraka. The returns make no mention of it.
- 14. Pati Harji. A temple built by Santarâm Bâwâ, who came to Nadiâd in 1810 A. D. and died in 1830. It is under his disciple Chaturdâs.
- 15. Wadtal. Temple and monastery of Svâmi Nârâyan, and seat of the southern gâdi of the sect.
- 16. Mahudha. Tank of Patel Talandi built in 1758 A. D. by Kusalji Bhukhan.
 - 17. Alina. Mosque built about 150 years ago.

6. - KAIRA TALUKA.

18. Mahmudâbâd. (1) Rozah of Mubârak Sayyid, prime minister of Mahmud Bigarah (died 966 A.H.) at Sojali, 3 miles N. E. from Mahmudâbâd, one of the finest Muhammadan remains in Gujarât. "There is a simplicity about its plan, a solidity and balance of parts in the design, which is not always found in these tombs, and has rarely if ever been surpassed in any tomb in India. The details, too, are all elegant and appropriate, so that it only wants somewhat increased dimensions to rank among the very first of its class. Its constructive arrangements, too, are so perfect that no alteration in them would be required, if the scale had been very much increased. The tomb itself is surrounded by a screen of perforated stone-work, of the very finest tracery, and with its double verandah aids in giving the sepulchral chamber that seclusion and repose so indispensable in a mausoleum" (Fergusson's Architecture, p. 539). It contains two central tombs—of Mubârak Sayyid and his son Mirân Sayyid, and three later tombs, on the east side; also one enclosed at a later date in the east verandah. There are several recent tombs also in the verandahs.

The tomb stands in the corner of a small irregular fort, the lower portion of the walls of which are of stone—apparently Hindu work,—and the apper part of brick and probably much more modern. The north-east corner of the Rozah has been restored with brick, and alterations have been made in the screens. It has been sadly injured by the villagers within the last 20 years, and is greatly in need of some care being taken of it (a).

Inscriptions:-Three of quotations from the Kuran, on the walls, and two short ones on the marble tombs.

To the east of this dargah are two low brick ones containing the tombs of Saifu'd-din and Nizâmu'd-din, brothers of Mirân Sayyid's mother, and of the architect of the large dargah. To the west of them are the minars of an Idgâh. The larger of these small dargahs has been built with small chhatras at the corners of the dome in imitation of the large one. Down the river a little are the minars of a mosque, one of which is partly undermined by the river and leans over a good deal. It must soon fall in.

(2) The Phir or Bhamaria well, a mile south, is a curious stone structure of the time of Maḥmūd Shāh (15th century). It differs from those of Borsad and Umrêt in being octagonal, and having four stairs leading down to a range of galleries in a very poor state of repair.

(3) In the town of Mahmudâbâd is also a good wav or step well, of the time of the founder of the city.

7.-MATAR TALUKA.

19. Mâtar, 4 miles S.W. from Khêda. A Śrawak or Jaina temple, built about 80 years ago at a cost of 4 lakhs of rupees.

20. Traj, 3 miles S.S.W. from Matar. A tumulus apparently artificial.

8.—KHAMBAYAT OR CAMBAY.

21. Khambât. (1) The Juma' Masjid is a fine mosque with 44 large and 68 small domes and numerous pillars and pilasters. It was built "in the reign of Muhammad Shâh bin Toghlak Shâh in the month of Muharram 725 a. H. (a. d. 1325) by 'Umar bin Ahmad il Kâzaruni." It measures over all 200 feet by 210 feet and its internal court 120 feet by 135 feet. "Except in being somewhat smaller in scale, its plan and arrangements are almost identical with those of the Altamsh mosque at Ajmer." The pillars are all borrowed from Jaina temples, and it has two galleries similar to those in Ahmad Shâh's mosque in Ahmadâbâd. The mehrabs are beautifully carved. (2) At the south end of the building are two marble tombs bearing beautiful Arabic inscriptions—one being that of 'Umar bin Ahmad il Kâzaruni, the builder of the mosque, who died Wednesday 9th, Safar 734 a. H., and the other that of his wife Fatima, daughter of Haja Husain il Ghilâni, who died after her husband. Over them is a fine mausoleum. "It is wholly composed of Hindu remains and is two storeys in height and was crowned with a dome 28 feet in diameter but it fell in and is now a ruin." (a)

Inscriptions:—One on the north entrance to the masjid; one on each tomb; one on a well in the court stating that it was made by Ali bin Abdu'n-nabi il

Baghdådi in A. H. 1030; on a marble shaft lying in the north corridor of the court is one in Dêvanagari, dated Samvat 1468.

(3) A masjid near the Tîn-darwâza bears an inscription of A. H. 1056 [or 10671?] (A. D. 1646). It has a marble arch and is supported on 32 wooden pillars.

(4) A Jaina temple called Chintâmani Pârśvanâth or Mehal Sagotapâdô in Dantarwâḍâ dedicated to Pârśvanâtha, originally built in A.D. 1588 but rebuilt at a much later date. It has inscriptions on the images both in the underground storey and the main floor. (5) The temple of Adîśvara is another Śrâwak temple, said to have been built by Tejaḥpâla in 1605 A. D.¹ (!!), has also a sunken storey and image. (6) The temple of Neminâth in the Jêrâlâpâdâ; all three are built without spires, like common houses.

(7) About a mile from Khambât is a Muhammadan building erected in A. H. 771 (A. D. 1369-70), and dedicated to a Pîr named Khâja Khezir. It has four Inscriptions.

(8) Outside the Pania gate on the east of the town is a bauri of considerable age. Narêśvar Tank outside the city on the north is a large reservoir cased with brick, with gardens and a summer house. Near it is a mosque built by one Imâmshâh of Brana near Ahmadâbâd, in memory of his two children Bala and Ball who were said to have been turned into two small heaps of flowers here.

(9) At Nagara, 3 miles out, are the vestiges of the old city.

XVIII.-PANCH MAHÂLS.

I .- HALOL TALUKA.

1. Champanir, 30 miles N. E. from Baroda. (1) The Jamâ Masjid, said to have been built by Muhammad Shâh in 1484,—but see Briggs's Ferishtah IV., 70; The words خطبه و عنبه give the date 914 A. H. (1508 A. D.). It is of white sandstone beautifully cut and has minarets in front, perfect in design and taste and beautifully ornamented and said to surpass even the Jamâ Masjid at Ahmadâbâd. "By the ravages of time the building has been injured in many places but it has not yet lost its beauty." It is now quite disused.

Inscriptions: - Three were on the back wall, of which the middle and most important one was recently carried off.

(2) Sakar Khan's dargah near the Kasbin-talao, with handsome dome and fine pierced stone windows.

(3) Shahr-ka Masjid, in the Bhadr or citadel, a rather clumsy, low-roofed mosque, in a fair state of preservation.

(4) The Mandvi or custom-house, in the same, a well proportioned large portico.

(5) The east and south Bhadr gates have both Inscriptions in Persian.(6) The Nagina Masjid, about 600 yards north of the Bhadr, is a fine mosque of beautiful white stone, with the remains of an elegant domed mauso-

(7) Bawa Man's mosque, S. of the Bhadr, is a small plain mosque without minarets, and the façade of which is pierced by three equal sized arched door-

(8) Ruins of a small building and a mosque about 12 miles E. of the Bhadr on the bank of the Bada talao.

(9) The Kajuri Masjid west of the Nagina mosque is of brick and much dilapidated.

(10) Kevada Masjid, N.N.W. from the Nagina mosque, has the remains of an exquisitely carved mausoleum beside it.

(11) The Lili Gumbaz-kâ Masjid, N.N.E. from the Jumâ Masjid.

(12) Some rained Jaina temples, &c., in the old Hindu town of Champanir, south of the road near the foot of the hill.

(13) The Jepure at a small lake considerably to the N. of the Nagina

Masjid.

2. Påwågadh, a mile to the S. W. of Champanir—the remains of an old fortress; on the north-east spur of the hill (2727 feet high) are the remains of the old Hindu town of Champanir. At the foot of the south cliff are some caves. The first gate is the Atak, the second is the Budiâ or great gate, a very strong work. The Sât Mahâl or seven-storeyed palace is on the edge of a cliff within the Sadan Shâh gateway. There are also other remains such as the Mâchi Haveli, Makai Kothâr, and Nava Lakha Kothâr, several ruined Jaina and Brahmanical temples of about the 12th century, on the plateau; the Ganga Jamuna kund and Sûraj kund, within the walls; and at the top the shrine of Kâlkâ Mâtâ, and a small group of Jaina temples just below it, of considerable age, but recently renewed and modified by the Jainas who are re-occupying them.

3. Hâlol. (1) A one-storeyed sandstone mausoleum of Sikandar Shâh (1526 a. D.) which had formerly two large and five small domes (Forbes' Or. Mem. III., 476), but all of the domes are now fallen. It was built by Bahâdur Shâh. It contains also the tombs of Nâsir Khân and Latif Khân, brothers of Bahâdur Shâh (Ferishtah IV., 108).

(2) Ek Minar-ka Masjid, about 13 miles W. from Champanir on the Halol and Jambughoda road.

(3) Half a mile further south, close to Pawagadh, the Panch Mahuda-ka

Masjid.

(4) Half a mile S. W. of Hâlol is a well—Chandrakala wâv—similar to the Bhamaria well at Mehmudabad; beside it is another called Sûryakala.

(5) A mile S. is the eight kûvas and 9 dåvra (three-cornered small wells).

- 4. Dêsar near Sonipur, 20 miles S. from Hâlol. The Rudra Mâla, an old stone temple of Siva, of small size, but its walls are richly carved, perhaps of the 14th century (a).
- 5. Bhâvka, 5 miles S. W. of Dohad. An old ruined temple (15th century) of Mahâdêva, originally octagonal, with three belts of sculpture on the outside.

2.—Dohad Ziela.

6. Dohad. Caravansarai built by Shâh Jahân in honour of Aurangzeb's birth, 1619 A.D.

3.—JHALOD ZILLA.

7. Lilvadêva. This village with Lilva-pokhar and Lilva-thâkur are said to be on the site of an ancient city Lilâvati. There are several Śiva temples with well cut sculptures.

XIX.-MAHI KANTA.

- 1. Idar. (1) At the foot of the gadh or fort is the cave-temple of Khokanåtha Mahådêva partly ruined, supposed to be upwards of 400 years old. It is an oblong apartment 30 x 20 feet and from 4 to 6 feet high excavated in the rock and used as a place of worship. (2) In a rising ground south of the town and close to the wall is the cave-temple of Dhanêsvara Mahâdêva, a natural rock cavern 20×10 feet and from 5 to 7 feet high. (3) In a rising ground 3 of a mile south-west of Idar is the cave of Mankâlêśvara Mahâdêva. It measures 20 x 12 feet and the height varies from 5 to 10 feet. (4) On the summit of the gadh to the north-east of the town the Ruthi Rani-nu-malium built of brick plastered with chunam. It is said to be upwards of 600 years old! It has a domed roof, in the Muhammadan style, with a courtyard in front, and measures 25×19 feet and 12 feet high. It is visited by pilgrims and travellers. The wife of a former chief of Idar having some disagreement with her lord was ordered to live on the hill, where this palace is said to have been built for her and is thus called after her name. (5) In the gadh to the north of the town the Radmalni Choki appears to be an unfinished Jaina temple, built of white sandstone. It measures $75 \times 34 feet and 16 feet high: in the Jaina style. (6) On the gadh is the cave (a natural cavern) of Wajar Mâtâ with a wall and terraces in front. It is 22×18 feet and 7 feet high and contains an image of Wajar Mâtâ worshipped by all castes. It has a ruined dharmasala attached to it built of brick and plastered with chunam. (7) In the gadh, the temple of Santinath, of white sandstone, sculptured, and brick plastered; is upwards of 400 years old and entire, measuring 160 x 125 and 55 feet high.
- Limbhoi. The temple of Kalnâth Mahâdêva with a dharmaśâlâ partly in ruins, is built of white sandstone and brick plastered. It measures 37 × 15 feet and 30 feet high.
- 3. Ahmadnagar. The Bhadr palace in ruins, upwards of 400 years old; built of white sandstone. The space within the surrounding fortified walls measures 700 by 500 feet. The palace is said to have been originally constructed in the reign of Ahmad Shâh, the founder of the town. It is also called Mohina-râni-na-mehâl. (2) A kund or reservoir mostly in ruins, having a courtyard, is built of white sandstone plastered. It measures 100 × 50 feet. The reservoir is said to have been constructed during the reign of Ahmad Shâh as a bathing place for "Mohina-rani" who it is said used to visit it daily by an underground passage from the Bhadr palace.
- 4. Khed Bramha. The temple of Brambaji surrounded by a wall measuring 57 × 30 feet and 36 feet high, is built of white sandstone and brick plastered. It has been recently put in repair by the Brahman community of the town and has an image of Bramha which is worshipped. The temple is known by the name of "Bhṛigu Rishi." The river Harnav on which the village stands is considered sacred. A fair is held every year on Magha Sud 14th.
- 5. Desan. The temple of Bhavanath Mahadêva, upwards of 400 years old, measures 50 × 25 feet and 36 feet high: is built of white sandstone and brick: partly in ruins: has a dharmaśala attached to it. This temple is known by the name of Chuman Rishi, a great sage. A fair is held here annually in the month of Sravan.

- 6. Bhilora. The temple of Sri Chandraprabhuji, of white sandstone sculptured and plastered. It measures 70 × 45 feet and 30 feet high. It has a tower four storeys or 75 feet high, and a dharmaśâlâ within the entrance gate. It has been recently put in repair by a Jaina merchant.
- 7. Posina Sabli. The temples of Parsvanath and Neminath measuring 150 × 140 feet and 26 feet high are built of white sandstone plastered with chunam.
- 8. Sâmlaji. The temple of Sâmlaji is built of white sandstone and brick and is surrounded by a wall with a gateway. It is of two storeys supported on pillars and a canopy with arches on each side. It is supposed to be upwards of 400 years old. It contains an image of Vishņu (a).

Some old Inscriptions.

A city is said to have existed at this place in the time of Råja Harichandraji, signs of which still remain. A number of images of Brahmâ, Vishnu and Siva are found in several places which are now in ruins. A large fair is held here every year for fifteen days on Kârtik Sud 13th.

- 9. Timba in the Gadwârâ Zilla. The Târangâ temples on the top of a hill surrounded by other peaks. They are seven storeys high and are temples of Ajitnâthji and Sambhunâthji built of white sandstone and brick. These temples are said to have been built in the reign of Kumârpâla of Paṭṭan 700 years ago (vide Forbes' Râs Mâlâ) (a).
- 10. Sudåsna. There is a cave temple of Mokheśvar Mabådêva about 4½ miles north-west of Sudåsna on the bank of the river Sarasvatî with a monastery close by, built of sandstone and brick, now in ruins. This temple is held sacred by all castes from being on the river Sarasvatî (Kumârikâ) the waters of which are offered to the idol and to a Pimpal tree. A fair is held here every year, Bhådarwa Sud 11th.

11. Åråsûr, 15 miles N. E. of Dântâ. The temple of Ambâ Bhavânî, measuring 25 x 20 feet and 19 feet high is built of marble of inferior quality by Någar Bråhmans. It has a dharmaśālā. The floor is paved with marble (a).

Inscriptions:—(1) On the edge of a reservoir near the principal shrine called the Manasarowar, of Maharana Sri Maladeva, dated A.D. 1359. (2) Also at the door of the adytum of the temple of Ambaji is a tablet which records offerings made in A.D. 1545 by the Rani of Rao Barmal of Idar. (3) There are several other inscriptions on the pillars of the temple, principally of the 16th century, recording gifts of private individuals and one, dated A.D. 1723, when the "lord of the land Rajadhiraja Ranaji (one hundred and eight times repeated) Sri Prati Singhji was ruling: states that a Wania family built a dharmasala for the sake of a son, and adds "by the kindness of Amba, the hope was fulfilled" (vide Forbes' Ras Mala). It is visited four times a year by large sanghs in the months of Kartik, Maghasir, Sravan and Bhadrapad. The revenue of the temple is considerable (Forbes' Ras Mala, Chapter IX., vol. I.).

12. Four miles N. E. of Ambâ Bhavânî, the temple of Kôtêśvar Mahâdêva measuring 20×15 feet and 25 feet high. There is a dharmaśâlâ attached to it, partly ruined. The pilgrims who visit the Ambâ Bhavânî shrine visit this also, as without doing so their pilgrimage would not be considered complete. The sacred river Sarasvatî takes its rise from near this temple, and the pilgrims consider that by bathing at this spot in its water they are cleansed from all their sins (b).

Inscriptions: - On the jamb and threshold are two, of Samvat 1156 and

13. Kumbharia. The temples of Neminath built of white marble were according to tradition 360 in number but were afterwards reduced to 5 by volcanic disturbance. They are much visited by pilgrims.

In the temple of Neminath there is an Inscription, dated A. D. 1249, recording additions to the edifice made by Bramhadeva, the son of Chahud, the minister of Kumarpal Solanki. On one of a group of paliyas close by is an Inscription, dated A. D. 1200, which states that "Sri Dharavarshadêva, the lord of Arbuda, the throne to all Mandalikas on whom the sun shines, constructed a well in this city of Arasanpur" (Forbes' Ras Mala). There are also other Inscriptions both in the temples and on the stones of this group (a).

These Jaina temples were constructed, it is said, by Vimalasah to the number of 360. They were dedicated to Pârśvanâth. It is said that Ambâ Mâtâji gave great wealth to Vimalasah and asked him by whose aid he had built these temples; he replied, by the aid of his spiritual preceptor. The Mataji repeated the question thrice and each time received the same answer. She then said to him, escape as soon as you can. He fled into the crypt below one of the temples and emerged on Mount Abu. Then the Mâtâji consumed all the temples by fire with the exception of five (vide Forbes' Râs Mâlâ).

- 14. Haldervas on the bank Wâtrak, half a mile S. E. of the village in the Ghorasir Taluka is the temple of Mahadeva named Bhrigu Rishi measuring 20 x 14 feet. On the other side of the river opposite the preceding is a temple of Parasar Mahâdêva 36 feet by 18: repaired about 70 years ago.
- 15. Bamnoli-Kot, a ruined fort about half way between the villages of Haldervas and Barmuara on the right bank of the Watrak river. It is said to have been built by Muhammad Begada.
- 16. Jetpur, 3 miles from Gabat. The Khanera Talav, a large tank with masonry band on the north side. This fine tank and band are said to have been made by the orders of Siddharaja Jayasingh.
- 17. Prantvel, about 4 miles from Gabat. 3 of a mile east of the village is a raised platform on which there are three stones like Påliyås, a large one in the centre and two smaller ones on either side. Round the platform there are thirty or forty graves. The people of the neighbourhood say that these stones were erected and are now worshipped by a wandering tribe called "Chamathas."
- 18. Magori. Three Paliyas on one of which is carved a man and a horse. There is an inscription on one of the Pâliyâs, which is illegible. Another Pâliyâ is called Hathia. A black stone on which are carved 3 snakes is called by the natives "Gok Chuhân."
 - 19. Punadra. An old fort of the time of Muhammad Bigarah.
- 20. Telnal on the Watrak. The very old temple of Kedarésvar about a mile from the village. It has been recently repaired.

- 21. Ramas. A step well, said to have been built by the wife of the Nawab of Kapadwanj, 500 years ago.
- 22. Sathamba. A step well and a Paliya with an inscription which runs as follows:—
- संवत १३२५ वरखे अघाड सुदि १४। शानिवार दिने सोता कविनी श्रीवंताराजश्री सामजनल सार्तासह राजश्रीडं. तकाजेतवडकीरमोपलप्राशिनश्राते.
- 23. Amlyala. The temple of Nilkanth Mahadéva, an old Musalman tomb and the ruins of old Amlyala.

XX.—AHMADABAD ZILLA.

1.—Ahmadabad or Daskroi Taluka.—No return.1

1. The city of Ahmadâbâd lies along the east bank of the Sâbarmatî river about sixty miles from its source. The western wall is in nearly a straight line from north to south, its bastions looking down upon the river. The continuation of the walls round the north, east, and south of the city forms an irregular fanshaped enclosure. Situated in the middle of the western side of the city, with the city walls forming its western defence, is the square enclosure called the 'Bhadr.' This was the citadel and contained the palaces of the Sultân and his nobles, and later the head-quarters of the Peśwâ when the combined Marâtha forces held the city. The great bastion to the south-west corner of the 'Bhadr' is said to contain the foundation stone of the city.

The principal entrance to the Bhadr is on the east through a large massive gateway flanked and surmounted by bastions. To the south of this gateway, built on to it, and forming the south-east corner of the Bhadr, is Âzam Khân's palace, now a jail, and one of the largest buildings in the city. About 500 yards in front of this gateway is the Tin Darwaja, or triple gateway, which spans the street.

Between the Bhadr and the south-west corner of the city is another enclosure, now used as an arsenal, but originally the seat of the Gaekwad's government when the Peśwa occupied the Bhadr.

The rest of the city traversed by a network of roads, streets and lanes, remarkable for their narrowness and awkward turns, is thickly occupied and built upon. Amongst the dwellings and shops is a good sprinkling of mosques, tombs and temples.

Although Ahmadâbâd takes its name from its reputed founder Ahmad Shâh I, it was probably in existence as a city long before his time. Râja Karan of the Solanki race of Anhilwâda in his excursions against the predatory tribes of this part is said to have built the town of Karnavati in the 11th century, which most probably was the town that Ahmad Shâh took possession of as his capital and adorned with many of its mosques and tombs. That this locality was an important one before the Muhammadan annexation is sufficiently attested by the many remains of Hindu architecture in the city and suburbs. All the pillars in Ahmad Shâh's mosque, the oldest in the city, are pillaged from a Hindu temple, and on one is an inscription in Devanâgari dated Samvat 1307, which seems to have escaped the hands of the Moslem iconoclasts. Many Hindu images have been found, and are still turning up. The well of Mâtâ Bhawânî to the north-east of the city is far older than the Muhammadan period, and in all probability served as a model for the far more advanced specimens of Dâdâ Hari's, Adâlaj, and others through the province.

But whatever the city was before the Muhammadan period, its chief interest lies in these subsequent times. The greatest part of the architectural work of that time has been swept away and its material used to raise the mosques and tombs, walls and bastions, of the conquerors.

Ahmad Khân, or Ahmad Shâh, was the grandson of Muzaffar Shâh who from being viceroy of the province under the imperial court of Delhi assumed regal power. Ahmad Shâh is said to have founded the city of Ahmadâbâd on or near the site of the village of Asâwal in A.D. 1412. During his reign were raised some of the finest buildings in the city,—his own mosque in the Bhadr; the Jummâ mosque, the most extensive in the city; Rânî Sipri Rânî Asnî's mosque and tomb, the most complete in all its parts; Haibat Khân's mosque; Sayyid Âlam's mosque; the Tîn Darwâja; Sîdi Sayyid's mosque, in which are two specimens of about the best window tracery in Gujarât, perhaps in India; and his own tomb and that of his queens. In the suburbs was constructed, during his reign, Malik Âlam's mosque, two miles to the south of the city.

Ahmad Shâh reigned until A.D. 1443, when he was succeeded by his son Muhammad Shâh, who reigned from A.D. 1443 to 1451. He does not appear to have done much to the city in his short reign, which was chiefly passed in foreign wars. In A.D. 1459 he was succeeded by his son Kuth Shâh. The mosque and tomb of Shêkh Ahmad Khuttu Ganj Bakhsh at Sarkej with the adjoining tank were completed during his reign. He built his own mosque in Mirzapur during his father's lifetime. Kankaria's Tank was completed, Dharyâ Khân's tomb, and the Batwa and Usmanpur mosques were finished in his time.

Dying in 1459 a.p. he was followed in the kingdom by his younger brother Mahmud Bigarah, the most celebrated of the kings of Ahmadâbâd. His was a long reign, from 1459 a.p. to 1511 a.p. "His personal strength, courage and military skill are as conspicuous as his religious bigotry and his stern but far-sighted statesmanship. His love for architecture is attested by the cities of Mustâfâbâd and Mahmudâbâd, which he founded at Junâgadh and Champanir, and another Mahmudâbâd (or Mehmadâbâd) near Khêda, as also by the numerous and elaborate additions which his nobles, following his taste, made to Ahmadâbâd and its environs."

During his reign were built the mosque and tomb of Sayyid Usmân on the west bank of the Sâbarmatî, Miyan Khân Chishti's mosque, Muhâfiz Khân's mosque, Achyut Bibi's mosque and tomb, Dastur Khân's mosque, Dâdâ Hari's well, and the Shâh Âlam group 3 miles to the south of the city. Mahmud Bîgarah was succeeded by his son Muzaffar II (A. D. 1511-1526), and he by Bahâdur Shâh, Mahmud II, Ahmad Shâh II, Muzaffar III, in order down to A. D. 1572, when Akbar marched into Gujarât, captured Muzaffar, reduced the province, and left a governor to carry on its affairs.

"For about one hundred and fifty years subsequent to its invasion by Akbar, Gujarât was governed by the viceroys of the emperors of Delhi, among whom were Shâh Jehân and Aurangzeb before they themselves ascended the imperial throne. During the first half, at least, of this period, Ahmadâbâd appears to have been in the zenith of its prosperity. Under Muzaffar Shâh III, indeed, almost the last, and not the least beautiful, of the stone mosques had been erected; and subsequent buildings are mostly in the plainer and more massive style of the Pathâns."

An army under General Goddard advanced upon Ahmadâbâd "and on the 10th of February (1780 A.D.) displayed, for the first time, the British colours before the Moslem capital of Gujarât. The Marâtha governor declining to surrender, a battery was opened on the 12th, and on the morning of the 15th a forlorn hope, followed by the grenadiers of the Bombay division, rushed up the breach, which the garrison, after a determined stand, and when three hundred of their number had fallen, at length relinquished." Since then Ahmadâbâd has remained in the hands of the British.

(1) In the south of the Bhadr or citadel is the mosque of Ahmad Shâh (A. D. 1414), the oldest Muhammadan building in the city. Architecturally it is unique; the external screened stair and the ladies' gallery being the most curious mixture possible of Muslim and Hindu styles. The pillars throughout the mosque are taken from old Hindu temples; on one of them there is a Dêvanâgari Inscription dated Samvat 1307. The domes are richly carved. The minarets are squat. Over the principal mehrab is an Arabic Inscription.

(2) The tomb of Darya Khan, north of the city near Achyut Bibi's Masjid (No. 3) erected in 1453 A.D., is imposing and notable for its constructional peculiarities. It is entirely of brick, the walls being very thick. It is the most massive building in or around Ahmadabad. It has a very large and lofty brick dome. It has five arches in each face of the verandah.

(3) Achyut Bibi's Masjid and tomb, $\frac{3}{4}\text{th mile north of the city and on the east side of the river, partly ruined by the earthquake of 1819. The masjid was built by Haji Malik Behau'd-din Imadu'l-mulk, brother of Malik Makhsud Vazir, in 1469, for his wife Bibi Achyut Kuki. It has a fine façade and there is much tracery on the bases of the minarets. It is almost a copy of the Mîrzapur Queen's mosque and has three marble mehrâbs with an Inscription over the central one. The mimbar is of marble and has a canopy over it. The central one of the three domes is raised and neatly carved inside. The tomb in the enclosure is small and neat. The upper portion of the wall surrounding the inner enclosure is perforated between small pilasters; and the entrance to it has been carved with much taste, but will soon be a total ruin unless cared for. (a)

(4) The Queen's mosque in Mîrzapur quarter, near the Traveller's banglâ, 105 feet by 46 feet, and 32 feet high, "consists of three domes standing on 12 pillars each with the central part so raised as to admit light to the interior." The minarets fell in 1819, but the bases of them are filled with exquisite patterns of tracery. In the adjoining tomb, which is in better style than Râni Asni's, the large central and two side domes are adorned with some pretty carved work in geometric patterns and arabesque.

(5) The Jama Masjid (A. D. 1424) in a court 382 feet by 238 feet, the mosque itself being 210 feet by 95 feet and 49 feet high. Within it are 252 pillars and 76 pilasters supporting fifteen domes arranged symmetrically, the centre three being somewhat larger and considerably higher than the others. The minarets, once famous as "the shaking minarets of Ahmadabad," were thrown down by the earthquake of 1819. Mr. Fergusson says, this masjid, "though not remarkable for its size, is one of the most beautiful mosques in the east." The melarabs or kiblds are inlaid with coloured marbles.

(6) Râṇi Sipri's, properly Râṇi Asnî's mosque and tomb (A. D. 1514) not far from the Âstodia gate. The minarets of the mosque are 53 feet high and perhaps the most beautiful of their class. "Indeed that mosque is the most exquisite gem at Ahmadâbâd, both in plan and detail. It is without arches" (except a small one over a side doorway) "and every part is such as only a Hindu queen could order, and only Hindu artists could carve." The windows in the end are elaborately wrought, and the mehrabs inside are of marble and carved with much care, though not so elaborately as in some other mosques. The walls of the tomb are filled with well carved lattice work and have been recently repaired. About 100 yards north-west from this is a mound said to be the site of the Hindu village of Asâwal, and where a mosque was built, but long since ruined.

(7) Shâh Khupai, Shâh Khub-ki or Hazrat Shahab Shêkh's Masjid (A. D. 1538) in Khâs Bazar, a small mosque in the city, with 32 pillars and two slender minarets, much in the style of the preceding, only inferior in details.

(8) Tomb of Mîr Abu Turâb, outside the city to the south,—an octagonal dome supported on twelve pillars, with a corridor round it forming a square of 41 feet, with six pillars on each face. Here the arch is used as a constructive feature throughout the building, the pillars becoming the piers that support it.

(9) Tin Darwaza, a fine triple gateway in the middle of the city in front of the Bhadr, where was a large enclosure 1600 feet by 800, into which it led. It is said to have been built by Ahmad I. The arches are 25 feet high, and the central one is 20 feet wide. The roof of the terrace on the top was removed in 1877.

(10) Azam Khân's palace (A. D. 1636) now used as the jail. An elegant dome crowns the entrance.

(11) Mosque and tomb of Sayyid Usmân, a mile north-west from the city, and on the west of the river, built by Muhammad Bîgarah in 1460 in the style of the Sarkhêj mosque. In the tomb "a very considerable amount of variety is obtained by grouping the pillars in twos and fours and by the different spacing. In elevation the dome looks heavy for the substructure, but not so in perspective; and when the screens were added to enclose the central square, it was altogether the most successful sepulchral design carried out in the pillared style at Aḥmadâbād" (Fergusson). It is 78 feet square and has a dome 38 feet in diameter, supported on twelve pillars.

(12) Muhâfiz Khân's mosque in the north of the city, near Kutb Shâh's (No. 23), built by Jamâlu'd-din Muhâfiz Khân (A. D. 1465), distinguished for the exquisite character of its details; its minarets, the lower portions of which are of pure Hindu architecture, have recently been taken down and rebuilt; above the roof they "are round towers slightly tapering, relieved by galleries displaying great richness in the brackets which support them as well as in the balustrades which protect them." The mehrâbs in this mosque are about the finest in Ahmadâbâd. They are minutely and elaborately carved (Fergusson, Ind. and East Arch., pp. 533-34).

(13) Ahmad Shâh's tomb to the east of the Jama Masjid, a massive domed mausoleum with tracery windows of beautiful design, and with marble tombs inside, viz., of Ahmad Shâh, his son Muhammad Shâh, his grandsons Jalal Khan, Kutbu'd-din Shah, and Ahmad Shah II.

(14) Tombs of the queens of Ahmad Shâh in an adjoining enclosure surrounded by a screen of tracery of great variety of pattern. The marble tombs are elaborately wrought in bands of sculpture, and that of Murkhî Bîbî is partly inlaid with black marble and mother-of-pearl. The principal tomb is known as Moghlâi Bîbî's, in white marble with a Persian inscription round it.

(15) Sidi Sayyid's Masjid (A. D. 1412) in the north-east of the Bhadr and outside the Lal gate, with two remarkably richly carved sandstone windows measuring 10 feet by 7 high (see Fergusson, I. and E. Arch., p. 533), is now used as the Mâmlatdâr's office.

(16) Miyan Khan Chishti's Masjid near the river, about 2 miles north of the city, between Achyut Bibi's mosque and Shahi Bagh, built in Λ. D. 1465 by Malik Makhsud Vazîr, has been turned into a dwelling-house by the railway officials. It has two fine minarets with rounded or domed tops.

(17) Haibat Khân's Masjid in the south of the city near the Jamalpur gate, built of the pillars of Hindu temples, and one of the earliest examples here. The minarets are simply short thin cylinders. The porch on the east looks as if it were Hindu in its original position.

(18) Dastur Khan's Masjid in the southern part of the city close to Rani Asni's (No. 6), was built by one of the ministers of Mahmud Bigarah (cir. 1486 a. b.). It is a fine building, and is surrounded by a colounade covered by small domes. The perforated screen enclosing a cloister round the courtyard is very varied and beautiful in design.

(19) Sayyid Alam's Masjid built by Abu Bakr Husaini, in the north-west of the city, near Wajihu'd-din's, built in the time of Ahmad Shah, is an early and plain example of the Gujarat Muhammadan style. The façade strikingly resembles that of Ahmad Shah's mosque. The details inside are exceedingly rich.

(20) The Shahpur Masjid, built in 1565 by Shekh Husain Muhammad Chishti, but never finished, is in the north of the city close to the Shahpur gate. The shafts of the minars are very ornamental—the tracery in the niches being perhaps the finest in Ahmadabad, the pattern being small like those of Baba Lului's mosque. The façade is filled in with pointed arches, and a second storey is added on over the central three round the central stilted dome. The minarets are incomplete, the tops having fallen.

(21) Sidi Basir's Masjid and tomb, near the railway station. The archway and elegant minars are all that are now left of the mosque. The style somewhat resembles that of Miyan Khan Chishti's (No. 16), and it probably belongs to about the same period. It was ruined about 1754. The tomb is in a very dirty state.

(22) The Queen's mosque in Sarangpur, near to the preceding, closely resembles Achyut Bibi's. The tops of both minars have fallen.

(23) Kutb Shâh's mosque near the Dehli gate (A. D. 1446). The central mehrâb is of white and grey marble but plain. (Briggs' Gujarâshtra, pp. 221, (24) Shâh Âlam, about 3 miles south of the city. The tomb (cir. 1476) is surrounded by a screen of perforated trellis work, as is also the corridor round it. The interior of the dome is inlaid with mother-of-pearl and prettily painted.

Beside it is the tomb of Mai Âlam, a somewhat plainer building, and the large masjid built by Muhammad Sâlah Badakshi with two lofty and elegant minars built by Nisâbat Khân and Saif Khân; also just within the gate an assembly hall built by Muzaffar Shâh II (1561-72) and several other buildings.

(25) Malik Alam's mosque, built by Malik Alam bin Nur Kabir, styled Waziru'l Mamalik, son-in-law of Ahmad Shah, in 1422 Λ. D., is a little to the north of Shah Alam, and west of the Kheda road, has richly ornamented niches on the bases of the minarets.

(26) Bâbâ Lului's Masjid near Abu Turâb's tomb (No. 8), 69 feet by 37, resembles the Shûhpur mosque and must belong to the same period. It was built about 1560 by Bâbâ Lului or Bâbâ Muḥammad, a pearl dealer.

Tomb of Azam Khân and Mozam Khân, 2 miles S.E. from the city on the road to Sarkhêj:—a massive brick mausoleum like that of Darya Khân (No. 2) built perhaps about 1457.

(27) Nawab Shujat Khan's Masjid in Mirzapur (with an Inscription of A. D. 1695), 2 furlongs north-east from the Lal gate with two slender minarets three bays apart in a façade of five bays. The walls are lined with marble to a height of 6 feet. The adjoining tomb of Shujat Khan is of brick much destroyed (Arch. Sur. Rep., vol. II). This is in a different style from the other mosques in the city, being more in the style of Northern India. The floor is of marble.

(28) Sakarkhan's Masjid in Kalupur.

(29) Ibrāhim Sayyid's Masjid outside the Astodia gate.

(30) Khan Jahan's Masjid in Jamalpur.

(31) Bibi Jini or Ji's Masjid in Râjpur Gomtipur, a mile east of the city. Bibî Ji was the daughter of Sayyid Khun Mîr, and wife of Sayyid Buda Saheb.

(32) Målik Isan's Masjid in Isanpur, 3 miles south of Ahmadåbåd.

(33) Sayyid Ahmad's or Khudawan Khan's Masjid in Danè-Limbri. Behind it is a Rozah or tomb known as Pir Kumal's. This place is also called Alimpur after Amir Malik Alim.

(34) Fatteh Masjid in Daryâpur.

- (35) Moti Shahi Bagh (1455 A. D.), the palace built in the reign Shah Jehan in which is now the residence of the Assistant Judge.
- (36) Miyan Khan Chishti's Masjid in Multanpur, built by Mahk Magsude. (37) Shah Wajihu'd-din's tomb built by Sayyid Murtaza Khan Bokhari (1606-9), in the west of the city, 150 yards north of the Bhadr and as far south of Sayyid Alam's (No. 19), with a lofty dome, and windows of delicate trellis work. It is said to have been built by Amir Sada't Khan in Akbar's time; he also built a Madrassa at the same place. The chhatra or wooden canopy was put up by Murtaza Khan about the same time. These buildings were completed in A. H. 1011 (A. D. 1602). Wajihu'd-din died in A. H. 999 (A. D. 1590). Mr. Hope gives a different account.

(38) Ruined mosque at the railway station, of which only the minars remain, and are the highest in Ahmadabad. It probably belongs to the early part of the 16th century.

(39) A mosque near Seth Dalpatbhai's mansion between Muhâfiz Khân's and the Jama Masjid, resembles Râni Asni's (No. 6). It has an inscription dated A. H. 910 stating that it was built by Muḥammad Shâh son of Muḥammad Shâh bin Aḥmad Shâh bin Muḥammad Shâh.

(40) Mahmud Ghaus' mosque, 300 yards south of the Queen's mosque in Sârangpur, "looks like a bad transcription of the Juanpore mosques, and though not deficient in a certain amount of grandeur, is painfully wanting in elegance." It was built in 1562, and bears some resemblance to the Jaunpur mosques of the 15th century.

(41) Chhota Udrus Saheb's mosque near the civil hospital.

(42) Mata Bhavani's well to the north of the next.

(43) Dâdâ Harir's well at Asârwâ, on the north-east outskirts of the city, built in A.D. 1499, is one of the finest in Gujarât.

(44) Svāmi Nārāyan's temple (1850), with an octagonal dome supported by 12 pillars.

(45) The Jaina temple of Hatesingh (1848). The external porch is of great magnificence and most elaborately ornamented. In the court are sixteen shrines on each side and others at the back. The temple in the middle of the court is of two storeys and very richly ornamented.

(46) The Kânkaria tank, ³ milesouth-east from the Râyapur gate, A.D. 1451, one of the largest of its kind in India, being a polygon of 34 sides each 190 feet long. The supply sluice is exquisitely carved. In the centre of the tank is an island connected with the bank by a causeway. On the island was the Naginâ garden and Ghattâmandal palace.

(47) The Dutch tombs rear the Kankaria tank to the south-east of the city, 1641 to 1699. (Briggs' Cities of Gujarashtra, pp. 264-66.)

(48) Jaina temple of Chintâman in Saraspur, 1½ mile east from the city, built by Sântidâs, a Vânia, in 1638, at a cost of nine lakhs, was defiled by Aurangzeb, and now neglected.

There are some beautifully carved pigeon-houses and house-fronts well deserving of delineation.

2. Sarkhêj, 5 miles S. E. from Ahmadâbâd. An important cluster of Muhammadan buildings of the 15th century among which are-

(1) The tomb of Shêkh Aḥmad Khattu Ganj Bakhsh of Anhilwâḍâ, begun in A. D. 1445 by Muḥammad Shâh and completed in 1451. In this "an attempt has been made to get a larger dome than the usual octagonal arrangement would admit of, but not quite successfully." The tomb is surrounded by an inner trellis screen of metal perforated in beautiful patterns. The exterior walls are filled with windows of perforated stone. To light the interior of the tomb four tracery windows are introduced into the dome.

(2) In front of the tomb is a pavilion of sixteen pillars and roofed with nine small domes, "forming as pleasing a mode of roofing as ever was applied to such a small detached building of this class."

(3) A mosque with ten domes, "the perfection of elegant simplicity and an improvement on the plan of the Jama Masjid. Except the Moti Masjid at Agra there is no mosque in India more remarkable for simple elegance than this" (Fergusson, Arch., p. 532). It was completed by Maḥmūd Bīgarah in 1451 A.D.

(4) Tomb of Mahmud Bigarah and his son Muzaffar II., on the east.

(5) Tomb of Bîbî Râjbâî, the queen of Maḥmûd, to the west. Also a covered gateway leading into the front of the latter two tombs, a covered hall overlooking the great tank and other buildings.

(6) The great tank with its sluices, &c.

(7) The Palace and Harem, a large building on the west side of the tank.

- 3. Batwå, 5 miles from Ahmadåbåd. Tomb of Burhånu'd-din Kutbu'l Ålam, the father of Shåh Ålam, who died a. D. 1452, erected by Mahmåd Bigarah, similar to the one near Kaira. The outer arches have fallen down and all the perforated work has disappeared. "The monument itself is of most elaborate workmanship" (Hope), but was perhaps never finished. Near it is another tomb over the son of the saint, built without arches.
- 4. Adâlaj, 12 miles N. of Aḥmadâbâd, a very fine well built in A. D. 1499 in several storeys, with flights of steps and platforms alternately.

 Jetalpur, 10 miles S. of Aḥmadâbâd. A building called the Râṇi's palace.

- Vastrâl, about 6 miles E. of Aḥmadâbâd. Temple of Sivarâya Mahâdêva.
- 7. Vatuva or Vadhuva, 6 miles S. of Ahmadâbâd. The "place of Hazrat Katwe Âlam."
 - 8. Rakhyal: Malik Shahban's Rozah with vav and tank.
- 9. Girmatha, 9 miles S. from Ahmadâbâd. The monastery of Pirâna, in the enclosure of which are the Rozahs of Pîrs Imâm Shâh, Nurshâh, Surâbhai, Bâla Muhammad, and Bakr Ali. The income of the sadâvarat is about Rs. 10,000.

2.—DHANDHUKA TALUKA.1

10. Rånpur derives its name from Rånåji Göhel, its founder, and as Mokhråji the son of Rånåji fought with the army of Muhammad Tughlak near Gogho and was killed in battle, it may be presumed that Rånåji flourished in the beginning of the fourteenth century. Rånpur is said to have been a large and flourishing town in former days. The debris of old houses is found to a distance of about two miles from the present village site. It appears to have suffered greatly in the time of Maḥmud Bìgarah of Aḥmadâbâd. On the south side of the village at the junction of the Bhàdar and Gomâ rivers stands an old fort, now much dilapidated, built in A. H. 1048 (A. D. 1638) by Âzam Khân, the Subedâr of Gujarât, during the reign of Shâh Jehân.

The inscription on the gate of the fort runs thus:

"He is the Creator and the Omniscient. The great lord Azam Khan, the lord of his time, the like of whom was never given birth to by this bride of the world.

"The intrepid lion, the bravest of the brave and the lord of the earth.

"The Khan of exalted rank, may his life be long, desired me to find out [in verse] the date of this castle.

"From which be for aye removed the influence of the evil eye.

"Plunging into the ocean of thought I impressed with the seal of my heart [the date derived from the numerical value of the letters composing the word]: "Azamu'l Bilad" (corresponding with the sacred month of Muharram 1048 л. н.).

It appears that at this time a chief named Shahuji was reigning at Ranpur. The Kathis living in the neighbourhood committed great mischief and plundered the villages. Shahuji asked for assistance from Azam Khau, the Suba of Gujarat, to put down these marauders. He consented and was about to send one of his Sardårs for the purpose. At this time the Kåthis carried their excursions up to the gates of Ahmadåbåd, carrying off men and cattle. Âzam Khån went out in person to chastise them and hunted them to Botåd and Pålyad. A battle was fought in which the Kåthi chief was taken prisoner and beheaded. Âzam Khån then intended to establish a thånå at Botåd, but Shåhuji persuaded him to do so at Rånpur, telling him that the water-supply at the latter place was better than at Botåd. Âzam Khån acceded to this and built the fort at the junction of the Bhådar and Gomå rivers. Entering from the east corner of the fort we arrive at a gate which faces the south. Proceeding inside we come to another gate which faces the east. This last gate is the main entrance to the buildings. A little further on we find a masjid facing the east. Near the masjid is the grave of Råjushåh Pîr. An inscription in Persian is on the wall of the masjid, which is translated thus:—

"God is great. In the reign of the king, magnificent as Jamshed, the just and the generous, Shahabu'd-din Muhammad II., the lord of the time, Shah Jehan, the valiant warrior,—may the Almighty perpetuate his dominion—in the month of Zil Haj in the year 1050 A. H. the humble slave of the Almighty, Azam Khan during the term of his Subaship of Gujarat laid the foundation of this sacred mosque in this castle of Shahpur and completed it that the servants of the true God may worship him."

There is a reservoir in the masjid, which was originally filled with the water from a well in the inner part of the fort. Chunam drains are still to be seen to carry the water of this well to all parts of the fort. On the west side of the well is a Hamamkhana or bath-room, and a terrace is built above. There is a cellar underneath this bath-room, which is said to proceed to a great distance underground. On the west of this subterranean passage is Mahadeva and Rajbai Mata, which are said to have been put in after the fall of the Muhammadan dynasty and the assumption of the country by the Marathas. There is an inscription on a stone in the wall facing the river with regard to the bath-room. It reads thus:—

"God is great. The slave of God, Azam Khân, during the tenure of his office of the Subâship of Gujarât commenced the construction of this bath on the 1st of the month of Jumad-el-âkhar 1051 A. H. and completed it at the end of the month Muharram 1052 A.H. Ye who see this place remember him kindly."

On the south side of the spot where the Mahadeva and Mata are placed is another building, which was apparently used for Kachedi purposes. Traces of a garden near this are still visible. Simultaneously with the erection of the fort and the buildings therein, a well was constructed on the bank of the river and on the east side of the village. There is a stone in this well bearing a Persian inscription, which reads:—

"God is great. Azam Khân the servant of God in the month of Shawwal in the year 1051 A. H. during his Subâship of Gujarât having constructed this well, bequeathed it to the garden that the public may be profited.

"And Peace!"

A little further on are the ruins of an old fort. It is said that this fort was built of stone and mud by Rânâji who had fought with the Musalmans, and on his death his seven widows committed suicide by throwing themselves into one of the wells in the fort. It is said to have been demolished by Maḥmud Bîgarah of Aḥmadâbâd.

The ancestors of Ranaii Gohel claimed to be the descendants of Salivahan. They lived in Khedgarh about 10 miles from Bhalotra in Marwar on the Luna river. The Gohels had conquered this country from a Bhill named Khedwa. The country remained in possession of the Gohels for about twenty generations. The last chief of the clan was Sejakji, the son of Janjarsi. The Rathors drove out the Gohels from the country, and Sejaksi with his followers came to Junagadh and entered the service of Raja Kalat Chudasama. Sejakji was entrusted by the Raja and his son Khengar with the protection of Shapur and other 11 villages from the inroads of the Bhills. Sejakji remained for a long time at Junagadh, when one day Khengar, the only son of Kalat, had gone out on a hunting excursion near Shapur and started a hare. The animal entered the camp of the Gôhels, and Khengar demanded it. The brother of Sejaksi and his other followers declined to give it up, stating that it was their principle to protect those who surrendered themselves. Upon this a fight ensued between the Gôbels and the retainers of Khengar. The latter were all killed with one exception, and Khengar was taken prisoner. The man who escaped went and informed the Raja of what had happened, and said that he was not certain whether young Khengar was dead or alive. Sejaksi, who was then in the presence of the Raja, expressed his regret, and said that as the Raja's only son was killed by his men he could not now remain in his territory. The Raja's affection for Sejaksi was however so great that instead of ill-treating him he soothed his mind and told him that he cared more for his friendship than for the life of his son. Sejaksi then went to Shapur and there to his great delight found that Khengar was living; he saluted him and gave him his own daughter in marriage and sent him to Junagadh. Subsequently under the orders of the Raja, Sejaksi founded a village near Shapur, which he named after himself as Sejakpur.

Rânâji was the son of Sejaksi and founded Rânpur. Rânâji was married to the daughter of Dhan Mer, and had a son by her who acquired the village of Khâs and settled there. The present holders of this village known by the name of Khâsya Kôlis are descendants of Dhan Mer's grandson.

After Rånåji's death his son Mokhråji established his bead-quarters at Piram near Gogho and was a renowned pirate. He was killed near Gogho in a battle which took place between him and the army of Muḥammad Tughlak, the son of Giyasu'd-dîn.

When Mahmud Bîgarah was ruler of Gujarât one of the Bhâyads or cousins of this Mokhraji, who was also named Ranaji, was in the enjoyment of the Rånpur estate, and held it as an independent chief. The Råja of Mårwar had married his two daughters, the eldest to Mahmud Bigarah and the younger to this Ranaji. It so happened that both the sisters one day met at their father's house. The Begam asked her younger sister to come and dine with her. Out of respect for her elder sister, without giving out the true cause she refused to dine. When further pressed on the matter Rânâji's wife plainly told her that as she had married a Musalman she could not now take her meals with her. The elder sister took this to heart and went and informed her husband about the insult that was offered to her. Mahmud tried to effect an amicable settlement by converting Rânâji and his wife, but failed in his attempt to do so. Rânâji then fell under the displeasure of the chief. An army was sent to Ranpur under the command of Bhauderikhan. Ranaji was killed and the country came under the direct control of Mahmud Bigarah, who subsequently bestowed it on Håloji Parmar, the ancestor of the present Molesatam Parmars in Rånpur.

A Jat Sardar residing in Sindh had a beautiful daughter named Sumribai. The king of Sindh wanted to marry her, but his overtures were rejected and the Jat left the country and came to Muli, where Lagdharji and Hâloji of Parmâr descent were reigning. They kept the Jats under their protection and promised to assist them against the forces of the chief of Sindh. The latter, however, followed and laid siege to Muli. Through the treachery of an officer the single well from which the Parmars derived their water-supply was polluted by the head of a cow being thrown into it. The Parmars then surrendered. Sumribai, the daughter of the Jat Sardar, was however sent away to some secure place and Hâloji was delivered over to the enemy as a hostage. Sumribâi retired towards Vanod, where she died and where her grave is still pointed out. On the other side, Lagdharji sought the protection of Mahmud Bîgarah, who thereupon sent an army against Sindh and defeated him. Hâloji was delivered, but only to fall into the hands of Mahmud Bîgarah. He was converted to Muhammadanism. and Ranpur together with the surrounding villages which were recently conquered from Rânâji Gôhel were bestowed on him. Thus the Gôhel dynasty became extinct at Rânpur, and Hâloji established himself at that place. Lagdharji, however, remained a Hindu, and his decendants are still at Muli. Hâloji was killed near Dhandhuka in an engagement between him and the Kâthis, and his grave is still to be seen there and is known as Halusa Pir.

Hâloji was succeeded by Hasuji, who was succeeded by his son Kubanji, on whose death his son Shâhuji came to the throne. It was during the time of the latter that Âzam Khân, the Subedâr of Gujarât, built the fort at Rânpur. Daduji was the eldest son of Shâhuji, and he succeeded his father. His son Tâjoji subdued the Kâthis. The succession remained in a direct line for three generations. Togâji succeeded his father Tâjoji. Hâmoji succeeded him at his death, then Sâhebji and Ahimbhai ascended the throne in succession.

During the time of the last-mentioned, in A.D. 1736, Raja Sabalsing of Wadhwan and the son of the Dhrangadhra Raja had gone on a visit of condolence to the Raja of Bhavnagar. On their way back they remained for one night at Ranpur. These two princes went to see the fort. They were so delighted with it that they did not wish to leave it, but resolved to occupy it by force if necessary. A fight ensued between the followers of Ahimbhai and those of the two princes. The Râjâ of Dhrângadhrâ repremanded his son and called him back with his men. Sabalsing also went away to Wadhwan, but returned with reinforcements and laid siege to the fort and reduced the garrison to great distress. At this time Dâmâji Gâikwâd of Baroda had come to Dholkâ to levy Ahimbhai secretly went to him and hired his assistance. On the arrival of the Gaikwad's forces, Sabalsing raised the siege and proceeded towards Nagesh. Dâmâji followed him, and in an engagement Sabalsing was defeated and taken prisoner. Owing to the intervention of Ahimbhai, Sabalsing was spared an ignominious death, but kept in prison at Songhar, from which he returned after paying a large ransom. Ahimbhai bestowed the lands and revenue of Ranpur on Damaji in consideration of the assistance thus afforded to him. The Gaikwad then established his own thank in the village. Subsequent to this the country passed into the hands of the Pêśwâ, and when the British Government came into possession after the battle of Khadkhi, the village of Ranpar was treated as khalsa, while the rest of the villages enjoyed by Ahimbhai's descendants are held under the Tâlukdâri tenure.

11. Bhimnath. According to tradition the place where the present mandir of Bhimnath stands was the abode of the giant Hidimba. The Pandays came thither. Arjun was in the habit of not taking his food till he had performed the paja of Mahadeva. In this jungle they could not find any mandir of Mahadeva, so he could not take his regular meals. His brother Bhima, thinking that he would have to fast long, went out in search of a mandir. He came to a place where some "Jala" trees were. (Those now standing are said to have existed since that time.) He dug a hole in the ground, put a stone therein, and covered the same with a heap of earth and rubbish. Bhîma performed an imitation pûjû and placed wild flowers on the heap. He returned to camp and informed his brother Arjun that he had found out a Siva station, and pointed to the Jala trees. Arjun went to the spot, made his devotions, returned, and took his meals. Bhîma then ridiculed his brother, and told him that the place where he had worshipped was not a Siva station, but that he himself had put a piece of stone underground and promised to point it out if he wished. Arjun replied that for himself he was sincere in his devotions, and had believed that it was a Siva station. All the five brothers and their mother Kuntaji went to the spot. Bhîma removed the heap of dust and rubbish as well as the wild flowers, and struck his stick on the stone, which fractured it and to their astonishment milk began to flow from it. The fracture made with Bhîma's stick in the stone is still shown to the devotees. As the god thus showed himself by a stroke of Bhima's stick, it was named after him, as Bhîmnâth Mahâdêya.

An ancestor of the present Måhant who was at that time wandering round the place as an ascetic dreamed one night that he was directed to make påjå to this Mahådêva. This story was thus circulated and the place grew famous. In Samvat 1535 Måhant Mådhavghar built an ôtå round the Mahådêva, which is not covered by any building. The branches of the Jala trees have extended all along the place, and it is said to be the orders of Mahådêva not to cut any portion of the wood of these trees. The wall round the linga was built in Samvat 1834, with several outhouses. In the time of the present Måhant Išvarghar Budhghar, the place has been greatly improved. The ôtâ round the Mahådêva is paved with marble, and one bullock and two elephants of the same material are placed in front.

There are about 150 houses in the village, surrounded by a wall, built by the present Måhant at a cost of Rs. 80,000 in A.D. 1863. It has two principal gates, and two windows overlooking the river Zilkå. The "Dehli" near the Mahådêva ôta was built in the time of Måhant Asanghar in Samvat 1828. Most of the other buildings and the new houses were built in the time of the present Måhant. The other buildings in the compound were also built in the time of Asanghar in Samvat 1847.

The revenue of nine villages is enjoyed by the Mâhant. All the expenses of the mandir and Sadâvrat are defrayed therefrom. The following are the villages:—(1) Bhîmnâth: The lands round about were all waste. Râghavghar improved the same by cultivation, and built huts for the shepherds, and settled them in the village. (2) Polârpur: In Samvat 1816 the Pêśwâ's government gave this in inâm for the expenses of the Dêvasthân. After the grant the village was peopled. In A.D. 1863 the Tâlukdâri Settlement Officer, Mr. Peile, decided that the Thâkor of Gampha had a share in this village, and the revenue is now divided between the Mâhant and the Thâkor. (3) Jarvalâ: Was granted in inâm by the Peśwâ's government. Owing to failure of crops, &c., the people deserted it, but were induced by the Måhants to come and reside in Bhimnath, and the people of Bhimnath now cultivate the lands of Jarvala. (4) Khasalyu was also granted in inam by the Peśwa's government in Samvat 1815. There was no population in the village at that time, but owing to the exertions of the Måhant the cultivation is now prosperous. (5) Bhojpura: Granted by the Bhavnagar Darbar in Samvat 1872 during the time of Måhant Khimghar. (6) Khamisna was acquired by Måhant Asanghar from the Wadhwan Darbar in Samvat 1841. (7, 8) Bhalgamdi and Shahpur were held in inam prior to the acquisition of the country by the British Government. It is unknown in what Måhant's time it was acquired or who granted it. (9) Sagasar was acquired during the time of former governments. In a.d. 1863, however, Mr. Peile, the then Tålukdari Settlement Officer, decided that the Thåkor of Gampha had a share in the village, and now the revenue is divided between the Thåkor and the Måhant of Bhimnath.

Besides the above there are lands in isolated villages the revenue of which is enjoyed by the Mahant. These lands were from time to time granted by the Kathis and Grasias of neighbouring villages. The total revenue of Bhimnath from landed property is estimated at about Rs. 30,000 per annum. Hundreds of people daily resort to this mandir for worship. Many come to perform their vows, and it is customary to pay in cash or to give a horse, cow, buffalo or bullock to the mandir after the fulfilment of the vows. In the month of Sravan every year about 300 Brahmans daily resort to the mandir for paid. On Sravan Sud 12th, Brahmans of all denominations are fed in memory of one Gehlaśa, an inhabitant of Barvala, and Karbhari of the Limdi Darbar. He set apart about 200 bighas of land in the village of Mogalpur for this purpose, and it is now in the possession and management of the Mahant. On Sravan Sud 15th, the Balev or Cocoanut day, every Brahman who is present at the mandir is fed and paid 4 annas. Owing to this inducement about 10,000 Brahmans assemble. Many other travellers and Sådhus resort to the place, who are also all provided for. On Sravan Vad 6th another feast is given to the Brahmans of all denominations in memory of one Mulji Rewadas of Dhandhuka, who set apart about 200 bighas of land in the village of Vejalka for this purpose. On the last day of Sravan Vad 15th a fair is held at Bhîmnath, which lasts for three days. Hindus think when visiting Dwarka that they must also visit and pay their devotion to Bhîmnâth, hence there is a constant influx of pilgrims. Every morning and evening there is a general call for dinner. Those who can partake of the meals without objection to their caste feelings do so; those who cannot are provided with raw grain and cook their own food.

The Måhants are not allowed to marry. They adopt a Chêlâ. They must make the selection of a Chêlâ from particular castes, such as Atit, Gosâvi, Bairâgi and Rabâri. As far as can be ascertained, the following is a list of the successive Måhants who have had the management of the Bhîmnâth Mandir of Bhadiyâd, 2 miles N. W. from Dholerâ:—The Rozah of Pîr Bhadiâdra is a plain square domed building held sacred by the Musalmans and some lower castes of Hindus in Gujarat, as the tomb of Sayyid Bokhari Mahmudshah Walid Sayyid Abdula Rahman. He was a native of Uchh in the Panjab, and about 600 years ago left home at the age of 15 on pilgrimage. At that time a Rajput Raja ruled at Chokri, formerly known as Chakravati, 7 kos south of Dhandhuka. This Raja, it is said, was a bitter enemy to the Musalmans and never broke his fast till he had killed one of them and made a mark on his forehead with the blood of the slain. This practice he continued till it reached the ears of Mahmudshah through a woman whose son had fallen a victim. Mahmudshah led an army to Chokri and killed the Raja. The son of the latter killed Mahmudshâh in revenge for his father's death. When Mahmudshâh was at the point of death, he requested the Musalmans about him to be buried at the side of Gajbanshah, and in compliance with this request he was buried where the Rozah at Bhadiyad stands now. This Rozah was built some 200 years after his death at the expense of the Nawab of Khambay, who also assigned to it an annual allowance of Rs. 350. The visits which Shah Alam of Ahmadabad and other Musalmans of note paid to the Rozah rendered it attractive to others. Thousands of people, chiefly Musalmans from all parts of Gujarat, annually come to pay their homage to the Bhadiyadra Pîr. A blind Brahman is said to have had his eye-sight restored on his embracing the Muhammadan faith. There was an iron chain in the Dargah weighing a man and a quarter. By means of this chain the innocence or otherwise of a person accused of a crime used to be tested. He was made to wear it and to walk with it to a distance of seven steps. If the chain broke into two pieces of itself after this the innocence of the party was proved beyond a doubt, otherwise he was held guilty and punished for his crime.

DHOLKA TALUKA.—No return received.

13. Dholkâ, 22 miles S. W. from Ahmadâbâd. (1) Mosque of Balol Khân Kazi with a fountain and well.

(2) Khân Masjid with minars, partly ruined.
(3) Jamâ Masjid with two unfinished minars and dome, beautifully ornamented inside with sculpture. Two of the Dholka masjids are very beautiful, and "almost identical in size and plan, being each of them squares of about 150 feet and the mosque-front covered with five domes and the screen wall with three arches each" (Fergusson's I. and E. Arch., p. 538).

(4) Tanka Masjid, built in the time of Firuz Shâh.

(5) Multav Talao made by the mother of Siddharaja Jayasimha.

4. - VIRAMGAM TALUKA. - No return received.

14. Viramgam. (1) Monsar Talao with a number of small temples round it; and temples of Krishna and Mahâdêva, near by-very old.

ADDITIONS TO THE REMAINS IN AND AROUND AHMADABAD.

Since pages 145 to 156 were printed off, the following items of information have come to hand 1:—

[P. 145.] No. (1) Ahmad Shah's mosque in the south-west corner of the Bhadr. The minarets were taken down two years ago, being badly shaken, and the stones were marked and laid on the roof, but no attempt has since been made to rebuild them. The mosque has been deserted and neglected for many years, and is now in possession of Government.

(2) Daryâ Khân was one of Mahmud Bîgarah's nobles who founded the quarter of Daryâpur in Aḥmadâbâd. The structure is purely Muhammadan in style and is interesting as a fine specimen of brick work on a large scale. Its proportions are fine, the walls are massive and form fitting supports to its large and lofty dome. Some of the arches and smaller domes of the outer corridors are cracked, and the brick work of the piers near the ground is considerably worn away in places.

[P. 146.] No. (11) Mosque of Sayyid Othmân or Usmân at Othmânpur or Usmânpur. The mosque has two elegant minârs nearly entire; but the pillars being spaced equally, or very nearly so, over the whole floor, there are no open areas and the general effect is not good.

(17) Haibat Khan's mosque. The west or back wall, which is faced with cut stone and has handsome carved buttresses, is almost hidden from view by two huts.

(19) Sayyid Âlam or Sayyid A'âlamu'd-dîn's mosque, not far from the Khânpur gate, was built by Sayyid A'âlam Abu Bakr Husaini, 1st Rajab Hijri 915 (A. D. 1509). (See Appendix.)

(22) The Sårangpur mosque was built by Målik Sårang, one of Mahmud Bìgarah's nobles, who had the title of Kiwâm-ul-Mûlk. The south minaret is said to have been taken down by a Majhâwar several years ago and the stones carried off, and the north one by Government at a later date, both having been much shattered, but neither has ever been rebuilt. The pillars under the north dome have been enclosed by brick and mud walls for a dwelling. The tomb is an elegant structure on 140 slender but graceful pillars. The dressed ashlar of the outer walls has been torn off and carried away, and nearly all the perforated screen-work round the central chamber and the clerestorey, also the marble top of one of the graves. This building is used as a wood store and is in a disgraceful condition.

should be numbered (26a).

(28) Sakar Khan's Masjid is a very large stone building with 5 domes and mihrabs. The pillars in front are in threes and of Hindu type; the front is open in three sections, separated by short portions of solid walling. The end sections have three spaces each, separated by pillars, and the central section is of 9 spaces.

(31) Bîbiji's masjid at Râjpur Hirpur was struck by lightning a number of years ago; part of one of the minârs has fallen and the other is much shattered near the top. This mosque is very well proportioned and elegant, and deserves to be preserved as a good specimen of the Ahmad Shâhi style of architecture.

(32) Malik Îsan's Masjid. This is a very neat though small masjid with a corridor enclosing the court in front and in the middle of which stands a neat domed tomb. The central mihrâb of the mosque has been torn out and the outer wall of the corridor partly destroyed. The court is filled with weeds and shrubs. Malik Îsan entitled Nizâm-ul-Mûlk was a noble of Gujarât of the time of Mahmud Bîgarah.

(2.) A furlong or so to the south is a small stone mosque somewhat of the style of Darvîsh 'Ali's with central and side bays, separated by narrower ones. It has three richly carved mihrâbs and two windows in the back walk; a window and arched door in each end; and minârs sculptured in patterns differing from those prevalent in Ahmadâbâd.

(3.) Between this mosque and the road is a neat stone stepwell known as Jethabhai's, with a domed chhatri on 12 pillars at the head of the steps, and has Hindu sculptures in the niches. A stair on the north side leads down to the platform in the middle. It was built with stones obtained from mosques, &c., at Dani Limbdi.

(4.) At the entrance to the village is Jiji Baba Rani's stone stepwell, and elsewhere are two other brick stepwells.

- (33) Mâlik Âlim, called also Khudâvand Khân, father-in-law of Sulţân Muḥammad the son of Sulţân Aḥmad, built a stone mosque and tomb at Âlimpur, now Dani Limbdi. It has five large domes, without ornament except pendents in their centres; the central one is raised above the level of the roof like that of Kuṭbu'd-dîn. The five mihrâbs have all been torn out. In the roof just over the entrance, as also in front of the central mihrâb, are slabs beautifully carved in lezenge-shaped sunk areas. The tomb of Shekh Kamâl Mâlvi is close behind.
- (34) Phuti Masjid is between the Dehli and Daryapur gates, near the city wall. This is a large stone mosque with 5 domes and mihrabs, the central mihrab is of stone richly carved; the others are very plain. The domes have small pendentives but are otherwise plain. The pillars have partly at least been reft from Hindu or Jaina temples. The front is open and has 22 pillars. The end domes rise from the pilasters of the walls. It has two short slender minarets with very plain bases at the corners. There is a small Rozah in front with Hindu pillars. The place is quite deserted and used only by weavers in the preparation of their webs.

[P. 147] No. (16) and [p. 148] No. (36) are the same.

(39) This is Darvish Ali's mosque between Pankora Naka and the Civil Hospital south of the Qazi's mosque and of Pir Muhammad Shah's. The minarets are leaning away from the wall and in a very dangerous condition. The Rozah is a very neat one, the walls filled with perforated stone work. To the east of it, in the same enclosure, is Darvish Ali's Taka or cistern, of considerable size and depth, covered in by vaults and with various openings above by which to draw up the water. A stair leads down to platforms above the water.

[P. 149.] (41) The Qâzi's or Chhotâ Idrus mosque on the Ghi Kantha road, built by Qâzi Abu'l-Farah Khân in the reign of Aurangzeb, is a small one of three bays and three aisles (4 pillars on the floor) and arched. But either it was intended to be longer, or it was reduced at a later period; for it has two mihrâb buttresses at the back, and the base extends some length to the north. It has one mihrâb neatly carved. There is a carved niche in the south end and two in the north. The roof is flat. In front is a neat Rozah of 9 small domes, and to the north-east is another Rozah with a large dome enclosed by lattice-work screens. All are in a very dirty and dilapidated condition.

The following stone mosques in the city were not included in any of the returns sent in, but may be added to the list of remains:—

(49) Mirâ Masjid in Lunsavâdâ near Mirâ Choki.

(50) Abdu'r-Razzak's Masjid, on the way from Dabhgarvada to Popatiyaroad.

(51) Hazira Masjid-in Hazira's Pol in Kâlupur.

(52) Sayyid Abdulla Adu's Dargah between Jhaverivâdâ and Chor Nâkâ.
(53) Farhatu'l-mulk or Shekhu'l Sayyid's masjid at the Kharu darwâzâ near Karanj.

(54) Alam Khan's Rozah in Dana pith.

(55) Hasti Bibi's tombs,—one of marble and the other of stone—in Manik Chauk in Rani Hajira.

(56) Râni Hajira in Mânik Chauk.

(57) Abdullah Shâh's Rozah—in Mânik Chauk in Bâdshâh Hajira.

(58) Qutbu'd-dîn's Rozah—in Danivâdâ in Jamâlpur.

(59) Mukhtam Sâheb's Rozah and Masjid—in Jamalpur near Dâta Pathar.

(60) Kach Masjid—in Tajpur, was so named from the tiles with which it was roofed being covered with a bluish green glaze. The two pillars in front and the walls are of stone. It has three mihrabs and a mimbar of 5 steps. On the walls are numerous Inscriptions among which are 6 copies of the Kalima, but from over the central and left mihrab the Inscription slabs have been taken out. The bases of the minars are carved but not richly. The court has a porch on the north side and has been enclosed with a high wall having balcony windows. In this small court is a tank of water.

(61) Sâhâ Badâ Kasum's Rozah—in Tâjpur near Kâch Masjid.

(62) Mustafa Shahid's Masjid—near Siddi Salem's Haveli in Jamalpur.

(63) Shâh-Alîji Aḥmad's Masjid and Rozah—in Rohilvâḍā in Râyakhāḍ. The roof and all the pillars except one of this small mosque have been removed; two slender minarets and the back wall with three mihrâbs, each with an Inscription over it, are all that remain.

(64) Bâbi Masjid—in Rohilvâdâ in Râyakhâd.

- (65) Mardhawad Masjid-in Mardhawad near the Lâldarwâzâ.
- (66) Abdu'l Wahhâb Shâh's Rozah—between Khânpur gate and Mirzâpur, is tribeate in style, with a double colonnade all round and a high central dome. To the west of it are the back and north end walls of a brick mosque, in which are inserted a number of marble slabs bearing inscriptions. To the north-west of it is the Rozah of Abdu'l Wahhâb's son Shâh Ghiâsu'd-dîn and of his grand-son Sayyid Abdu'l Jalil. It is occupied by his descendant Sayyid Bâkir Miyân the Pîr of the Râdhanpur Nawâb.

(67) Mithapur Masjid—near the Nikol gate in Saraspur.

(68) Nawâb Sardâr Khân's mosque and tomb in Jamâlpur Chukla. The mosque to the west of the tomb is of brick, has two pillars in front supporting arches and three pointed domes with gilt tops and crescents. The minârs are octagon and of four storeys. The Rozah is inside a court with large gates. The corner spaces and also round the four doors are filled with good open work in simple but varied geometrical patterns. The floor is of marble inlaid and there is a loose Inscription in the entrance. It has a high and egg-shaped pointed dome with eight smaller ones round it. The central dome bears a sort of brass triśūla, being a crescent with a cross bar. The court is filled with weeds, &c., and surrounded by a high crenellated wall.

(69) Miyan Khan Jahan's masjid close to the Khanja gate is of brick with seven bays and three aisles. It is roofed with small domes and has three mihrabs; the Inscription from the central one has been removed. The mimbar has 7 steps. Of the tomb in front only two of the original nine domes are left.

(70) The dargah of Pirân Pîr, near this, is a small dome surrounded by perforated work of no merit, and contains 3 tombs, with many others outside. The entrance porch to the court has been decorated in modern Muhammadan style.

(71) Shâh Gazni near 'Alîji Ahmad Shâh's tomb in Rohilvâdâ dates from 922 A. H.

(72) Navvi Maholat in Kâlupur is a Borah masjid and contains two Inscriptions.

(73) The Herati Masjid to the left of the Dehli gate is a very small tile-roofed mosque containing an Inscription of 4 lines.

- (74) Inâyat Shâh's Masjid in Shâhpur was a very large brick one, of which the three walls alone remain. It has 5 brick mihrâbs with a marble Inscription over the central one.
- (75) The City Qâzi's Masjid in Astodîa is a very small stone one built A. H. 1271. The mihrâb and probably the windows have been taken from older buildings. Two windows in each end wall and two in front—each to the floor; two in the back are of 4 square each. It has an Inscription.
- (76) The Madrasa of Hidâyat Bakhsh Muḥammad Akramu'd-dîn is said to have been built at a cost of Rs. 1,24,000; the mosque has 5 bays and 3 aisles, is very lofty with arches between the pillars, and roofed with domes and coved ceilings. It has perforated windows high up in the end and back walls: 5 plain mihrâbs and 2 slender octagonal minârs. It stands in a very large court surrounded with the buildings of the Madrasa—now occupied by dyers and much dilapidated. Outside the Madrasa is a small wooden mausoleum over the tombs of Maulâna Nuru'd-dîn Sidi and Qâzi Muḥammad Nizâmu'd-dîn Khân; and to the west of it the tombs of Qâzi Muḥammad Rukhnu'l Haq (having an Inscription) and Qâzi Muḥammad Sâleh.

(77) Hamsa Salât Mashur's masjid in Dhalgarvâdâ is a small brick mosque with wooden pillars and roof. The central mihrâb is carved and over it is an Inscription ; the two side mihrabs are plain.

[P. 149.] Sarkhej. The tomb, mosque and seråi of Shekh Aḥmad Khattu were commenced by Muḥammad Shâh son of Sulţân Aḥmad and completed by his son Quṭbu'd-dîn. Shekh Aḥmad died in A.H. 849 (A.D. 1445). Here also are buried Sulţân Maḥmud Bîgarah and Sulţân Muzaffar.

[P. 150.] No. 3 Batwa. The Mirat-i-Ahmadi describes this as the mosque and tomb of Hazrat Qûtb-ûl-Aktâb Sayyid Bûshanû'd-dîn Âbû Muhammad Abdullah Bûkhârî, commonly called Qutbu'l-Âlam, who died A.H.

850 (A.D. 1446).1

(2) Five step wells, two brick and three of brick and stone.

The following additions are made to the List on page 150:-

Nos. 3 and 7 refer to the same place: the entries were taken from different returns.

- 5. Jetalpur, 9 miles S. of Ahmadâbâd. (1) A public stepwell of brick and stone, to the west of the village. (2) A public mahâl on the village tank (ante p. 150, No. 5).
- 6. Vastral, 5 miles E. S. E. from Ahmadâbâd. (1) A public stepwell of brick and stone near the village talâv. (2) A public stepwell of brick near the tank outside Sukhrai Mahâdêva's temple (ante p. 150, No. 6).

 - 4. Pådra. Temple of Ambâmâtâ, and others.

5. Dabhoi, in lat. 22°8′ N. and long. 73°28′ E., is an ancient fortress, the walls of which form an irregular four-sided figure approaching to a square. The north, east, south and west walls are respectively 1025, 900, 1100 and 1025 yards long, and have a round tower at each angle. The remains of its fortifications, double gates and temples indicate great magnificence. The stones used are chiefly huge blocks of a very durable sandstone. Of the gates by far the finest is the eastern or Hirâ gate (Gate of Diamonds). It is covered with handsome carvings representing groups of warriors, animals, birds and serpents. There is a quaint legend about a man having been built up alive in the masonry at the king's orders, but his protectress, the Rânî, used to have him fed by a large quantity of ghî being poured down an opening, which is shown to this day.

Within the walls is a large tank lined with hewn stone and having steps all around. The legend about the building of the city is interesting and may be found in Forbes' Oriental Memoirs, vol. II. It is said to have been built by Siddharâja Jayasimha about A.D. 1100. Dabhoi was for a long time inhabited by Hindus only, no Musalman being permitted to reside within the walls or to wash in the tank. A young Mukâmmadar named Sayyid Bâlâ, on a pilgrimage with his mother Mâmâ Dukhri, in ignorance of the prohibition, ventured to bathe in the tank, and the Brâhmans prevailed on the Râjâ to mutilate him, and he died. Mâmâ Dukhri at once returned home and sued to her sovereign for redress. He sent a large army under his Vazîr, which took Dabhoi after a long siege. The Vazîr had all the fortifications destroyed except the western face and the four double gates. When Mama Dukhri died, she was revered as a saint and was buried in a grave near the Hirâ gate. By her tomb is a stone of ordeal, and the proof of innocence lies in being able to mizzle through the perforation in the stone. After this Dabhoi was for many years almost deserted. When the Musalmans finally conquered Gujarât, Dabhoi became more populous, and was held by them for two centuries. The Marathas then obtained possession of it, and partly rebuilt the walls. During the campaign of 1775 it submitted to Råghobå Peśwa, who levied a contribution of three lakhs, which the inhabitants were scarcely able to pay. In January 1780, General Goddard took the town on his way to attack Fatesingh Gaikwad, who however gave in and concluded a treaty with the English. Mr. James Forbes, author of Oriental Memoirs, was left as Collector of Dabhoi till the 24th April 1783, when the pargana of Dabhoi was with others handed back to the Marathas according to treaty. Dabhoi is now the chief town of one of the tâlukas of Barodâ territory, and has of late gained in importance by the State Railway joining it with Miyagam station of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India line. (See Archaeological Report, vol. II.)

- 6. Kårvån, Dabhoi division, on the railway 5 miles east of Miyågåm. One of the four oldest and most famous seats of the worship of Siva, once had a large tank now broken up, with many ruinous old temples. Coins are occasionally found here. The tank called Kåyåvirðhan and the remains of a host of very old temples in ruins.
- 7. Karnáli in Sinor division, on the Narmadâ near the junction of the Uri or Or—a sacred place containing the temples of Sômêśvara, Kubêrêśvara and Pâvakêśvara.
- 8. Ambâli, Temple of Anusûyâ the mother of Datta-Muni, a supposed incarnation of the Triad.
 - 9. Barkal, also on the Narmada. Temple of Vyasa Muni.
- 10. Chândôd on the Narmadâ, a famous sacred place. Temples of Sêshaśâi, Kâśî Viśvêśvara Mahâdêva, Kapilêśvara Mahâdêva and Chandikâ Mâtâ, mostly sculptured on the outer walls. (a)
- 11. Navsårî. A palace of the Gâikwâd; temple of Pârśvanâtha; temples of Âshâpuri-Mâtâ, Krishna, &c.; dargah of Makhtam Shâh and Sayyid Saâdat, and an old Pârsi Fire-temple.
- 12. Palsana, in the district of the same name, has two Hindu temples "of some interest" and a large tank.
- 13. Kamrej, the chief town of a sub-division, 20 miles from Navsårî, on the south bank of the Tâptî. (1) Temple of Śrî Nârad Brahmâ with a fine image in a subterranean vault. (2) Temple of Śrî Kôţîśvara. (3) Temple of Môkshanâtha Mahâdêva visited by pilgrims to perform the Nârâyana Nâgbal and Tripindi ceremonies. (4) Old temple of Śrî Kâlabhairava.
- 14. Variav, 2 miles from Surat, has two Hindu temples and a large mosque.
- 15. Mahuva, on the river Pûrnâ. "A Jaina temple with a modest exterior, is an excellent piece of architecture inside."

16. Unåi in the village of Khambhåliå, Viåra Tâluka,—a famous hot-spring

(see Ind. Ant., vol. I., p. 142).

17. Songad, south of the Taptî. Near it is what was once a very notable fortress and the town still contains the remains of several notable buildings and ruined temples. Near it, but just within Khandesh, is the renowned fortress of Salher.

- 18. Rûpgad between Songad and Sâlher, is a ruined fort with a perennial spring on the highest point.
- 19. Atarsumba on the Vatrak, in Dehgâm, Kadi Zilla, with a ruined but striking fort with a fine gateway.
- Vagjhipur, 4 miles N. from Atarsumba on the Mesvâ. A temple of Utkantêśvara Mahâdêva.
- 21. Chatral, 5 miles from Kalôl, has a well of some pretensions built in the time of Maḥmud Bîgarah, and repaired by Mahârâo Gâikwâḍ the Jågirdâr.
- 22. Kadi. The Rang Mahâl and Supra Mahâl and other remains of old buildings. Temple of Yudhêśvara Mahâdêva. The Mandîr of Gôsâvi Mahârâja containing some elaborate carving. Temple of the Khâkhi Bâwâ and others.
- 23. Anhilwâdâ Paṭṭaṇ, the old capital of the Châvada and Chaulukya kings, but destroyed by the Muhammadans in the 13th century and still further despoiled by the Marâṭhas; said to have been built by Vanarâja in A.D. 746. It contains a few fragments only of its former greatness. In a small temple near the post-office is a figure of Siva and Pârvatî with an Inscription dated Sam. 802. A small fragment remains of the Râṇi's wâv; and sculptured stones are seen everywhere built into walls; and until recently sculptured marbles were dug for all over the ancient site to burn into lime. The Khân Sarovar tank is a large stone-faced reservoir, with three sluices into it (a). The modern Paṭṭaṇ lies to the N. E. of the old city of Aṇhilwâdâ. There are many dargahs in and around it, and several Jaina temples. Among the former is the tomb of Shêkh Farîd in the river at old Paṭṭaṇ with a very fine carved ceiling (a).

Inscriptions:—An important one of the Khadataragachha Jainas in the Jaina temple of Vådi Pårśvanåtha, dated Sam. 1651 (A.D. 1594); and a copperplate grant in Dêvanågarî in possession of a Bråhman said to be dated in Sam. 802. In a Jaina temple is a figure of Vanaråja with an inscription bearing this date also (a).

- 24. Chânasama in Vadavali sub-division. The largest Jaina temple in the Barodâ territory, dedicated to Pârśvanâtha and built about fifty years ago at a cost of 7 lakhs of rupees raised by subscription. It is built of Dhrângadhra stone and very richly carved, with numerous spires. The interior is rich and floored with marble.
- 25. Kunsågar, 12 miles from Chânasama and not far south of Anhilwâdâ Paţţan. The remains of an immense reservoir on the course of the Rupen, attributed to Karna, the father of Siddharâja Jayasimha. It was destroyed by a flood in 1814.
- 26. Bêchar. Bêcharâjî's temple is on the N. W. border of the Kadi division, about 23 miles from the town of that name and 15 miles south of Chânasama, 1½ mile S.E. of Sankhalpur and near the British frontier of Viram-gâm. It has numerous surrounding buildings, and is enclosed in a fort, the south gateway of which rises to a height of 50 feet. The original temple was built by Sankhal Râja in A. D. 1152, the second or Madhyasthâna was built by a Marâtha, and the third or largest by His Highness Mânâjivarâv Gâikwâd in A. D. 1779—1791.

27. Siddhapur, in the Kadi District, on the Sarasvatî river, 64 miles N. of Ahmadâbâd on the railway. (1) Some fragments of the great Rudramâlâ temple, built of stones of gigantic size and elaborately carved, by Siddharâja, and destroyed by Alau'd-dîn Khunî, still remain, and a beautiful Kîrttistambha, from which, however, the tôraṇa and sculptures in the pediment have been taken away since K. Forbes wrote his Râs Mâlâ. The city having been an old capital of the Châlukya kings deserves examination. The Kîrttistambha should be conserved (a).

(2) On the opposite side of the river is a large square and very plain building, the dharmasala of the Kevalapuri Gosains built by Ahalyabaa of Indor.

(3) Temples of Siddhêśvara Mahâdêva and Nîlakantha Mahâdêva, built by Bâbâji Diwân about the beginning of the present century.

(4) A temple at the bend of the Sarasvatî to Bhûtanâtha Mahâdêva—the lord of demons, with a pipal tree, under the temple of Siddhêśvara Mahâdêva, into which the evil spirits of deceased devotees are believed to pass.

(5) Below the preceding are two smaller temples marking the spots where ladies immolated themselves as Satis.

(6) Temple of Gôvinda Mahâdêva in the town, contains two images, both of Krishna.

The other chief temples are those of (7) Ranchodji, (8) Sahasra Kâlâ Mâtâ, (9) Syâmji Mandir, (10) Svâmî Nârâyaṇa, (11) Gôsâvi Mahârâja, (12) Khardan Rishi, (13) Kapila Muni, (14) Lakshmî-Nârâyaṇa, (15) Gôpînâthji, (16) Gôvardhananâthji, (17) Raghunâthji, (18) Gaṇapati, (19) Brahmâṇdêśvara Mahâdêva, (20) Arbudêśvara Mahâdêva, (21) Vâlkêśvara Mahâdêva, (22) Siddhanâtha Mahâdêva, (23) the Môksha Pipal tree, and (24) Khâk Chauk.

The chief tanks are: (25) the Bindu Sarôvar, one of the four most sacred tanks in India, (26) the Jñyâna Vâpikâ, and (27) the Alpa Sarôvar.

- 28. Daithali or Dadhisthala, on the Sarasvatî. Near it is Mandikêśvara—a sacred place.
- 29. Athor, 15 miles from Siddhapur. A celebrated temple of Gaṇapati, and the Ganapatiya dharmaśālā.
- 30. Unja, 8 miles S. of Siddhapur. A large temple of the Kadavâ Kunbis, built about 1858 in the style of the Jaina temples.
- 31. Kanôda on the Rupên, about 10 miles W. of Mêsâna in the Kadi tâluka, has a ruined temple with some fine old Hindu carved pillars (a).
- 32. Vadnagar, 9 miles N. W. of Visalnagar. (1) A large and substantial châvadi, with arches ornamented with rich carving. (2) Two kîrttistambhas in a good state of preservation. (3) Temple of Hatkêśvara Mahâdêva to the west of the town, the walls of it covered with sculpture quaint and suggestive (a). (4) Two good Śrâvaka temples. (5) Several other Hindu temples.
- 33. Mudhêrâ, about 16 miles W. from Jagudan railway station; called in the legends Modhêrapura and Modhabankpaṭṭaṇa. It gave name to the Môdh Brâhmaṇs. It has a fine ancient Śaiva temple of the 12th century—a gem of the Châlukya style, either the Karṇēśvara or Karṇanaru Prasad of Gujarat history. In front of the temple is the fine Sîtâ's Chauri, and a tank, the Rama Kund. Part of the remains seems to have been recently carried away. The whole is well worthy of preservation (a).

- 34. Wagel, 14 miles S. W. from Pattan, has a temple similar to that at Mudherâ, only not so fine; also a fine tank, and some four-sided Pâliyâs.
 - 35. Pallej. Near this are said to be some interesting old temples.
- 36. Sarotri or Sarotra, 5 miles from Sarotri station—a very old village with many Inscriptions.
 - 37. Rantoj near Pańchâsar. Some Jaina temples.
- 38. Vishroda: has vestiges of an ancient town similar to those found at Walla.
- 39. Munjpur: Has a multilateral tank and a mosque with an Inscription, of which a fac-simile is desiderated.
 - 40. Sankhêśvara, is an old Jaina tîrtha and has some temples.
 - 41. Panchasar, is an ancient Chauda capital, but has no striking remains.

XXII .- PÂLANPUR AND RÂDHANPUR.

- 1. Kasêra-belonging to the Tharâd estate in the Kânkrêj Zilla: An ancient temple built of different coloured sandstone in layers highly carved and ornamented. The carving and projecting portions of the work have suffered much from time, but the structure itself, except the upper portions of the sikhars, is well preserved, the temple being almost entire. The plan is that of a central mandapa with three shrines, one at each side, as well as the usual one at the back. Its greatest length is about 30 feet. It is dedicated to Vishnu. The idol which it originally contained of Chaturbhuja was, it is said, carried away by the Emperor Tradition ascribes the temple to Gandharvasêna. The present structure is evidently of a very old date, say 400 or 500 years. What is supposed to be the symbol of an ass's hoof occurring in the ornamentation of this temple, as in all those which are said to have been built by Gandharvasêna, is perhaps connected with the origin of the legend of its age, which also states that he assumed the form of an ass during the day, resuming that of a man during the night. The symbol, however, is really the same as that occurring so frequently on most Bauddha and Hindu works of early date, and which is now known as the "Chaitya window" ornament.
- 2. Wâo: 4 miles or so N. of this village is another ancient temple in a jungle far from any habitation. It is a Mahâdêva temple of the usual kind, which has been restored, all the upper part being comparatively modern and built over the old portion, which is of carved sandstone. It is surrounded by a low wall and its preservation is doubtless due to the fact of its having been restored and its sanctity preserved. There is, however, no custodian or indeed anyone living in or near it.
- 3. Lotêśvara in Rådhanpur, not far from Mudhêrâ. Has four kuṇḍas forming a cross, and a temple of Lotêśvara Mahâdêva.
- 4. Jhinjûwâda, is an old Hindu fortress with gateways profusely sculptured and a multilateral tank (see Archæological Reports, vol. II).
- 5. Chandravatî, in the extreme north of Gujarat, an early capital where there are extensive remains of temples and other buildings of the best age of Hindu architecture, but which have been terribly despoiled,—indeed, made a quarry by the neighbouring towns and villages (see Fergusson, Ind. and E. Arch., p. 239; Tod's Western India).

XXIII.-KÂTHIÂWÂD.

1.-JHÂLÂWÂD PRÂNT.1

I. Than. (1) Opposite the town on the west side of the tank on the east is the temple of Vâsukinâtha, supposed to have been built about 450 years ago. It measures 17 feet by 10 and is supported by 4 pillars. All classes of Hindus reverence Våsukinåtha as a god. It belongs to a Mahant, Atit Revågarji, who is the head of a monastery at Than. Two villages and some more landed property yielding an annual revenue of about 4000 rupees are granted for defraying the necessary expenses appertaining to this temple. Close to the temple there is a well (vdv) having two entrances, built about the same time. The whole town with its adjoining lands, and particularly this vav, abound in serpents. In this town people have a firm belief in the sanctity of the "Vasuki." They consider him as their deity, and would never run the risk of saying anything against him. This temple is said to have existed long prior to the time when the town was built. The local legend is as follows: Once Abheraj, the chief of Lakhtar, was wandering in search of bullocks in the jungle which is said to have then existed all about the site of Than. He saw from a distance smoke arising from the place where the temple at present stands. The chief came up and saw the Mahant Sûkhdêvagarji, who welcomed him greeting him by his name Abherâj although they had never seen each other before. The Thakor, astonished at this, bowed to the Mahant, who ordered him to re-populate the place, some old remains of an ancient village being visible there. The Thakor asked for some boon or blessing, which the Mahant refused, but said that the serpent-deity would grant it. He encouraged the chief to hold his hand before the serpent, which he did. The cobra raised his hood to grant the asked-for boon, but the Thakor losing his courage withdrew his hand, so that the hood fell on the tip of one of his fingers. The Mahant Sûkhdêvagarji then told him that every third ruler on the gadi of Lakhtar should be a minor or child.

Before the temple was built there was only a "Råfadå," or mound of earth in which the serpents hide themselves, which is still preserved in the temple. The present Mahant Revågarji daily pours down a hole in the "Råfadå" a ser of cow's milk. It is said that if the person who pours the milk be unclean, or if the milk be that of a cow not more than ten days after calving, it is thrown out by the serpent.

On some Sati Pâliyâs near the temple may be read the dates Samvat 1720, 1772, 1792, &c.

Thân is situated in the district of "Panchal," belonging to the father of Draupadi, the common wife of the Pandavas.

(2) Sativâv is a vâv or well, hewn in the rock, at a little distance from the town to the north of the eastern gate. It is 38 by 17 feet. The descending flights of steps are also cut out of the same stone. People believe that if a woman who has too little milk in her breasts for her child goes to this vâv, sweeps its steps with her bodice, immerses it in the water and puts it on dripping, her breasts will burst out in thin streams of milk as soon as she returns home. People from distant places resort to this vâv for the attainment of this object. About the vâv there are one or two Pâliyâs, one of Samvat 1774.

¹ From the return of Rão Sâbeb Gôpâlji Sûrbhâi Desâi, Educational Inspector, with numerous corrections and additions by Colonel J. W. Watson.

- (3) Hinglåj cave is situated near this Sativåv in the east. It is also hewn out of the rock and measures 18 by 15, by 7 feet. The entrance is sufficient for a man to enter in. There appear to have been two pillars to support the roof of the cave, and there are ten raised seats supposed to be those of ancient saints for sitting in meditation. In the cave there are five images, one that of Hinglåj and the other four of other goddesses.
- (4) Bhidabhanjan cave is to the south at a little distance from Thân. It is cut in the rock and is 17 by 14, by 7 feet. It has also ten hewn seats outside the cave on the right. There is no image inside, but there are two seats on the south and east walls and a raised bench along the west side.
- (5) Muni Bâwâ's Dewal is two or three miles to the south of Thân on a hilly ridge forming the western bank of a large tank and close to the Mahânadî, and may have been built when the band was thrown across the river, perhaps in the 14th century. It is dedicated to S'iva and is partly ruined. It is built of red and white stone, richly sculptured inside in a spirited style resembling those on the Pawagadh hill in Gujarât. It has three domes supported by 16 pillars. It measures 36 by 25 feet. There is one broken linga about 2 feet high, together with some broken images of goddesses. They are said to have been broken by the Muhammadans.

According to a local tradition some horses belonging to Maghâbhâi of Jûnâgadh were taken away by the renowned thieves Khâprâ and Kodiyâ who lived about this place. The return journey of over 100 miles with the stolen animals was accomplished in so short a time as passed between the setting of the sun and the rising of the moon in the same night, so that neither the sun nor the moon might be witnessed of their guilt. Maghâbhâi asked Khâprâ and Kodiyâ for the horses, but they would not admit having taken them. Maghâbhâi thereupon uttered a curse, "should you have made off with the horses, this pond shall burst." The curse is said to have been realized by the instant bursting of the pond and giving rise to the river Mahânadî.

(6) Sûrya temple, is a mile north of Thân on a hill which was originally the old fort of Kandôlâ, and close to Sôngaḍh, the fort on the adjacent hill. It is said to have been originally built 1000 years ago, but it was entirely destroyed by Kartalah Khân of Ahmadâbâd in 1692. The temple is said to have been erected by Lâkhâ Fûlâni. The present temple is built of old materials, and plain. It is 80 by 28 feet and supported by 38 pillars, of which 8 are new. It contains two images of Sûrya and of his wife, here called Ranâdê. This temple is enclosed in a compound having stone walls and other smaller temples.

There is one inscription of Samvat 1432 (A.D. 1376), which is read thus:— संवत् १४३२ वर्षे वैसाषमुदि ९ से। वृद्धला । पाँआ पुत्र सीह कासप तबुका उपड तो दंतकादी डागरि पाला नाणा काडीवो संकर उदव नंडां भान माहाराज.

(7) The temple of Mahâdêva at Triņētra, commonly called "Tarnêtar," is 6 miles to the north of Thân in Dêrâ Pañchâl. This temple is said to have been built by the king Mândhâtâ in the Satyayûga. The interior and exterior of the temple are highly sculptured all over with various forms and figures, but is weather-worn. It measures inside 40 by 30 feet. It probably dates from the 11th or 12th century. The original linga having been broken, it has been replaced by two others one after the other. There is a pool or reservoir of water in front forming three sides of an oblong, and having two descending flights of steps on both sides. The space containing water is 200 by 32 feet. The temple along with the reservoir is enclosed by a compound wall out of repair. A large fair is annually held here on the 5th and 6th of Bhâdarvâ Sûdh, when 30,000 or 40,000 persons collect from the surrounding districts. Outside the compound in the east are some Pâliyâs carved in high relief. The figures on them have their hands joined as if in prayer. On one the date "Samvat 1282" can be read with difficulty.

2. Sithâ, 10 miles N.W. of Wadhwâu under Dhrângadhrâ: on the east about a mile from the villages is the fine tank of Chandrâsar built by Chandrasingji, a late chief of Halwad, Samvat 1665. It is multilateral in form, built of stone on all sides and measuring about 500 feet by 400. The style is quite plain. "Samvat 1524" with the following ślôka is found inscribed in one of the stones:—

चंद्राहारं तडागं च कारितं दर्भगोत्रिणा । वृषाणां शालयेन्यूनं चंद्रराधनक्षत्रिणा ॥

There is a small temple on the bank of this pond. The words were inscribed on the upper part of the door frame. This led people to conjecture that some treasure was buried underneath, and hence the ruined state of the temple.

- 3. Såelå, about 15 miles S. W. from Wadhwân: has an artificial lake about 700 yards long and 300 broad. It is very old and said to have been built by Siddharåja Jayasinha. The yearly collection of silt has considerably reduced its depth; yet if properly filled with water it suffices for the people of the place for the whole year.
- 4. Wadhwân. (1) The temple of Rânik Dêvî is a simple chhatri at a little distance from the northern wall of the town. It is said to have been built by Siddharâja Jayasimha about 750 years ago to the memory of a Satî, and is about 20 feet high and 44 feet in circumference. It is sculptured. (See Forbes' Râs Mâlâ.)
- (2) The Mådhava Våv in the town of Wadhwân near the western gate called Låkhå Pol, is 188 feet 9 inches by 22 feet 2 inches, and 80 feet deep. The style is bold and ornate. It has six arches, the lowest of which has six storeys above it. There is a flight of fourteen steps between each two arches. At the top near the Kothå there is a stone mortar or pot seven feet deep. An underground pipe goes to a well in the Darbårgadh, so that water was easily taken through the pipe during the Holi holidays. It is styled Mådhava Våv after Mådhav, a Någar by caste and Kårbhåri to Karan Ghelå, the last king of Gujaråt, and who is said to have brought the Musalmâns to Påtan in revenge for the seduction of his wife. In the side walls are mutilated images, one of Hanumân and the other of Bhairava, which are said to have been broken by Alâu'd-dîn Khûni.

There is an Inscription of Samvat 1350 (A.D. 1296) in a niche under the arch, which reads on one side—

संबत् १३५० वर्षे कार्तिक वदी < गुरु नागरज्ञातीय व श्रीसापसुतमीदयं श्रीसीर्पु and on the otherJUNAGADH. 175

(3) Gangâ Vâv, near the eastern gate, which is called the Siâni Pol. It is of six storeys and measures 150 by 70 feet, and 62 feet deep. There are five arches in it having storeys above them. In the third arch is an inscription in which the date "Samvat 1225, Phâlgun Sûdi 3rd" is legible.

(4) Mahâvîra Svâmî's temple on the bank of the river in the north-east of the town, dates probably from about the 11th century, and is built in the ordinary Jaina style.

(4) Half a mile from the south gate called the Kharva Pol is a vav near the garden belonging to Dajiraj. It measures 99 by 14 feet. It has three arches; the storeys above two of these arches have been ruined. There is an Inscription some part of which, though almost illegible, can with difficulty be thus deciphered:—

संवत् १३०१ पांश शुद्ध १ चंद श्रीवर्धमानमंडले महाराज श्रीसेनृपत्ते श्रीसिधराजदेव.

- 5. Between Wadhwân and Khamisânâ, about a kôs to the north-west of the latter, is the cave of Khamisânâ called Dholidhaj—a natural cavity about 18 inches square. All about here there was a thick grove, which was washed away by the heavy inundation of Bhôgâvâ in Samvat 1922. It is a very old place, but no inscription is known to exist. Lately some rooms have been built near this cave by the Wadhwân Darbâr for ascetics to live in. The local legend is as follows: There were two white "Rainchalis" (heavenly she-goats) which used to pour their milk on an ascetic who lived there. These Rainchalis were seen by a shepherd, who disclosed the mystery to the public, and hence the name of the cave is Dholidhaj. Formerly the grove about was said to be the resort of lions and tigers, but now it having been washed away by the river it is not difficult of access. It is said that the cave has two subterranean passages, one leading to Âbû and the other to Girnâr.
- 6. Halwad, about 20 miles west of Dhrângadhrâ, dates from about A.D. 1446: it was the capital of the Jhâlâs after Kûhâ and before Dhrângadhrâ. There is a fine palace about 250 feet square, erected in 1709 A.D. by Rânâ Srî Jaswantsinghji, and bears an Inscription to that effect. There are said to be some fine carved wood screens in the interior. A large number of Sati Pâliyâs near the town date from A.D. 1633.
- Divêśvara, about 3 miles north from Chotilâ, has a small temple of Mahâdêva.
- 8. Jhinjhuwâḍâ, 32 miles N.W. from Viramgâm. The old gates, of the 11th or 12th century resemble those of Dabhoi. It has also a fine large tank in good repair resembling but superior to that at.....near Chândôd in Gujarât.

2.—Junagadh State.

9. Jûnâgadh. (1) About a mile to the east is the Dâmôdar Kuṇḍ; a very small spring that flows through it keeps it constantly full of water. As it is considered a place of great sanctity, the dead from the town are brought there to be burned, and pilgrims from different parts go to bathe in its holy water. It is 287 feet long and 54 feet broad. Ghâts are constructed on its south and north sides. Near the north ghât are small temples built where influential Nâgars were burnt. In connection with the south ghât is the temple of Dâmôdarji looking on the tank. It is ascended by a flight of 25 steps. The temple, though very old, is entire. It is said that it was built by Vajranabha, fourth in descent from Krishna. The wall around the temple was built by the late Divan Amarji. The courtyard, which is 109 feet by 125, contains, besides the temple proper, a dharmaśala and a temple, smaller in size, dedicated to Baladêvji, brother of Krishna. The temple proper consists of the vestibule and the idol chamber. A dome covers the vestibule and a sikhara is over the shrine decorated with niches and mythological carvings on its walls. The courtyard was also paved by the Divan Amarji.

(2) Rêvatîkund. The courtyard of the temple of Dâmodarji communicates with the Revatikund, which is 65 feet long and broad. It has two Inscriptions. The kund has niches filled with images. Its water is considered holy and pilgrims are required to bathe in this kund prior to their bathing in the Dåmodarkund.

(3) The temple of Muchakunda is very small and has a cell, which can only be entered from the shaft of a well.

(4) Near the monastery of Pyara Bawa are nine caves cut in the rock. These caves, once inhabited by Pyara Bawa and his disciples, are now overgrown with grass and very filthy. Besides these there are seven caves cut in the south side of the rock (see Archæological Report, vol. II).

(5) The Uparkot contains a large cave, the Jama' Masjid, Adichadi vav and Noghan well.

The upper storey of the cave is 37 feet long and 311 feet broad, and has six pillars, on the capitals of which figures are carved, which are corroded. This storey leads to a small bath. The lower storey is 44 feet long and broad. Figures are carved on the capitals and three walls are also decorated with a belt of carving. A hole in the roof admits sufficient light. The whole depth of the cave is 29 feet. (See Archwological Report, vol. II., and Views of Somanatha, Girnar, &c.)

JUNAGADH. 177

(6) The Jama' Masjid is 137½ feet long, 96 feet broad and 19 feet high. Its roof is supported by 140 pillars. On the east is a hôj or bath, now disused.

(See Archæological Report, vol. II.)

(7) The Adichadi vav and Noghan well. The former is cut through a large stratum of stone, but the steps are entirely destroyed for the greater part of the descent. The water, though drinkable, is not used. The latter well, though sunk very deep, does not contain water and is entered by a flight of steps.

(8) The roof of the old gate Uparkot is supported by four arches carved after the Hindu fashion.

(9) Tombs of the Nawâbs of Jûnâgadh. The platform on which the Mûqarbâ of Ahmadkhânji stands is 21¾ (?) feet long and broad. The whole building is decorated with Muhammadan sculpture, and the doors of the room containing the grave, with brass work. There are five domes with spires and small minarets not higher than the spires.

The Mûqarbâs of Babâdûrkhânji and Lâdadi Bibi are of the same description but differ in the kind of sculpture. The platform of the former is 32\frac{3}{4} feet and that of the latter is 26\frac{1}{2} feet long and broad. The doors of the latter are ornamented with ivory work. The average height of these Mûqarbâs is 43 feet. Besides these, there are nine Mûqarbâs, different in size but not larger than those described.

(10) Tank of Bhavanath or Mrigikund. This tank is $23\frac{1}{4}$ feet by $31\frac{1}{4}$. It is shallow and in a dilapidated state. Beside it is the old temple of Bhavanath, which is $56\frac{1}{3}$ feet long, 26 feet broad and $21\frac{1}{2}$ feet high. It is built of stone and has nine small domes undecorated with sculptures. There is an inscription carved on the threshold of the shrine, which is illegible.

(11) Bordêvî. There is a small temple at the foot of the Girnâr Hill dedicated to this goddess.

- (12) Khengârvâv. About 6 miles west of Jûnâgadh is the Khengârvâv, which is 18\(^3\) feet by 128. There are two storeys over the lower part of the steps. The upper storey is supported by nine round pillars and leads to the balconies looking over the water. The lower storey is also supported by the same number of pillars, which are decorated with images carved on them. This vâv is in a ruined condition.
 - (13) Nearly half way from Jûnâgadh to the tank of Dâmodarji, is the rock bearing three inscriptions of Aśôka, Skandagupta and Rudradaman.

(14) Caves of Nava Durga. No caves are dedicated to these Matas, but their images are carved in the side of a rock. The images are plastered with red stuff.

(15) Mâi Ghadhêchi. Within the confines of the Sthân of Mâi Ghadhêchi in the northern part of Jûnâgadh is the small cave of Dâtâr containing his tomb. Near this is a masjid 39 feet long and broad. From the sculpture on the door frame and the form of the pillars, which are thirty in number, it seems to have been formerly a Hindu temple, dedicated to Mahâdêva. There is an Arabic inscription carved on the lintel. The Sthân of Mâi Ghadhêchi is a large cave 54 feet long, 46½ broad and 23½ high. Within the cave is a small temple dedicated to Mâi Ghadhêchi. It has a small rough dome undecorated with sculpture. South of this temple is an oblong hall, the roof of which is supported by six pillars. The entrance of the cave is supported by four pillars.

(16) Near the Sthân of Mâi Ghadhêchi are the five caves of Khâprâ Kodiâ, all communicating with one another and containing 59 pillars, in the capitals of which were carved the forms of animals, particularly of lions, parts of which are still visible. The caves are not looked after. There is a Persian inscription on a wall of the third cave (see Archæological Report, vol. II).

 Vanthali. (1) The Sûrajkund is very old and considered a holy tank, in which the inhabitants of the surrounding villages bathe on holidays. It is 32 feet long and broad.

(2) The Jama' Masjid stands in the west of Vanthali. It was a Hindu building and is still known as a court of Baliraja. It was converted into a masjid, and is 148 feet long and 52½ feet wide. The courtyard contains some tombs and a small muqarba. In the interior is a long hall 33½ feet by 73½, the roof of which is supported with 72 pillars. It has 7 domes decorated with sculpture. The images carved in the capitals of the pillars and in the concave part of the largest dome were knocked off by the Musalmans. There is a small dark room in the southern part containing six pillars, one of which bears the following inscription:—

संवंत १४०८ वर्षे माघ शुदी १३ रवी सू० चाहड सुता सू० भलमडा राजश्री रांसिलनी भार्या दिवंगतोऽस्ति शुभं भूयात् ॥

An inscription in the Harivav near Dhandhusar reads :-

- 11. Chorwad. Two miles south is the small temple of Bhavani.
- Mångrol. The Jama' Masjid stands in the western part of the town. According to the inscription it was metamorphosed into a masjid by Samaskhan, Vazîr to Firûzshâh, in 1364. It is said that Bhân Jethwâ, wishing to remarry his divorced wife, referred to the Brahmans, who told him that he could only do so by marrying 1800 girls in one house at one time as atonement for the sin, and hence the origin of the building. It was built by him in Samvat 1208 (A.D. 1252). The Musalmans have broken off the sculptures and images in the inner part of the dome and those carved in the capitals of the pillars. This mosque is 278 feet long and 256 broad, has 9 domes, and its roof is supported by 818 pillars. Ravali Masjid, according to an inscription in the interior, was metamorphosed in 1401 into a masjid by Jaffarkhan in the time of Muhammad Taghlakh. The sculpture is pure Hindu. The images carved in the concave side of the domes bear testimony to its formerly being a Hindu temple. These images are defaced or knocked off from the niches. This mosque is 109 feet long and 90 feet broad and its roof is supported by 155 pillars. It has three domes without spires.

13. Delwada. The Jama' Masjid stands near the western gate. It is 77 feet long and 60 feet broad and has two minarets 66 feet high. It is built of stone and its roof is supported by 20 pillars. Copy of an inscription on a grave is as follows:—

در جامع مسجده قصبه و لواره که از 'بناو پادشاهان سابق از احمداباد است در ان تربتي اولیاء الله است که نامش شاه مشهور است بر مرقدش در سنگ سرخ ایتي کلام الله نوشته انیست بیشرهم ربهم بر حمته منه و رضوان و جنات لهم فیها نعیم مقیم خاله ین فیها ابدا و بربالینش بهدران سنگ نبشته است الملک لله لواحد القهار

- 14. Gupta Prayâg is composed of three kuṇḍs or tanks connected with one another. Their names are Prayâgnokuṇḍ, Sarasvatinokuṇḍ and Jamunâjinokuṇḍ. Their average length and breadth is 150 feet. The water of these tanks accumulates in the Prayâgnokuṇḍ, whence it flows into the sea. Besides these, there are three kuṇḍs more, viz., Brahmagayā, Rudragayā and Vishṇugayā to the north. The dead from Delwâḍā and Unā are brought there to be burned, it being considered a place of great sanctity.
- 15. Vejalkotho is the name given to a small hill about 15 miles north-east of Una. It is now a barren hill, but was formerly the abode of Vejal Vajo, chief of a predatory tribe who conquered Una from Chandrabal Ojra.
- 16. Unå. The Jamå' Masjid is said to have been a temple of Siva and Måtå when Chandrabal reigned at Unå. The building is purely Hindu. It was built of stone and its roof is supported by 80 pillars.

The masjid of Hazratshah stands at a little distance north of Una. It is 300 feet long and 120 feet broad.

17. Tûlśi Syam, about 20 miles north of Una. On entering the place there is a hall on the right where pilgrims, particularly mendicants, receive the stamp (or brand) of the Sankha and Chakra on their hands. The courtyard contains two small temples of Hanuman and Siva. The vestibule is entered from the east and contains stone benches attached to the walls, and its dome is supported by 12 pillars. The chamber between the vestibule and the shrine has three store-rooms and 12 pillars that support its dome. Next to this is the chamber containing the idol of Syâmji, 2½ feet high, placed on a small platform 4 feet high. At the distance of about 50 yards are the hot-springs, seven in number. The temple is very old and built of stone.

About two miles east of Tulsi Syâm is a small ditch called Bhimchas, into which the river Zameri falls from a height of 12 feet. It is about 150 feet long, 7½ feet broad, and 10 feet deep. Near it is a small temple dedicated to Kuntîjî, mother of Bhîma. It is said that Bhîma struck a ploughshare against the ground and got water for his mother, and hence the name of the place.

18. Sûtrâpâdâ. The temple of Chavanêśvara stands between the village and the beach with the Chavankund in front. This kund or tank is 20 feet long and 18 feet broad. Its water is considered holy, and people from surrounding villages bathe in it on holidays.

There is an old temple of the sun near the beach at a little distance from the Chavankund with the Sûrajkund in front. The temple is in a decaying state and the inscription on the door frame is corroded. The words that are legible are संवत १३६७ नावर से चन्न वद. It is about 30 feet long, 13 feet wide and 30 feet high.

19. Dhâmlej. Chakra Tîrtha, otherwise called Vishņu Gayâ, is a tank to the west. It is 40 feet long and broad. There is the following inscription in Bâlbodh character, carved on a stone lying under a pipal tree:—

ॐ नमःश्रीगणेशाय ॥ पातु यातुकुलारातिविश्वं विश्वंभरो हरिः । जनान् पुनातु तचीर्थं निष्णु-विष्णुगयाख्यया ॥ १ ॥ आसीद्गुर्करराजमुख्यसचिवश्रीतेजसूनुः पुरा श्रीराणः सुजनद्विजावनध-नीम्लेन्छाकुले क्ष्मातले। तत्पुत्रः सचिवात्रणीर्जयति सत्सम्मीह्नयः प्रजया राजदाजकराजकार्यचतुरः प्राग्वाटवंशांकुरः ॥ २ ॥ स्वस्ति श्रीमध्यभासाविपतिशिवसदाराधनावाप्तलक्ष्मीस्तुत्यः श्रीभग्मीभूपोज-याति जनमनःश्रांतिहृश्कल्पवृक्षः ॥ तन्मंत्रीकर्मसिंहः सचिवसुरगिरिः क्ष्मासुराधारउच्चैर्भातीनंसाधुमा-र्गाचरणाविनयतः सेवमानोऽसमानः ॥ ३ ॥ यनाम पामरमपीह पुनाति यत्र श्राद्धे प्रयाति पितरोऽक्ष-यतुर्तिमेव । तत्तीर्थमेतदमले।पळवद्भमूलसोपानमुच्छितनिपानमकारयदाः ॥ ४॥ उड्डस यः सगरमा-स्करसदा मुलात्तन्मंडपं परिकरेण समं समंतात् । नव्यं सुभव्यमिह कारयाति स्म पूजां माच्याह्निकीम-नुदिनं ननु सामनाये ॥ ५॥ स्वभातुमेघनूपतेः परलोकयात्रासीख्याय निस्नजलधान्यनाधि द्विजेभ्यः । श्रीभर्मभूपतिरदात्सचिवेन येन विज्ञापितोऽभिनवमैघपुराग्रहारं ॥ ६ ॥ आवावंदाः सुरांशाः प्रथितसुयशसस्तेऽजनानंदनाद्या एकः श्रीकर्मसिंहः स्कुरति कल्यिगे सेवकः सन्परोत्ते । ग्रामं यः स्वामिनामप्रथितमतनुत स्वःस्थितौ मेघराज्ञोविषाणां स्थाष्णुवृत्ति श्रुतिचयमिह च स्थापयामास साक्षात् ॥ ७ ॥ अमृतं पाययन् गायः सुरपत्तनगोपुरे । आहावे कीितसद्धमीवाकौमारममेलयत् ॥ ८ ॥ वंशवृद्धिकराः संतु रामाद्यास्तस्य नंदनाः । सुरवृक्षोपमाः श्रीमत्स्वपूर्ववयसा समाः ॥ ९ ॥ किं दुर्लभं महदुपासनया यदश्मा काठिन्यगेहमाप विष्णुगयातटस्यः । लब्ध्वा सुदर्शनतनुं सुजनाय दत्ते स्नाने गदाधरनती च मति सुदृष्टः ॥ १० ॥ ज्ञानंदादिभाति जनेषु भानुः सानंदमानंदपुरिहजाप्रयः। श्रितः श्रुती तत्मुतवामुदेवः सांगरमृती चक्र इमां प्रशस्ति ॥ ११ ॥ लिखितेयं पंडितसर्वादित्यन ॥ सूत्रमधुसूदनेनोत्कीणी ॥ संबत् ११३७ वर्षे आषाढ वदि ६ शनी ॥ छ॥ ॥ श्रीः ॥ शुभं भवतु ॥

North-west of this tank is a cave of ordinary size containing the linga of Națêśvara Mahâdêva.

- 20. Kadvår, a village between Sûtråpådå and Pattan, has a very old temple of Varåhaji built after a peculiar fashion. It is said that this temple was built by the brother-in-law of a king called Nanda. The temple is about 40 feet long, 33 feet wide and 20 feet high, and is very old. Its dome is supported by 12 square pillars. It is built of stone and its cross beams are made of sandal-wood. Southeast of this temple is the Varåhakund, which is 30 feet long and broad.
- 21. The cave-temple of Gôrakhamadhi, is entered from the north and contains the images of Gôrakhnâtha and Machhêndranâtha. It is 30 feet long and broad. The head of the monastery has a grant of twelve villages for necessary expenses.

22. Veråval Pattan. (1) About 10 miles from Pattan are the two tanks known as the Prachikunds through which the river Sarasvatî flows. Near this tank is the old pipal tree, called Prachi-pipal. At a distance of about 25 yards north of these tanks is the image of Madhavraiji placed in the Sarasvatî under the shade of the jambû tree. The place is considered holy and is visited by pilgrims and those who suffer from evil spirits.

(2) The old temple of Sômanâtha stands on the sea-shore. Most of it is destroyed and its materials are used by the people for building purposes. The standing part consists of two chambers covered with domes which are decorated with sculpture and niches filled with mythological images. The first dome is supported by 65 pillars and the second dome is a sikhara. What remains is 90\frac{1}{2} feet long, 68 feet broad and 48 feet high. It is said that this temple was built in the Valabhi year 850.

(3) The new temple of Sômanâtha was built by Ahalyâbâi of Indor in Samvat 1839. The courtyard is 127 feet long and 82 feet broad, and the temple proper is 39 feet long and broad and 42 feet high. The court contains a dharmaśâlâ built by Vițhal Dêvâji, late Diwân to the Gâikwâd of Barodâ, and two small temples of Annapârņā and Gaṇapati. The temple has three domes built after the Musalmán fashion. The shrine contains the linga of Sanklêśvara and under it is a cell 12 feet long and broad containing the linga of Sômanâtha. The domes are supported by 32 pillars. Paṭṭan is considered a place of great sanctity and people from different parts go there to visit the temple and bathe in the Trivêṇi, i.e. the confluence of the three rivers, the Sarasvatî, Hiraṇyâ and Kapilâ.

(4) The Jama" Masjid at Pattan, formerly a Hindu temple dedicated to the sun, is very old and stands in the bazar. It is built of stone and decorated with fine sculpture, which is purely Hindu. It is 111 feet by 171 and its roof is supported by 251 pillars. The Sûrajakund is turned into a hôj or bath,

(5) A Jaina temple, converted into a dwelling house by the Musalmans, stands in the bazar near the Jama' Masjid alluded to in the above para. Its domes and pillars are sculptured. Under the building is a cave 35 feet by 47½ divided into six chambers. It is built of stone, but contains no inscription.

(6) The temple of Bhidia, properly Bhidbhanjana Mahadeva, stands on the beach between Pattan and Veraval. It is about 40 feet high, 137 feet long and 22 feet wide. It is built of stone and its dome is supported by 20 pillars.

(7) Between Verâval and Pattan is the tank of Bhâlkâ, which is 25 feet by 37. This tank derives its name from a Bhûlû or Bhâlodâ, i.e. a shaft of an arrow. Krishna was killed here by a Bhill named Vâl with an arrow.

(8) The temple of Naganatha near Chorwad is very small, but it contains an inscription, a copy of which is as follows:—

॥ ९० ॥ ॐ नमः ¹शवाय ॥ तापत्रयं त्रिभुवनस्य तनुकरोतु तेजस्तितस्तरणिजा तिमिरं तुदंती ॥ या पूर्वपर्वतिशारः पुनती प्रबोधं पंकेरिहेषु च सतां हृदयेषु दत्ते ॥ १ ॥ ये रैणुकेयेन रणांगणांतन्त्रीताः क्षयं क्षोणिभुनः क्षणन ॥ ते क्षेत्रज्ञा ब्रह्मकुलप्रसूतास्तदाख्यया ख्याति-मुगुः क्षितीशाः ॥ २ ॥ नृहंससंसत्पयितप्रशंसस्तदंकभून्यंकणकविवंशः ॥ नृशंसविध्वंसकृदस्त्ययं सः षादुँशदंशिक्षितिपानतंसः ॥ ३ ॥ महस्थलीमंडलगैकदेशे देशे दशारोहिणिरोहिलादी ॥ विश्वालभाल: किंकालकालस्तत्राभवक्लूणिगभूमियालः ॥ १ ॥ ससैन्यपालत्वधरः सुराष्ट्रां प्राप प्रतीपकिनिधिर्व-लेन ॥ तस्यांगजोभुद्धवि भीमसिंहः समस्तशौर्यादिगुणहैपितः॥ ५॥ तत्रापि पंचालककालि-जादिग्रामाबालिग्रासिबलासवात्तेः ॥ लावण्यपालस्तनयस्तदीयो बभूव सुरः समरे करालः ॥ ६ ॥ निजमतापं तपनं त्रैलोक्यां यशः शशांकं च पटुपकाश्य ॥ लावण्यपालः किल भूमिपालः सकालिजे कालमवाप कालात् ॥ ७ ॥ वभूवुस्तस्य तनया विनयानतमस्तकाः ॥ लक्ष्मसिंहः सतां मुख्यो लक्षी लघणपालकः ॥ ८ ॥ लक्ष्मसिंहोलसङ्गीलललनाफलकामुकः ॥ नगाम नीर्णेडुर्ये स ससंरादमराव-तीं ॥ ९ ॥ तस्य सूनुरनुनश्रीराजार्सिहोभवद्ववि ॥ विभेद संख्ये शंखीके मृतोमातंडमंडलं ॥ १० ॥ षाद्विराक्षत्रवंशप्रियतगुणगणः शौर्षगः केद्रिपस्त्रीविधंटयव्याधिदानोधूंतकरकमलः शस्त्रशास्त्रप्रवीणः ॥ पीणन्पात्राणि पृथ्वीद्रविणवितरणैर्विश्वविख्यातकीर्तिवधिलावंशए क्षितितलवलये तद्ववां मान्यक्षे ॥ ११ ॥ भूमंडलस्य महमंडलभंडनं या सीदर्ककर्तपुरीति गरीयसी या ॥ श्रीक्षेमराज इह राजसमाजराजीविधानमानगुण एष रराज राजा ॥ १२ ॥ सोमधमः कमत एव बभुव भपसङ्ग-परूपणनिरूपितविश्वरूप: ॥ म्लेखायनेति बहुलोपे न देशसीमां तत्यान गोत्रिभिरापे प्रवर्लैः परीतः ॥ १३ ॥ बीरोगर्जः प्रवरवीरवृतस्ततोस्य सीराष्टमंडलमवाप मपापतीर्थः ॥ यो वारवारनयसाराव-चारचारः खंगारगानगुणसीहदमाचचार॥ १४॥ स ओमहम्मदबृहन्मदपातसाहिकांतेपि रैवत-गिरावि जीर्णहुर्गे ॥ खंगारभूपमुपवाद्य सभीमदेवे आतुः सुतंसुभटश्रव्यमपि प्रमीतः ॥ १९ ॥ रत्नादेवी प्रथमदाहिता वीरका राजसिंहात्मल मुख्यं तनुजमपरं मत्तराज लेमे ॥ मुंजं तस्याप्यवरजमहो मोहनं गोगृहरेन्द्रिन्प्राणांस्तृणिव रणे यः खुरासे निवासे ॥ १६॥ मन्ये मछो मत्तराजश्च मुंजो व्यंजनंजः खंजने मीहनश्च ॥ चत्वारोमी साममुख्या उपाया रत्नादेव्यां राजसिंहात्प्रभूताः ॥ १७ ॥ प्रवराजिविराजविक्रमी युवराजः "श्रीक्षिवराजभूपातिः ॥ खुरवासकवासशासने न्ययुनमळपुँतुरुयसदु-णम्।। १८।। दृष्ट्वा तत्र पुरा पुराणपाठितं पाथो नपाणेः वियमासादं निनपूर्वपूरुषपरविश्व स्वपुण्याय च ॥ कालांते पातितं कृतार्थितमातिर्ल्हमार्थ्यिपैनृतनं तरकालाद्रचयांचकार नियतं तं महादेवो मिधः ॥ १९ ॥ तद्वार्या विमलादेवी सती सीतेव तावभी ॥ परमार कुले। हूता नारी गुणगणावृता ॥ २० ॥ आनीय चातुश्वरणीयविपान्सा मछदेवेन विचित्रमंत्रैः ॥ सन्भंडपे मंडलंकुडवेदिनिदीयसाकारिरविप-तिष्टां ॥ २१ ॥ रोहेलामालदेभार्या विभेलः मूतद्दा लाषादेपा रामा सांगा लूणसी वई हांसी मछदेवश्वात्त मातराभार्या बाई नामछदे सुत ली वा हरराज वाघेलापूलराजः संवत् १४४५ वर्षे भागणसुदी ५ सोभे तृवाडी वाछा कवि सूत्रसाल्हा सुत मधसुदननारायणः आचार्य छंगसतपुरुषा

(9) About 300 yards east of Pattan is the cave of Hinglaj Mata. It is 39½ feet long, 28 feet broad and 10 feet deep. The cave, though very old, is entire. It is divided into two chambers, one of which contains the image of Hinglaj.

The following is a copy of an inscription in the temple of Harasad at Veraval:—

- 23. Mandor, 6 miles N. E. of Sômnâth Pâţṭaṇ, a ruined site, with six Buddhist caves, all with inner cells.
- 24. Jâmwâlâ. There are also some solitary caves in the bank of the Singâvdâ river. One at the ruined site of Vairât, and one close to Jânwadlâ in the centre of the Gir forest a few miles north of Chhelnâ.
- 25. Tarnêtar. Two miles west of Koili is the temple of Tarnêtar looking on the river Ubên. It is divided into two chambers: one containing the linga is covered by a śikhara 26 feet high, and the other by a concave dome supported by 18 pillars. Besides this there are three small domes attached to the larger one covering the images of Ganapati and Sîtalâ. This temple has a courtyard 130 feet long and broad. It has a gateway on the north and contains storehouses, stables, and a building where the Mahants are enthroned. The Mahant, or head of the monastery, has a grant of three villages for defraying the expenses. A fine ghât 125 feet long is built on the bank of the river Ubên. This ghât communicates with the temple.

26. Girnâr hill near Junâgadh, the ancient Ujjayanta. At a short distance from Junâgadh, on the way to Girnâr, is the rock bearing the inscriptions of Aśoka, Skandagupta, and Rudradâman. At an elevation of about 2700 feet is a large and fine group of Jaina temples, with numerous inscriptions, which will be found collected in the Appendix, with rough translations. On the summit of the hill is a temple of Ambâ Mâtâ, the foundation of which at least is probably of very early date. For an account of the Jaina temples on Girnâr, see Archwol. Survey Reports, vol. II.

3.—Bâbarlâwâd.

- 27. About 10 miles south-west of Dedan is the Sana Hill. It contains many Bauddha caves; most of them are overgrown with grass and there are tanks in the front of the caves containing fresh water. Most of them are in a dilapidated state. (See Archaeological Reports, vol. II.)
- 28. Siyâl Bêt abounds in ruined tanks and vâvs, most of which are buried. There are at present about 30 vâvs containing a little water and one old tank called Gangâ Talâo, which is 150 feet square. From the inscriptions and materials of the ruined houses and temples now used by the people for building purposes it appears that there once existed a flourishing town here. Four marble stones bearing inscriptions are in the fields of this island. Copies of these inscriptions are as follow:—

4. -- PORBANDAR.

29. Porbandar. (1) In the east of the town is the old temple of Kêdârêś-vara which is 54 feet long and 42 feet wide. It was repaired by Bâi Śrî Rûpâlibâ mother to the present chief, in Samvat 1894. The temple is built of stone and the dome of the mandapa is supported by 26 pillars. The shrine is small and has a śikhara. The courtyard is enclosed by a stone wall, having a gateway in the east, and is 141 feet by 144 containing a dharmaśâlâ and Kêdârkund, a small tank.

(2) The temples of Lankesvara and Dûdhesvara have one mandapa, and are in the north of the town. They are very old and built of stone. The ground floor is 39 feet by 51 feet and the dome of the mandapa is supported by 32 pillars and has some sculpture. The śikharas of the shrine are 37 feet high and conical in form.

(3) The Sûrya temple is the oldest and stands in the middle of the town. It appears from an inscription in the interior that it was rebuilt by Bhansâli Kalyânji Shavji in Sainvat 1918 (1862 A.D.). It is about 81 feet long, 33 feet broad and 37 feet high. It is built of stone and the dome of the mandapa is supported by 36 pillars. The śikhara is, as usual, conical in form.

(4) The temple of Siddhanâtha is very small.

- 30. Chhâyâ, about 2 miles from Porbandar, contains a castle where the Jethwâ princes are enthroned.
- 31. Miyâni. (1) Near this is the temple of Harsata Mâtâ. It is about 72 feet long, 57 feet wide and 60 feet high. The courtyard contains a dharmaśâlâ and a small room having in it four idols, which, it is said, were placed there in memory of Jaghadûshâ and his family who built the temple. It is very old and its dome is supported by 8 pillars, one of which bears the words—संवत् १७५८ बना बासाट सोद ८ सोमवार हाले जेठवात्र मारीवालगो[पाल] सुमंवाद्यो.

The former temple of this goddess stands on the Koila Hill. It is very old and out of repair. Its length and breadth is 24 feet.

- (2) The temple of Khimêśvara Mahâdêva, 5 miles north of Porbandar, was built, as its name indicates, by Khimâji and afterwards repaired by Sultânji. Both these were chiefs of Porbandar. It is about 45 feet high, 51 feet long, and 45 feet broad. It is built of stone and its dome is supported by 6 pillars. A festival is held here on the 14th Mâhâ Vad, to which the inhabitants of the surrounding villages go.
- 32. Bagavadar: half a mile from this is the temple of Sômâditya. It is very old, decorated with sculpture, and contains the idols of Sûrya and Randel. It is 24 feet by 30. The roof is supported by 18 pillars. Some part of this temple was pulled down by the Râṇa in 1868 a.D. as it afforded shelter to the Vâgher mutineers.
- 33. Mådhavpur. The only remaining part of the temple of Mådhavråi is a dome 45 feet high. Its lower part is buried under the ground. A new temple which was built by Båi Srî Bådibå in Samvat 1789 was afterwards extended and rebuilt by Båi Srî Rûpâlibâ in Samvat 1896. A festival, to which many people go, is held here in commemoration of the marriage of Krishna with Rukmanî.
- 34. Amardad, near Rânâwâo. About 5 miles east is the temple of Jadêśvara, which is 36 feet long and broad and 15 feet high.
- 35. The temple of Bilêśvara stands in the eastern part of the Bardâ Hills. It is 51 feet long and 45 feet broad. It is said that this temple was built and dedicated to Bilêśvara by Sûrajmall Hâdâ, king of Bundikotâ, and that the linga was broken by Alâu'd-dîn Khilji. It is built of stone and well sculptured, and is very old.
- 36. Vasåvad. A masjid 150 feet long and 120 feet deep. It looks on to the river Vasåvadî and contains a well, a bath and a banglå of three storeys with wooden balconies decorated with carving. The south part of it is used by Muhammadan travellers as a halting place. There is a canopy supported by four pillars at each end of the ground floor. In the middle are three marble graves covered by a dome which is supported by 12 pillars. The greater part of the building is carved and it has 32 pillars. It is said that this masjid was built by Ghori Belum.

5. - Gohelwad.

SATRUNJAVA.—The famous sacred tirtha of the Jainas at Palitana is covered with temples mostly ranging from the 12th century A.D. downwards.

The following inventory, translated from the Gujarâti, gives the number of temples, the names of the builders, their dates, &c., in the nine tuks or enclosures of the hill, of which the principal is that of Mûlanâyaka Srî Âdîśvara Bhagavân:—

The image (pratima) of Sri Adîśvara Bhagavan is in the principal temple of the first tuk, which goes by the name of the Vimalavasi Tuk. This temple was built by Javadśah, Sam. 1018. This was the 13th restoration (uddhāra) and it is there still. In the temple was placed a statue of Sri Adîśvara; the 16th restoration (uddhāra) was made in Sam. 1557 by Karmaśah of Chitod.

1. In the temple of Srî Mûlanâyak Adîśvara Bhagavân the number of statues is 274, of which 176 are in the principal gambhárâ and Ranga Mandapa; of these 176, 56 including that of Śrî Âdîśvara are in the qambhârâ, 90 in the Ranga Mandapa, 29 in the Omkâr and Hrînkâr, and 1 of Panchatirthi of stone (pâshâna) in the middle of the mandapa. In all 176.

Then there are 2 Kausagîyâs beside Mûlanâyakji, 2 of Nâbhirâja and Marudêvî seated on an elephant, 1 of Jugalîyâ on an elephant, and 93 in the upper storey: of which, 33 are in the gambhârâ, 52 in the maṇḍapa, 1 in the gambhârâ of Gautamasvâmi, 1 in the gambhârâ of Mahâlakshmî, 2 in that of the Tâpasîs, 2 pair of feet (pagalân) in the maṇḍapa, with 2 Tâpasîs. Total 93; grand total 274.

In the entrance is a long Sanskrit Inscription, reading as follows :-

XXIV.-SINDH.

1.-KARACHI COLLECTORATE.

1. Tâtta. In the Makli hills, about 3 miles from the town, are the following Muhammadan tombs:—

(1) The tomb of Sayyid Ali Shâh Shirâzi is of brick on a masonry plinth, and plastered. The tomb is oblong, 48½ feet by 33, and is roofed by a large and two small domes. It was built by the Jokhias. Sayyid Ali Shirâzi died in 980 a.s. (1572 a.d.). There are inscriptions on some of the small tombs within the enclosure, but none on the Sayyid's.

(2) The tomb of Nawab Amir Khulil Khan is in ruins. It was built during the Amir's lifetime, or between 980 and 993 A.H. (1572—1584 A.D.), during the period that Mirza Muhammad Baki Khan governed Lower Sindh. Nawab Amir Khulil Khan is said to have left directions not to bury his body inside the tomb near it; and seven Hafizes or religious devotees were buried within it. It stands in the middle of a courtyard, 156 feet square, and has a stone foundation and plinth, but is built of glazed coloured bricks with a few perforated slabs introduced between them. It is octagonal outside but square inside, and is covered by a dome. Each side of the outer octagon is 24 feet, and the sides of the square within are 21 feet each. Inside are four tombs.

Inscriptions: - On each of the four tombs inside is an Arabic inscription.

There are also inscriptions on the outer walls of the building.

(3) Tomb of Mirza Isakhan Turkhan, said to have been built in 981 A.H. (A.D. 1573-74). It stands in a large court, within which are two minor court-yards. It is entirely of carved stone, with perforated slabs introduced in a few places. Mirza Isakhan was the first of the Turkhans who ruled in Lower Sindh, A.H. 962—980 (A.D. 1555—1572).

Inscriptions :- Arabic inscriptions are carved on the slabs above the doorways of the courtyard, and on several of the small tombs enclosed in it.

(4) Tomb of Mîrzâ Muhammad Baki Khân, the son of Isakhân Turkhân, like No. 2 is also in a ruined state. It is said to have been built in 994 A.H. (1585 A.D.) and stands in the middle of a court 95 feet square. The foundation and plinth are of stone and the rest of glazed bricks.

Inscriptions: - Over the doors are stone slabs with Arabic inscriptions.

(5) Tomb of Mîrzâ Jâni Beg bin Payend Beg and of Ghâzi Beg bin Jâni Beg Turkhân, is partially in ruins. It stands on a raised stone platform in the middle of a courtyard, and is octagonal, each side measuring 25 feet. The superstructure is of glazed bricks of the best description. The stone slabs round the doors of the courtyard and of the Dargah are elaborately and beautifully carved, and there are perforated slabs or windows above the doors of the Dargah. Inside are three tombs: two of them of marble and one of stone. It was built in A.H. 1009 (A.D. 1599-1600). Mîrzâ Jâni Beg Turkhân was the last of the Turkhân rulers of Lower Sindh (A.H. 993—1008). Ghâzi Beg was governor of Kandahâr, where he died, A.H. 1020 (A.D. 1610-11), and was buried here in 1022.

SINDH. 215

Inscriptions:—An Arabic inscription over the door of the courtyard; another above the entrance to the Dargah; others on the walls, and on each of the three tombs within.

(6) Tomb of Diwân Shrufa Khân is in ruins. It was built in A. H. 1049 (A.D. 1638-39) in the lifetime of Shrufa Khân, the grandson of Mir Alak Arghun, and was Nawâb or minister to Amîr Khân until A.H. 1054. It stands on a platform, and is 38½ feet square. The foundation and plinth are of stone, but the superstructure is of glazed coloured bricks.

Inscriptions: - One in Persian over the entrance, and others on several small tombs inside.

(7) Tomb of Nawab Isakhan is in good preservation. It was built in A.H. 1037—1054 (A.D. 1628—1644), while Nawab Amir Khan, son of Nawab Kasim Khan, was governor of Sindh. The stone was brought from Sorath. It stands on a raised platform in the middle of a court, and is 70 feet square, built of stone throughout, the carving on which is very elaborate. It is surrounded by a verandah on carved pillars and an upper storey. The roof of the main building is a stone dome, and the verandahs are also roofed with stone, though in some places small domes have been inserted at a later date. Stairs on the east side lead up to the roof.

Inscriptions :- In Arabic character over the entrance to the court, and on the eleven tombs inside. Nawâb Isakhân died in а.н. 1054.

(8) Duhgiranji Masjid or Amîr Khusro Khân's Masjid outside the town, was built in A.H. 997 (A.D. 1509) by Amîr Khusro Khân. The foundation and plinth are of stone, but the rest of the structure is of brick. It is 98 feet long by 48 deep, and has three bays with one central and two smaller domes. The interior is lined with coloured tiles. The Mêhrâb or pulpit is of carved stone.

Inscriptions: - Over the Mehrab is an Arabic inscription, and there are others on the walls below the springers of the domes.

(9) Jâmi Masjid in the town of Tâttâ was begun in A.H. 1054 and completed in 1057 (A.D. 1644—1647) but the floor was not laid till 1068. The foundation and plinth are of stone, the rest of burnt coloured bricks. The roof is formed of ninety-two domes, three of which are very large and have their interiors lined with coloured tiles. It is 305 feet long by 170 feet deep.

Inscriptions :- Over the archways of the two principal domes, on the east and west sides, in Arabic character.

(10) Tomb of Mîrzâ Tughral Beg, partially in ruins, was built in A.H. 1095 (A.D. 1684). It stands on a platform in the middle of a courtyard and is entirely of carved stone except the outer covering of the dome. It is 16 feet square outside, and the dome is supported by 12 pilasters and columns, and rises from an octagon.

Inscriptions: - On the tomb itself and over the north entrance in Arabic, and on the west side one in Persian.

Thul Rukhan, 8 miles S. E. from Daulatpur on the east side of the Haidarabad and Rohri postal road. This is a large Bauddha stupa, built of burnt brick and mud, and surrounded by a mound about 6 yards broad and 5 or 6 feet high. Above this the stupa rises about 50 feet and has two bands of pilasters, 20 in each storey, round the upper portion of the drum, which diminishes from 51 to about 46 feet 8 inches in diameter. The pilasters have moulded capitals and a cornice runs over them, but the top of the work has been ruined. The bricks measure 16"×11" by 3". There is no probable tradition of its origin or date.

- 3. Shåhpur Chakar, in Såkrand Tåluka. A mile S. E. from this are some tombs of the Mîrs of Khairpur.
- 4. Mão Mubarak, 10 miles N. of Naushahro station. An ancient mound, the site of an early stronghold (Ind. Ant., vol. XI., p. 7).

3.—SHIKARPUR DISTRICT.

5. Mayatari, 16 miles N. of Haidarabad:—(1) Jami Masjid, built A.H. 1218 (A.D. 1803) of brick with stone cornices and ornamented with carved stone and coloured tiles, about 86 feet by 32.

Inscription over the archway at entrance of the main central dome giving the date.

- (2) Dargah of Pir Rukanshah, built in A.H. 1179 (A.D. 1764-65) of brick and floored with tiles set in lime, 27 feet square.
 - (3) Dargah of Pir Hashimshah, built in A.H. 1175-similar to the preceding.
- 6. Mahi, in Kambar Tâluka, 6 miles N. E. from Kambar and 6 miles N. W. from Lârkâna: the kubâ or tomb of Shâhu'l Muḥammad Kalhora killed in A.H. 1030 (A.D. 1621) on the right bank of the Ghâr canal. The kubâ was erected to his memory by Mîyân Ghulâm Shâh Kalhora, A.H. 1188 (A.D. 1774). It is 15½ feet square and 35½ (?) feet high covered by a dome plastered outside with cheroli (burnt mica) plaster. The walls are faced with the usual coloured tiles—mostly fallen off. Inside are the tombs of Shâhu'l Muḥammad and his son Shâh Hassan.
- 7. Lârkâns:—The kubâ of Shâh Bahâro on the bank of the Ghâr canal close to the town. Shâh Bahâro held a military command under Mîyân Nûr Muḥammad Kalbora, and died în A.H. 1148 (1735-36 A.D.), and Mîyân Ghulâm Shâh Kalhora, the son of Nûr Muḥammad, erected this tomb to his memory in A.H. 1188 (A.D. 1774). It stands on a platform 75 feet square and is 39 feet square and 47 feet high to the crown of the dome. The dome is covered with bluish grey and green coloured tiles. The walls are faced outside with coloured tiles.

Inscription:—On white glazed tiles is a bombastic Persian inscription containing the date 1188 A.H.

8. Sakar:—Mîr Mâsum's Minar, begun in A.H. 1003 (A.D. 1594-95) and completed by Mîr Buzing Manwar, son of Mîr Mâsum Shâh, in 1027 (A.D. 1618). It is built of good brick, is 84 feet in circumference at the bottom, and is surmounted by a dome.

Inscription:—Over the door on an oblong stone giving the date A.H. 1003, &c. Beside it are the tombs of the Måsumi Sayyids, descendants of Mir Måsum. That of Mir Såfai, the father of Mir Måsum, has several inscriptions, one of them bearing the date of his death at a cold (a. 1502) bearing the date of his death, A.H. 991 (A.D. 1583).

Another near it, built in A.H. 1004, is octagonal with four arched entrances, those on the east and west having a cut-stone balcony over them. It is built of brick and decorated with coloured tiles. About 14 feet from the floor inside is a gallery running round, and above it is an inscription running all round but consisting of quotations from the Qorân, with a verse containing the date expressed in a phrase meaning "the abode of liberality"; there are also others over the small balconies.

Mîr Mâsum Shâh's own tomb bears an inscription giving the year of his death, A.H. 1014 (A.D. 1605-6).

- 9. Old Sakar. The tomb of Shâh Khairu'd-dîn (said to have been born at Bâgdad A.H. 898, and died at Sakar 1027, i.e. A.D. 1492—1618, which is very improbable).
- 10. Drakhan, 30 miles west from Sakar; about a mile W. close to the Drakhan and Ratodero road are the Thahim Tombs, four large domed buildings built of brick and covered with glazed tiles. They are in memory of Sâheb Khân Thahim, Dilâwar Khân Thahim, both killed in battle near Garhi Yasim, of Jelâl Khân much ruined, and of Jâfir Shâh.
- 11. Shikarpur. Tomb of Makh'dum Abdul Rahman built about 150 years ago, but restored in A.D. 1837, and more recently by the municipality. It is of brick and is about 21 feet square and 30 feet high.
- 12. Khânpur, 8 miles E. N. E. from Shikârpur. The Jami Idgah of Fakiru'd-dîn, said to have been built by Maghzal dîn Pathan some 400 or 500 years ago. It is of brick and mud, with four domes, but is now ruinous.
- 13. Mehar, 72 miles S. W. from Sakar. Tombs of Shah Panjo (1730) and Saydi Musani (1750); the dome of the latter fell in and was rebuilt about 75 years ago.
- 14. Got Kariya Mithozangi, Kakur Tâluka. About four miles from the village is the tomb of Mîyân Nasir Muhammad Kalhora, supposed to have been built in a.H. 1130 (A.D. 1718). With carved stone pillars, &c. The place is one of great sanctity and is surrounded by about 60 other kubas.
- 15. Bukerani, about 5 miles S. a little west of Tando Alahyar. (1) Tomb of Mîr Kaimshah Koreshi, erected in A.H. 1216, of brick with coloured decoration.

Inscription on glazed tiles above doorway that Mîr Kaimshâh died in A.H. 1215.

(2) Masjid of Pîr Kaimshâh, 48 feet by 30, built in A.H. 1274.
(3) Tomb of Pîr Fazil Shâh, 30 feet square, erected in A.H. 1267.

Inscription stating that Makhudum Fazlshâh Koreshi died on the 1st Zu'l-haj, 1266.

- 16. Rohri. In an island in the river the tomb of Khwaja Khizr Ind Pîr, has inscriptions in cameo.
- 17. Vijnôt, 4 miles S. of Reti railway station, Ubauro Tâluka. A series of mounds marking the site of an old city, in which are found carved slabs, brick foundations, &c. Many of the mounds have been recently excavated for the building materials they contain (see Ind. Ant., vol. X., pp. 1—9).

- 18. Sirwâhi or Sivrai, 3 miles N. W. from Walhar station, 5 miles N. E. from Sabzalkot, and half a mile S. from New Sanjarpur. The site of a deserted city. The bricks and materials have been largely carried off for the Indus Valley Railway. It contains the Rozah of Hazrat Musa Nawâb.
- 19. Mirpur Khås, 40 miles E. from Haidaråbåd. About 1½ mile N. or N. W. the Honourable J. Gibbs, in January 1859, excavated the base of a brick Thul. It is popularly known as "Kåhů jô Dărô" in which was found a vase of fine earthenware containing some pieces of crystal and amethyst. The vase is said to be now in Karåchi Museum. A head in greenish stone was also found, and sent to the Museum by Sir Bartle Frere.
- 20. Nuh-Hotiani, about 3 miles N. W. from Uderalål and 5 miles N. E. of the village of Khebrani, which is 8 miles N. of Matiari. Dargah of Pir Nuh Hotiani, built in A.H. 1092 (A.D. 1681) of brick, about 24 feet square.
- 21. Uderalål, 10 miles E. N. E. of Matiàri. Dargah of Uderalål erected in A.H. 1044 (A.D. 1634) by Bedarang, son of Shamdas Thakur, of brick on a stone foundation. The floor is of glazed tiles set in lime.

Inscription in Persian engraved on two stones imbedded in the wall on either side of the entrance to the antechamber of the dargah, giving date, &c.

22. Håla, 35 miles N. of Haidaråbåd. (1) The shrine of Makhadum Nuh, built by Pîr Muhammad Zamân in A.H. 1205 (A.D. 1790-91), of brick with coloured ornamentation. The foundation is of stone and the floor of glazed tiles. It measures 33 feet by 30 feet.

Inscription over the entrance to the dargah recording the names of the builder, mason, scribe, &c.

(2) Tomb of Makhadum Mîr Mahammad, built in A.H. 1210, of brick with coloured decorations on a stone foundation. It is about 25 feet square, and the floor is of glazed tiles.

Inscription over the entrance to the dargah recording that Mîr Fateh Ali Khân Sultân desired that a splendid tomb be erected, and that a spirit informed the writer of the year in which it was built.

(3) Makhadum's Masjid, 36½ feet by 20 feet, built in A.H. 1222, of brick also.

Inscription over the centre of the middle one of three archways at the entrance of the mosque stating that Mîr Karamali constructed this mosque, and that a spirit informed the writer of the date in the words "The mosque of God which resembles the Kâbâ."

23. Bhitshah, 5 miles E. of Hâla. (1) Tomb of Shâh Abdul Latif, built in A.H. 1167 (A.D. 1753-54), of brick on stone foundations, and about 36 feet square.

Inscription over the doorway at entrance to the dargah stating that "when the tomb of Shah Latif was erected by Sayyid Jamal he saw it splendidly adorned and called it 'the tomb of Latif full of heavenly light.'"

(2) Tomb of Pîr Habîb Shâh, built A.H. 1221, is 29 feet 6 inches square. Inscription over the doorway at the entrance to the dargah "Death is a bridge that leads us to our friends."

(3) Tomb of Pir Kaimdin and Latif Ali, erected in A.H. 1238.

4.—THAR AND PARKAR DISTRICTS.

- 28. Baharai, 3 miles N. E. from Umarkot. A temple of Mahâdêva, built of stone. In A.D. 1790 a certain Brâhman of Umarkot, who used to send out his cows to graze in the vicinity, observing that one of them gave no milk for some days continuously, accused the herd of dishonesty. The latter denied the charge, and next day reported that while driving the cows home in the evening he observed the cow stop at a certain place, and the milk to flow of itself. The owner went next day to the place himself and ascertained the truth of the statement. At night he said a spirit appeared to him in a dream and informed him that a Linga was buried at the spot, and if he erected a temple there he would never come to want. This he did with the aid of the Sôdas,—then influential here The temple is annually visited by large numbers of Hindus from Umarkot: it is only about 12 feet square. The same story is told of many temples.
- 29. Haro, 24 miles N. E. from Viravâ, Nagar Tâluka. A Jaina temple about 125 feet by 100 feet, built of marble. It is related that about five hundred years ago one Manga Oswâl of Pari-Nagar went to Pâtan to make purchases, and was informed in a dream by a spirit that there was an image buried beneath the house of a certain Musalman, which he should try to secure. Having succeeded in this he brought it to Pari-Nagar, where the spirit again appeared and ordered him to procure two calves and have a cart made of the wood of the nîm (Margosa) tree, and placing the image on it to move on without looking behind. On reaching the place where the temple now stands the cart broke down, and being fatigued he fell asleep, to be informed by the spirit that both marble and treasure were buried where this had occurred and that he should send for workmen and build a temple worthy of the idol, which is worshipped under the name of Gauri. It was built in Samvat 1432 (A.D. 1375-76). In A.D. 1835 the image disappeared. The temple is visited by Jainas and others.

30. Bhôdeśvar, 4 miles N. N. W. from Nagar Parkar. (1) A tank 400 feet by 200, said to have been excavated in the reign of Bhôda Parmara, son of prince Jeso Parmar, who was induced by the Brahmans to sacrifice his son to the goddess of the city in order that the tank might retain the water.

(2) A mosque about 20 feet by 12, said to be of the same age.

- 31. Sirewari, 10 miles N. from Khipra. A mosque about 40 feet by 12 feet, built of brick by Taj Muhammad about a century ago.
- 32. Near Khiprå, 3 miles to the N. W. of it, at Kubah, a mosque about 40 feet by 12 feet, called Jamå, built by wife of Ghulâm Shâh Kalhora, last century.
- 33. Chotiari, 14 miles E. from Sanghar. A mosque about 30 feet by 15 feet, of brick, about the same age as the last.
- 34. Dher Mitha Faqir, 12 miles S. W. from Khiprå. Shrine of Mitha Faqir, erected about a century ago by his followers.
- 35. Giror, 25 miles N. W. from Umarkot. The shrine of Abdûl Rahim, erected of brick by Mir Bijar Khân scarcely a century ago, is about 16 feet square.
- 36. Nawâkot, 40 miles S. W. from Umarkôt. (1) Shrine of Razi Shâh, 30 feet by 15 feet, built by his followers about 35 years ago.

(2) Fort erected by Mir Murad Ali, about 50 years ago.

- 37. Ramjago, 24 miles W. from Umarkot. Tomb of Mir Mubârak Khân Talpur, 20 feet square, built of grey stone and painted inside. It is about 150 years old.
- 38. Juariasar, 25 miles W.S.W. from Umarkot. Tomb of Walidad Mari, 16 feet square, of brick, about the same age.
- 39. Hasan Bagban, 26 miles W. from Umarkot. Tomb of Hasan Bagban, 50 feet by 14 and 20 feet high, built of brick about 200 years ago.
- 40. Virawâ, lat. 24° 31′ N., long. 70° 50′ E. The ruins of Pari-Nagara are close by. It is said to have been founded in a.b. 456 by one Jesso Parmâr of Bâlmir, and is supposed to have been destroyed by the Muhammadans. Among the ruins are the remains of many Jaina temples, some of them still partially standing, with beautifully executed sculptures. They are built of white marble.

- 1. Bhadréśvar, 12 miles E.N.E. from Mundra: (1) The large Jaina temple of Jagaduśâh, outside the village, has been largely rebuilt and repaired at different times: on the walls and pillars are some Inscriptions, but only very partially legible (see Archæol. Report W. Ind., vol. II). (2) Two old mosques, one much buried up in the sand, the other in tolerable repair. (3) Beside an old kund is a temple of Mâtâ Âśâpurâ; and on a broken pillar is an Inscription dated Sam. 1358 (A. D. 1302). (4) The Dargah of Pîr Lal Shobhah has an old Arabic inscription along the upper course of the wall. The foundations of the old city of Bhadravatî extend over a large area close to the modern town (Archæol. Report W. Ind., vol. II).
- 2. Bhuvad, 7 miles N.N.E. from Bhadrêśvar: An early temple of Bhuvanêśvar Mahâdêva of which the shrine has fallen, but the mandapa still remains, and is a good example of the early Kachh style. It bears an Inscription, very illegible, but dated Sam. 1246 (A.D. 1190).
- 3. Vîra, 6 mîles E. from Bhadrêśvar: The kubâ or domed tomb of Pîr Jâdia, a Sayyid from Sindh, built by Nayi Punjâ, about 250 years ago. The temple of Yôginidêvî, rebuilt by Gurji Motichand of Anjâr, about 30 years ago; śrāddha ceremonies are performed at the kuṇḍ by the Hindus of surrounding villages.
- 4. Anjâr, 16 miles N.E. from Bhadrêśvar, and 22 S.E. from Bhuj: No remains of much interest, most of the temples, &c., having been rebuilt after the earthquake of 1819. It contains the Sthâns or sacred places (1) of Ajayapâl—said to have been a prince of Ajmir (Tod's Rājasthân, vol. I, p. 205n); the head of the Math has a copper-plate grant of Sam. 1673, and two others: (2) of Jêsal or Jêsar Pîr, said to have been a notorious freebooter, who was reclaimed by Turî, a Kâthî woman: (3) Temples of Wańkal Mâtâ, Mahâdêva Badêśvar, Ambâ Mâtâ, and Mâhanrâi,—but of little interest.
- Barâi, near Mundra: Temple of Mahâdêva Nîlakantha, built in 1668 A.D.
 The linga is said to have been brought from Bhadrésvar.
- 6. Gêdî, 13 miles N.E. from Râpur (lat. 23° 44′ N., long. 70° 45′ E.): said to be the ancient Vairațanagarî; old coins are found about the locality. (1) Mâlan Vâv, of which the pillars are half buried in the ground and the well overgrown with trees; an inscription, said to have belonged to it, lies in the temple of Achalêśvar, and is dated in 1476 a.d. (2) Temple of Mahâdêva Achalêśvar, said to be about 300 years old, but built on an older site by a Sâchôra Brâhman. (3) Temple of Lakshminârâyana, built in 1841, on the site of one destroyed by the earthquake; some of the old images remain; and in a niche over a Gaṇapati is an inscription of Sam. 1675. (4) Temple of Mahâvîra, containing images of Adišvar dated Sam. 1534, and of Śântinâth dated Sam. 1925. (5) On an image of a Kshêtrapâla in the bazar is the date Sam. 1268. The tomb of Ashaba Pîr is only a platform with tombs on it.
- 7. Rav, 9 miles S.W. from Gêdî: The temple of Ravêchi Mâtâ, built by Sâmabâi Mâtâ, the priestess, in 1822 A.D., on the site of a very old one, and at a cost of 24,000 koris; the temple maintains about 500 cows and feeds all tra- vellers. On a pâliyâ is the date Sain. 1328 "when Arjunadêva of Anahillapaţţan reigned through his viceroy Maladêva." The temple stands on the verge of a fine kund.

- 8. Môvânâ, 14 miles N.E. from Gêdî: The old site is to the north of the village, and there are two caverns in the hill.
- 9. Kanthkôt, 16 miles S.W. from Rav and 36 N.E. from Anjâr: (1) A Jaina temple of the 13th century, much ruined and having some abraded Inscriptions, one dated Sam. 1340. (2) Temple of Sûrya, containing an image of that god. (3) Temple of Kanthadanâtha, a neat small shrine on the site of the old one destroyed by the earthquake; it belongs to the Kânphata sect.
- 10. Varnun, 25 miles S.E. from Gêdi and 24 E.N.E. from Chitrôd: On the edge of the Ran is an old temple said to date from the time of Mûlarâja. It is small, with three porches. In repairs executed in 1851 an inscription is said to have been plastered over.
- 11. Chitrôd, 13 miles E.S.E. from Kanthkôt: Four old and much dilapidated temples at Mêwâsâ, about a mile to the north, have been sculptured. The temple of Mahâdêva, at the ruins of Bêtî, a mile east of Mêwâsâ, has an inscription of Sam. 1559.
- 12. Lakadîya, 11 miles S.E. from Kanthkôt, and 8 S.W. from Chitrôd: Minar built by Jádējā Dêvaji in 1760, on a platform; it is octagonal, and said to be about 10 ft. in diameter and 44 ft. high, with balconies and a dome.
- 13. Katâriyâ, 5 mîles S.E. from Lakadîya: A small temple of Mahâdêva Bhadêsvara on the west of the village, eracted in 1683, by a Bhâtiya. Pâlîyâs of Satis on the bank of the kund bear dates Sam. 1684, 1764, &c. The Jaina temple in the bazar is deeply buried in the earth and dilapidated, but has been richly carved.
- 14. Sikarpur, 4 miles S.E. from Katâriyâ: The tombs of the Pîrs Pâṭhâ, Gêbanshâh, Multâni, and Ashâbah are of no interest.
 - 15. Manfarå, 7 miles W. from Kanthkôt: A temple and monastery.
- 16. Sikrå, 15 miles S.W. from Kanthkôt and 3 W.N.W. from Bhachau: The ruined temple of Kagêśvara; two tombs of Momana Kunbis built in 1667, of good workmanship; a Pîr's tomb on the site of the old town; and a fine Jaina temple of Vasapuja, built in 1717; also some old påliyås.
- 17. Kôtâi, 13 miles N. from Bhuj: A fine old temple attributed to Lâkhâ Phulâni, and well worth preserving; also others more dilapidated, but all of considerable age, perhaps of about the 10th century (Archwol. Reports, vol. II).
- 18. Bhuj, the capital: (1) The tombs of the Râos, much injured by the earthquake in 1819, but several of them are deserving of repair and preservation. In the tomb or Chhatri of Bhârmalji is a pûlîyâ bearing an inscription commemorating the Sati of Bâi Śrî Lilâvatî, daughter of Mandalika of Jûnâgaḍh, in Sam. 1688. The Chhatri was erected in Sam. 1714. Another inscription in the Chhatri of Prâgmalji gives the date of his death in Sam. 1772, Saka 1637; and states that he married the daughter of Râo Râvalsingh of Îdar. (2) The old palace has some good architectural details. (3) The mosque inside the gate is of some interest. (4) There are temples of Suvarnarâya, Kalyânêśvara, Swamandap, &c.

18. Khêdâ, 11 miles S. from Bhuj and 18 N. from Mundra: said to have been the capital of Lâkhâ Phulâni. The vimâna of a very fine temple of about the 10th century remains, and is well worth preservation; the mandapa was thrown down by the earthquake (see Archæol. Rep., vol. II.). Near the town is a fine modern tomb and other buildings raised by Ghulâm Ali Shâh Kâdivâl since A.D. 1792; they belong to the Khojahs or Shîah-Imâmi-Ismaëli sects introduced into Gujarât by Sudru'd-dîn; they reverence Ali and Fatima, their sons Hasan and Husain, and Muḥammad, of whom they have representations but without faces.

- 19. Mândavî, 23 miles W. from Mundra and 24 S.W. from Khêda: (1) Temple of Sundarvar, belonging to the Vaishnava sect, built by the Darbar in Sam. 1631, but is going to decay; the mandapa is domed and surrounded by parapet walls. (2) Rânêśvara, built by Kamâbâi, the sister of Bhârmalji, in Sam. 1684; it is larger and finer than Sundarvar, the dome being supported by 16 pillars; it is a Saiva shrine. (3) Lakshmînârâyana, built by Sêth Tôpan in Sam. 1664, and is larger than the others. (4) Rañchôdji Mahârâja, of the Vallabhâchârya sect, is of two storeys. (5) Qâziwali Masjid, Sam. 1665, ruined by the earthquake. (6) Jâmi' masjid, Sam. 1660, built of materials from a Hindu temple, but also ruined; neither mosque was of much pretensions.
- 20. Gundiyali, 3 miles S.E. from Mandavî: Temple of Raval Pîr, built by two Sêths in 1820, on the shore, and visited by Hindus and Musalmans at the annual fair.
- 21. Bagadå, 7 miles N.W. from Bhadrêśvar: between this village and Våghorå is a small temple of Phulêśvara, rebuilt about 1838; also the Sêlora step-well, restored in 1854.
- 22. Godhrå, 8 miles N.W. from Måndavî: The town was built in 1609; the temple of Chaturbhujaraya, Sam. 1776, and another smaller one, Sam. 1751, are of little interest.
- 23. Vinjân, formerly Kânchibâ-pâţţan, 2 miles W. from the present village, was a place of importance, and coins are sometimes found on the site, where also is a shrine of Kâlikâ Mâtâ. The temple of Rakhêśvara Mahâdêva, at Vinjân, is 45 ft. by 35 ft., built of hard yellow stone, Sam. 1688.
- 24. Guntri, 26 miles N. from Viñjān and 36 W.N.W. from Bhuj: The ruins of a deserted city, surrounded by walls with towers, 2250 yards in circuit. It was the capital of the Sândh Râjputs, perhaps about A.D. 1300, and deserves examination. (Trans. R. As. Soc., vol. III., p. 586).
- 25. Lâkbâḍi, 16 miles S.E. from Guntrî and 18 W. from Bhuj: Near it and Mañjal, another village to the S.W., is Puvrâgaḍh or Paddhargaḍh, an ancient fort, said to have been built by Puñvrâ Gahâni, the nephew of Lâkhâ Phulâni. The walls are 2385 yards in circuit. The larger palace is about 55 ft. square and 20 high, built of large blocks of stone and with considerable taste; it is of two storeys, and the upper was supported by 84 round pillars, about 7 ft. high and mostly of single blocks of stone, having square capitals ornamented with the heads of men and animals. The porch and colonnade in front are carved. The area in the centre is open to the sky. The smaller palace, called Addhaṭâro, is about 40 ft. long by 23 wide, of one storey, with front and pillars carved, but inferior to the larger one. The Mint is a heap of rains, but there is a small building in the enclosure which has perhaps been a temple. The gateway on the west is a very narrow one. Near it is a fine old Saiva temple, similar to the one at Khêdâ, with sculptures. To the west of the fort are two temples of the Mêghavâlas or Dhêds, now in ruins; one of them is on a platform, 70 ft. by 50; it has pillars 10 ft. high supporting a very fine dome; and the shrine door is richly sculptured. The other is quite a ruin. These ruins are probably of about the same age as the remains at Khêda and at Bhumlî in Kâthiâwâd (a).

26. Kôthara, 9 miles N.W. from Vinjan: The great Jaina temple of Santinatha, built in 1852, at a cost of 16 lakhs of koris, is similar to that of Hathisingh at Ahmadabad.

27. Dhinôdhar, 27 miles N.W. from Bhuj and 12 E.N.E. from Guntri: The chief seat of the Kanphatas, with a small temple of Dharmanatha the founder of the sect, and other buildings, on a hill 1268 feet high.

28. Kôrâ, 24 miles W.N.W. from Guntri and 5 N.W. from Madh: The ruins of the médi or house of Pîr Aliyâji, of little interest.

- 29. Mâtâ-no Madh: on a hill to the north-east is a small temple to Âśâpurâ, built about 1745. At the top of a hill called Jâgôrâ Dungar, 2 miles to the north, is a small cavern dedicated to Âśâpurâ. The temple of Âśâpurâ at Madh is said to have been founded in the 13th century, but was destroyed by the carthquake, and rebuilt in 1824; it has a pradakshina and is 58 feet long by 32 wide. The Kâpâdî sect of ascetics are devotees of Âśâpurâ, who is the Kuladêvatâ of the Jâdêjâ clan. The temple and kund of Châcharâ are partly hewn out of the sandstone rock; the water is charged with sulphates and used in the manufacture of alum.
- 30. Pátgadh or Vàgham Châvadâ's gadh, 10 miles N. of Kôrâ and near Sairâ and Aratdâ: the site of an ancient city extending about 2 miles along the banks of the stream, with two forts; much of the materials have been carried off to build the town of Lakhpat. To the west of the site is a cave with a hall 35 feet long by 30 wide, the roof supported by two 16-sided pillars with capitals, their shafts being 8 feet high; to the right is a room 12 feet square with a carved door, and beyond it is a third, while a fourth is in the back of the hall. The temple of Kateśvara was rebuilt in 1825; on the east of it is the kund with stone steps. The temple of Katika Mātā was rebuilt in 1839 of old materials (α).
- 31. Lakhpat, 6 miles W. of Saira: The kubâ of Gosa Muhammad, begun in 1855, on a platform 54 feet square and 7 high, is octagonal and about 38 ft. in diameter, of black stone and richly carved, with fine stone lattice work; it is floored with marble and has a marble canopy over the grave.
- 32. Chher, 7 miles S.W. from Lakhpat: The kubâ of Lal-Chhatta is of brick and not noteworthy.
- 33. Rakanoj, 4 miles N.E. of Amara, on the north bank of the river Kinnar and the south side of the Sanandhro: the ruins of an ancient town, extending for more than a mile, with heaps of ruined temples and other buildings. The tomb of Kara Kâsim is a mile west of Âmârâ; he is worshipped by both Hindus and Muhammadans, and a legend is told of him, which would identify him with Muḥammad bin Kâsim, 712 A.D. (a).
- 34. Narayansar, 18 miles S.W. from Lakhpat and 26 W. by N. from Madh: a place of reputed sanctity, and a rival to Dwaraka. The temples were erected by a Rånî of Råo Dêsalji I. in Sam. 1780 (A.D. 1734), and are of considerable splendour. That of Trikamarâya is 72 feet long by 68 wide; it has three porches and a maṇḍapa, supported by pillars 12 ft. high with capitals, and having cusped arches between; the domes are carved; the doors are plated with silver; the image is of black marble on a sinhâsana of silver work, and over it are 40 gold and silver chhatras. In the same enclosure are temples to Kalyâṇarâya, Lakshmî, Dwârakânâtha or Rañchhôdaji, Gôvardhananâtha, Âdinârâyaṇa and Lakshmînârâyaṇa, with inscriptions of Sam. 1790 and 1797.

35. Kôtêśvar, close to Nârâyaṇsâr: On a mound to the N.W. is a walled enclosure with a temple of Kôtêśvara Mahâdêva, built, or rather rebuilt, in 1820; beside it is a smaller one to Kalyāṇêśvara; at the pier is the Gayâkuṇḍ: also the temples of Nîlakaṇṭha, Kanakêśvara or Jag Dado, and Rupêśvara.

XXVI.-BERAR, OR HYDERABAD ASSIGNED DISTRICTS.

I .- WUN DISTRICT.

1 .- YEOTMAL TÂLUKA.

1. Yeotmal. Temple of Srî Kêdârêśvara Svâmi, about 270 yards from the town on the west bank of a stream. A sabhâmandapa is added in front, making the whole 40 feet in length. The roof is supported by 18 pillars with carved bases and capitals, and on 2 are figures of elephants. The jambs and lintel of the door are sculptured and there is an ornamental niche on each side the entrance. It is built of black cut stone and is of the kind usually styled Hemâdpanti. It may be 500 years old. The dome is still entire.

2. Lôhâra, about 2½ miles from Yeotmal on the road leading to Darwâ. The temple of S'rî Lôhârêśvara is a Hemâdpanti one with a sabhâmaṇdapa, the roof supported by 18 pillars, 6 of which are carved with human and other figures. The dome and roof of the sabhâmaṇdapa are out of repair. It is supposed to be about 500 years old (a).

3. Kalam, 12 miles E. from Yeotmal. A remarkable underground temple of Chintaman.

2.—Wun Tâluka.

4. Jagad, 14 miles S. of Wun. The Hemådpanti temple of Sri Jagadambå, now empty, is 66 feet in length, the roof supported by 22 pillars, most of them well sculptured. The outside walls are also elaborately sculptured with images, &c. Tradition says the image was taken out by Aurangzeb (a).

 Pandardêvi, a waste village about 22 miles W. of Wun. A Hemâdpanti temple partly in ruins. The roof has been supported by columns, of which 34 still remain. It was also elaborately sculptured on the outer walls (a).

3. - DARWA TALUKA.

5. Larkhed, about 10 miles E. from Darwâ. Hemâdpanti black stone temple of 5ri Laksheśvara Mahâdêva, about 3 furlongs south of the village. It has a sabhâmaṇḍapa and is about 82 feet in length. The roof is supported by 16 round, octagonal and square pillars with figures carved upon them. It is partially ruined.

6. Dudhgåm, 2 miles E. of Darwå. A black stone Hemådpanti temple of Srî Pañchalingêśvara Mahådêva, to the south of the village, has a dome and sabhåmandapa and is about 55 feet in total length. The roof is supported by 18 columns. There are niches in the walls, and the building is partly ruined (a).

7. Pathrot, about 50 miles E. of Darwâ. The Hemâdpanti temple of S'rî Dêvî Lakshmîjî, 1½ furlongs to the west of the village, with a sabhâmandapa, 48 feet in length over all, with 16 columns supporting the roof. It is a plain building and was repaired about 150 years ago.

8. Warud, 10 miles W. of Darwâ. Hemâdpanti temple of S'rî Mahâdêva with a sabhâmandapa about 34 feet over all, with 16 columns supporting the roof. It was repaired about 80 years ago.

 Satephul, 13 miles N. from Darwa. Temple of Sri Kapileśvara Mahadeva, with sabhamandapa, 48 feet in length over all, the roof supported by 18 pillars and pilasters, and with sculptures on both sides of the entrance (α).

Inscriptions:—Some on the walls, but much abraded.

- 10. Soniwarona, 16 miles N. of Darwa. A Hemadpanti S'aiva temple with a sabhamandapa, about 38 feet over all. The roof is supported by 12 octagonal pillars and pilasters.
- 11. Jawalgânw, 9 miles N. of Dârwâ. A partially ruined Hemâdpanti S'aiva temple, with a sabhâmaṇḍapa. The roof is supported by 8 carved pillars and 4 pilasters. In the sabhâmaṇḍapa is carved a tortoise.
- 12. Nimbhâ, 9 miles E. of Darwâ. A brick temple of Srî Dattâtraya about 1½ mile to the south-west of the village, built by Janârdan Bharti, Mahant of Mahor, about 250 years ago. It is about 60 feet over all and has an underground hall. The roof is supported by 12 pillars and 4 pilasters and has some sculptures on the walls on both sides of the entrance to the underground court. In the underground hall are figures of Dattâtraya and the ten avatâras. The place is sacred for the performance of śrâdâthas (a).
- 13. Mahâgânw, 13 miles S. of Darwâ. Temple of S'rî Kamlêśvara Mahâdêva, a quarter mile north of the village, with a sabhâmandapa, about 51 feet in length over all. The roof is supported by 18 octagonal well-carved pillars and pilasters. On both sides of the entrance are sculptures, and the Nandî is locally regarded as a fine piece of sculpture (a).
- 14. Dabari, 25 miles S. of Darwâ. A Hemâdpanti temple of Sri Om-kârêśvara, with a sabhâmandapa and two adjuncts, about 68 feet in total length, and with 28 pillars supporting the roof. The sabhâmandapa has a low screen wall round it. In front is a dîpmâla and a samâdh or tomb, sculptured with monkeys.
- 15. Lak, 6 miles S. of Darwa. A Hemadpanti Saiva temple, about 33 feet in length, the roof supported by 20 plain pillars and pilasters. It is a "twin" temple, i.e., there are two shrines facing each other with a sabhamandapa between. The one is covered by an octagonal dome and the other by a terraced roof. It is partly in ruins.

4.—Kehlapur Táluka.

- 16. Kåp, 30 miles W. of Påndarkaura. Temple of Sri Kåpésvara, an octagonal temple with a sabhåmandapa, 52 feet in length, the roof supported by 28 pillars and pilasters. About 130 years old.
- 17. Kurad, 14 miles W. of Påndarkaura. Saiva temple about a century old, with a sabhāmaṇḍapa and sunk shrine. The walls are of stone and the roof, brick.
- 18. Ravairi, 28 miles N. of Pândarkaura. Partly ruined temple of Siva, about 50 feet long, with 16 pillars, supposed to be 500 years old.

II .- AMARAVATI DISTRICT.1

1 .- AMARÁVATÎ TALUKA.

- 1. Amarâvatî. Two temples of Bhavanî, one said to be 1000 years old, the other 125, built of stone; a temple of Bâlâji and five others (a).
 - 2. Wasoda. Saiva temple, said to be 350 years old.

¹ From the Deputy Commissioner's return. No dimensions, character, or any detailed information such as is most wanted,—not even the localities of the different villages,—are given in this return.

- 3. Kolhâpur, 16 mîles W. of Amarâvatî (lat. 20° 55' N., long. 77° 32' E.). Temples of Umêśvara, Kalêśvara and another, over a century old; also a temple of Hanuman and five others, and a mosque. This is a famous Jaina tîrtha (a).
- 4. Badnêrâ Bîbi, railway station for Amarâvatî and Ilichpur: 5 miles south of the former fort; temple of Bhavânî and two havêlis.

2.—MURTIZAPUR TALUKA.

- 5. Kamargânw, 12 miles S.E. from Murtizapur. Brick temple of Bhavânî.

- 19. Sâlbaldi on the Maru, 5 miles N. of Morsi, where Sîtâ is said to have borne Lava and Kuśa, and where Vâlmîki was released from his entombment by Nârada. It has a hot and a very cold spring.

ILICHPUR. 229

1.—ILICHPUR TALUKA.

1. Hichpur, said to have been founded by Râja Îl in Sam. 1115. (1) Dulla Rahimân's dargah (assassinated about 1370 a.d.), on the bank of the Bichhan, from which a chabutra 35 feet high has been built: on this are 11 bastions and 4 gates. The building covering the tomb has silver doors. Government gives an annual grant of Rs. 464 besides the village of Kândlî, which was given in Jâghir by Nizâm Ali in the time of Ismâil Khân. The dargah and enclosure were built by Safdar Khân Sîstâni, who ruled Berâr for forty years in the name of Alau'ddîn Hasan Shâh Kangoh (Gangu) in A.H. 772¹ (A.D. 1370-71). On the left hand when approaching this dargah is another built by Safdar Khân for himself.

On the right hand side of the second court round this dargah is a mosque built in A.H. 1130 (A.D. 1718).

On the right hand side stands a mosque built in 1130 a.H. (circ. a.d. 1718) by Manzur Khan (alias Miyan Manzur), who ruled Hichpur in the days of Muḥammad Farukh Shah. This was built of lime and bricks, and remaining without repairs it fell into ruins. It was afterwards rebuilt of stone by Nawab Muḥammad Ghulam Hasan Khan, who gave a prayer-carpet, which remains to this day. Over the doorway is an inscription composed by the Nawab's head munshi, Rājā Sharai, and carved on a marble slab by Hirā Lal, now a pensioner on the bounty of the Begam of Bhopal.

which being freely translated runs thus :-

"This mosque is like to the mosque of Aksa; in this land of our pilgrimage, an arbour of religion: with zeal and strong faith was it built by Nawab Hasan Khan: the date of its year God unseen proclaimed 'The place of obeisance for angels on earth."

The outer court was built by the two Bhońslas, Raja Raghuji and his brother Madhuji. Madhuji, displeased with his brother, had come to Hichpur, and, in the company of Nawab Muhammad Ismail Khan, used to visit the dargah. One day he ventured to remonstrate with the Nawab on his useless liberality at the dargah in gifts to high and low: to which the pious Nawab made answer that he looked for his reward in another world. Two or three days after this, on their way back from the dargah, the two passed by the Chauk mosque. Here there lay in wait assassins, sent by Raghuji, to dispose of his brother. They struck at Madhuji with their swords, and then, fearing, fled. Muhammad Rustam, the Nawab's physician, sewed up the wounds, and with healing ointments brought back Madhuji to health again. He straightway repented him of his untimely criticism, and made his offering also at the dargah. Not content with this, he vowed that if ever he reigned at Nagpur, he would build a new enclosure for the dargah. He kept his word and (about A.D. 1780) he began the third court, setting, as superintendents over the work, Iz-ud-dîn Darogah, and Jhâm Sing Killadar of Gawilgarh.

To this enclosure there are five handsome gateways, two in the west and one in each of the other walls. The east gate, which was built in 1192 A.H. (circ. A.D. 1778), has a flight of stone steps on either side leading to a broad barah-dari (or covered outlook) at the top. Half way up each flight is a small domed halting place. The barah-dari has six window places and two doorways, and is surmounted by four small minars.

The inscription on the gate is :-

which may be thus translated :-

"In faith and certainty know that it is higher than the sky, (is) the summit of this court of the lord of religion, Shâh Rahmân, Ghâzi, who died in battle, a man at whose door even kings bow their foreheads: at the order of Râjâ Mâdhuji, Sheik Amîr-ud-dîn raised the building: a messenger said to me, look and say, 'This is the gate of lofty paradise.'"

The south gate, built three years after the east gate, is surmounted by a barah-dari, with four minars. Its inscription runs thus:-

از طفیل شاه رحمان درقالتاج شهان راجدمودهاجی بمقصد بهره ورشددر جهان شیخ عزالدین رفیق جهام سنگدازسعی خود ساختد زین قطعد تعمیر در جنّت نشان

In English:—"Through the favour of Shah Rahman, crowning pearl among kings, Raja Madhuji in this world attained his desire: through the endeavours of Sheikh Iz-ud-dîn, in conjunction with Jham Sing, a right celestial door hath been erected here."

Like to the south gate, but smaller, and with solid minars, is one of the west gates; while the second gate on the western side is the large entrance gate, in front of which the Bichhan river flows. The gate has no flights of steps, nor barah-dari, and only two minars. These two gates were built in the years 1190 A.H. and 1192 A.H. (1776 and 1778). The inscription on the large entrance gate stands thus:—

قطعد تاریخ بر دروازه درگاه حضرت شاه عبدالرحمان غازی قدسوه جانب غربی متعلی رود بیهن قبلد رو

روستد رحمان خازی رونق ملک برار راجدمودهاجی بصحنش کرد تعمیر استوار زین بناچون جهام سنگد حکمی بعزالدین رساند بود بزار و یکعد و نود ز بجری آشکار جهب تاریخش قلم راندم زلوح جان جود ز اسمان شا این ندا کز عرض ذکر نامدار

This inscription may be thus rendered :-

"The scroll of the date for the gateway of the dargah of Hazrat Shah Abdul Rahman, Ghazi, pure be his soul! on the west side by the Bichhan river looking towards the Kibla.

"The (funeral) garden of Rahmân, Ghâzi, light of the country of Berâr, on its pavement Râjâ Mâdhuji built a strong structure. When Jhâm Sing gave to Iz-ud-dîn the royal order for it, the year 1190 A.H. (A.D. 1776) was beginning. For the date I wrote on the tablet of my mind: there came a voice from heaven, 'Its name is noted for the breadth.'"

The inscription on the smaller west gate runs thus :-

یا الله یا رحمی یا رحیم بروز جمعہ صند ۱۱۹۳ یکہزار ویکصد و نود و دو In English it runs:-

"O God, merciful and gracious. Friday [date and month omitted], 1192."

These four gates were built by Mâdhuji Bhonslâ, but the fifth gate, that on the northern wall, was built in 1780 by his brother Raghuji. As his agent, Raghuji employed Mir Mahdi, who six years afterwards began to build the archway; this gate, however, was not finished.

The inscription runs thus :-

بسم الله الرَّحمن الرحيم

which may be thus translated :-

"Praise be to the Eternal, the world Adorner; inasmuch as through the good fortune of Mahârâja Raghuji Bhoùslâ, a servant in God's court, and with the aid of Mir Mahdi, the erection of this gate was completed (the gate) of Shâh Abd-ul Rahmân, Ghâzi, foremost among God-seeking believers (i.e., bondsmen to God) and nobles."

On the inner side of the entrance gate, there stands this inscription :-

"Mådhuji built this enclosure of Rahmân Shâh. Sheikh Iz-ud-dîn and Jhâm Sing in a few years completed the portico of the dargah, high and lofty; in 1190 Hijri was the building made, vying with the sky in pomp and splendour. O God! safely was this structure raised, to be a remembrance as long as the sun and moon may last."

بر مواد راجد كونبا صاحب از شرف كود مود بلجي بناي روض در رحمان شاه هيخ مزالدين رفيق جهام سنگددر چند سال صاختد ايوان آن در گاه عالي بارگاه در پزار و نود و يكسد شده ترتيب آن با شكوه صولت گردون گردان اشتباه يا الهي اين بنا قايم بود يي حاد ثد از براي ياد كاري تاكد باشد مهر و ماه

In the first court, by the tomb of Dulla Rahman, stands an old barna tree (Oratava tapia), dry for eight months out of the twelve: while in front of the mosque stands a mulsari tree (Mimusops elengi), also very old.

In the large third court, enclosed by Mâdhuji Bhonslâ, are the graves of many forgotten nobles. One of these is very handsome. It is of sand-stone, with grated windows and varied tracery work. The two grave stones are of trap rock, and are probably those of some noble and his wife.

Beside the buildings already mentioned are those on the right hand side of the entrance gateway. Of these, the only one worthy of notice is a domed tomb built to the memory of Shams-ud-dîn, tutor to Dulla Rahmân Shâh. This also has a grated window.

The lamp towers which overlook the Bichhan stream, the clock-house, &c., are all very recent: and indeed nearly all the buildings clustered together around the large entrance gate are interesting rather by reason of their history than of their architectural beauty.

Close outside the courtyard of Dulla Rahman's tomb, and within the wall that runs down to the river, a spot is shown where Raja II, the founder of Ilichpur, is said to be buried. On the other side of the Bichhan river, towards the city, stands a large handsome sand-stone domed tomb, built by a horsemerchant of the time of Aurangzeb for him. He died elsewhere, however, and the gumbaz was afterwards cursed by a Fakir. Further away across the Bichhan, and in the opposite direction, stands the gumbaz of Moni-Joni. It also is built of sand-stone: the dome is high and indeed starts with being a cylinder rather than a dome. It is also slightly unsymmetrical, as though settlement had taken place: no crack in the wall, however, can be found to corroborate this supposition. The story of the dome is this: when Ahmad Shah Bahmani came to Ilichpur, his vazîr had two little daughters, Moni and Joni, playmates of the monarch's daughter. To them on this place two domes were erected, but one of these the Nawab Namdar Khan pulled down for materials to build his own garden gates; very much as Nawab Ismail Khan pulled down the tombs at the Idgah to beautify the city with the stones thereof. These domes, and especially that built by the horse-merchant, very closely resemble the Pathan dome at Shepri; see Fergusson's Ind. Arch., p. 515, last ed. (a).

Near the Moni-Joni dome stands that of Latif Shah, built about 150 years ago.

(2) The Chauk Masjid is in three bays, with as many broad domes. With the well and reservoir it was built by Nawab Shaishta Khan alias Mirza Bêg Khan in A.B. 1079.

Inscription in Persian as follows :-

لااله الاالله محمد رسول الله which may be translated thus:-

"A chosen noble of the Turanians, "Styled by the king, Mirza Bêg Khân, "Whose trade was charity, a man of men,

"Built in his piety this house.

"The site was formerly that of a prison,

"But he changed the prison to a house of rest;

"Its morn was bright like the Ka'aba, the palace of Islam, "And at evening it was like to the House of Purity;

"The well was a twin with the Zamzam well,

"And the hauz gave water like jewels, "I bethought me to ask from a sage, "The phrase for the date of its record

"The phrase for the date of its year; "With kindly pleasure he answered,

"It is great and pure like the Bait-ul-Haram."

There seems to be some mistake in the transcript. The whole of the last hemistich gives 1042 (not 1079).

(3) Jâmi' Masjid, in a large square court. It is 11 bays in length and 4 in breadth, and is said to have been built by Imâdu'l Mulk, the son-in-law of Muḥammad Tughlak.

Inscription in Persian on the entrance as follows :-

The inscription may be thus rendered :-

"In the name of God, most merciful and by his assistance only-"In the reign of the mighty king, the Emperor Alamgir, by whose order the crown was taken from Qaysar's head, there was a great man, a defender of the Emperor, by name Ali Mardan Khân, with the dust of whose horse's shoe the moon would wash the black spots from her face. The mosque of meeting, that made Hichpur a paradise, had long been decaying and without repair. The skill of this architect was but a lesser quantity of that of the mighty builder (?); and the enclosure he built held the mirror to the garden of charity. Shâh Muhammad Bêg helped in the good work; noble was his zeal, and the work of the building was splendid. The waves of the tank that give pleasure to the mind are like to the rewards of obedience: while the strange bitterness of the well was removed by the Zamzam spring. I asked of my soul the date hereof, and it answered 'One who hath' seen the holy Ka'aba must have erected this mosque.'

"Written by Muhammad Hasim of Ali Mardan Khan's clan, in the 41st year from the Emperor's accession."

(4) Darushafa mosque, now in ruins, is 5 arches in length and 2 in depth-It is said to have been built by Ahmad Shah Wali Bahmani about A.D. 1340.

(5) Cemetery of the Nawâbs. This block of buildings in the Sharmashpura suburb consists of several mausoleums containing the remains of the later Nawâbs and their families, together with a mosque. Among these are some very handsome buildings. Encircling the whole is a strong wall, with two gateways, one of which is covered with carvings of animals (in sand-stone) in rather high relief. The portion of the wall between these two gates is adorned with carved windows. The cemetery was commenced in 1179 A.H. (circ. A.D. 1765-66), by Nawâb Ismâil Khân, at the estimated expense of half a lakh. There are several tombs (gumbaz), of which the most important is that in which the Nawâb's bones rest. The Nawâb died in fight at Katsure, a little village in the south of the Morsi Tâlukâ.

On his tomb is this inscription, cut in marble:-

which may be thus rendered :-

"There is no God but he; the living, the self-subsisting."

ILICHPUR. 235

"The jewel on the sword of courage and valour, adorning the battle-field, a lion-like man, yea a very lion, the Rustam of his age, was Muḥammad Ismāil Khān Bahādur, Panni, son of Muḥammad Sultān Khān Bahādur, Panni, Afghān Sulimān Zāi Mahdavi, servant of Nizām-ul-Mulk Asaf Jah. On the tenth day of Rabi-ul-Awwal in the year 1189, having attained the dignity of martyrdom, he turned his face to high heaven. Verse:—May his heaven be full of light, by the help of chapters Nûn and Sad."

On the gateway above named is this inscription :-

تعمیر دروازه فصیل مقبره محمد اسمعبل خان بهادر پنی افغان سلیمان زی مهدوی بر طبق فرمان تضا جویان و نواب نامدار خان بهادر بن نواب محمد صلابت خان بهادر بن محمد اسمعیل خان بهادر شهید بن محمد سلطان خان بهادر مرحوم ممدوح تاریخ بفتم شهرشوال المکرم سند یکهزارو در صد و پنجاه و شش بجوی روز چهار شبند

This may be thus translated :-

"The erection of the rampart gate of the cemetery of Muhammad Ismâil Khân Bahâdur, Panni, Afghân Sulimân Zái Mahdavi, according to the mandate issued by Nawâb Muhammad Nâmdâr, K. B., son of Nawâb Muhammad Salâbat, K. B., son of Muhammad Ismâil, K. B., who fell in battle, son of Muhammad Sultân, K. B., dead and glorified, date 7th of Shawal-ul-Mukarram, Wednesday, 1256."

Close at hand is the Imam Barah, a handsome 'barah-dari' built of teakwood, with carved teak pillars, by Nawab Fateh Jung Khan for use during the Muharram.

It bears this inscription:—" Muḥammad Fateh Jung Khân Bahâdur built a garden to the Imâms; a messenger chanted for the dates of its rising. The house of greatness, the place of pilgrimage."

The Persian runs thus :-

قطعه بناکرد قصري بد نذر امام بهادر محمد فتح جنگ خان ندا داد باتف ز سالش نگاه حریم بزرگی زیارت مکان

(6) The Hauz Katora is a handsome tower of Pathan architecture, standing in the centre of a circular tank, whose diameter is about 100 yards and depth about 15 feet. In form the tower is a regular octagon, three storeys in height. The basement storey is solid. Each of the other storeys is of the same general plan, containing a central regular octagon, and an encircling verandah. The side of the inner octagon is 8 feet 3 inches in length; the outer side of the verandah is 16 feet 6 inches. To the inner octagon there are eight regular arches, and to the outer are eight windows, with two seats apiece. "In the ceiling is a carved tracery of buds and flowers, as of a branchless tree: and on each window and arch is a different pattern of carved work." Now, however, the grating-work over the doors has been broken away, and the sides of the upper storey are also damaged.

The whole building stands 81 feet 3 inches in height. Formerly the height above the surface of the water must have been twice what it now is, for one of the Nawabs is said to have taken away the top two storeys to beautify his own palace with. Till recently a boat was necessary to reach the hauj, hence no flight of steps was built to it: but now that the water is gone, it has to be reached by a ladder.

The date is not known. But the Philistines have been in the place, writing their names in Persian, Marâțhî, and English, and sometimes adding verses thereto. The oldest Persian writing that I could find is dated 1199 A. H. (circ. 1787 A. D.). The oldest Marâțhî scrawls are 211 and 212 years old respectively (1664 A. D.). The visitor in 1787 was Nawâb Zufur-ud-Daula Bahâdur, Ahli-Shâm Jung, son of Nawâb Ihrâhim Khân, Zufur-ud-Daula Zabit Jung Bahâdur. It is stated that 280 years ago, in the days of Jelâl-ud-dîn Akbar Shâh, the minars of the Hauz Katora were in ruins; and it is conjectured that the Hauz Katora itself was built in the reign of Ahmad Shâh Wali-o Bâhmani, who lived in the old Ilichpur fort 450 years ago (829 A. H.)

- (7) The palace of the Nawabs, built by Salabat Khan and Ismail Khan, A.D. 1790, and afterwards added to by Namdar Khan, 1873. It is of great extent, consisting of numerous courts and sets of apartments, and containing some good carving and stone-work. It has been neglected for the last thirty years and is rapidly falling to ruin.
- (8) Tombs of Fazlu Miyan's family inside the city, built about a hundred years ago. There is a handsome tomb to Muhammad Pirzada, a famous guru. Inscription:—In Persian on the tomb of İsmail Khan.
- (9) Be-beha Bâgh, a large garden made by Salâbat Khán, has a handsome pavilion in the centre.
- (10) Nâmdâr Bâgh, made by Nâmdâr Khân in 1828, has a summer-house in the centre.
- (11) Mamdal Shah, a very fine well said to be 500 years old, in the time of Akbar. It is built of fine cut stone, and three draw buckets can work at the same time (a).
- 2. Mukhtigiri: a beautiful and interesting group of Jaina temples beside a waterfall (a).

2.-MELGHAT TALUKA.

- 3. Manjira: nearly opposite the village on the western face of a hill to the west of the valley are two small rock-cut temples. One is completely closed up with rubbish, but a short flight of steps leads down from the platform in front to the entrance of the other by a low doorway. This cave is about 16 feet square inside and 7 or 8 feet high. There are two rows of plain square pillars, rather roughly hewn, extending inwards; the inner ones are left half finished. The platform is some 50 feet below the upper surface of the hill, from which it is reached by rather a difficult scramble, over some large boulders. On the plateau not far from these caves is a spring of good water. A basin about 5 feet square and 6 feet deep has been cut in the rock to receive the water. The basin is undercut with rough hewn pillars supporting the roof. Other two excavations occur in line with it but are now choked up (a).
- 4. Narnåla, about 9 miles N. of Akot. Three contiguous forts of Teliagarh, Jåfaråbad and Narnåla, with ramparts from 25 to 40 feet in height with 67 flanking towers and 6 large and 21 small gates. The interior of the main citadel is covered with buildings more or less in decay: there are extensive ruins of the old palace, a mosque called after Aurangzeb, a Bâradari, Sila-khâna, Nagar-khâna, &c. There are also four very curious stone cisterns, covered by a masonry platform with small apertures, while on this platform are the remains of arches. The most striking and beautiful feature is perhaps the Shâhnûr gate on the south. The design is elegant and is executed in white sand-stone. The panels are filled with verses from the Korân. On each side are projecting balconies. The open stone lattice work, the rich cornice and tracery, and the excellent proportions combine to give effect to the whole, which however is injured by the erection of an outer gate in more recent times.

ILICHPUE. 237

On the west of the hill looking southwards lies a large gun with a Persian inscription telling that it was first set up and used in 1670 when Aurangzeb had the fort (a).

- 5. Gawilgarh, 14 miles W. N. W. from Ilichpur. The fort stands 2400 feet above the Berår valley and is reached by a road up the western face. It consists of an "inner fort which fronts the south where the rock is most steep and an outer fort which covers the inner to the north and north-west. This outer fort has a third wall, which covers the approach to it from the north by the village of Labåda." The walls are fortified by ramparts and towers. There are three gates, one to the inner fort on the south, one on the north-west to the outer fort and one to the north through the third wall. A large and handsome mosque occupies one of the highest points. There are only another mosque and the Shora-khâna left standing: the fort was dismantled in 1858. In a bastion on the south face is a Persian inscription, which gives the date in the word Bûrj-i-Behrâm. Over the main gate of the inner fort are figures of a simha holding five elephants in its mouth and claws, and of a half human figure with two heads in the act of eating two tigers (a.)
- 6. Amner, or Jilpi Amner, at the junction of the Garga and Tapi, about 35 miles N. E. from Akot. A small fort with a mosque in the west angle. The only approach to it is from the north-west.
- 7. Bairâm Ghât, 14 miles E. of Ilichpur, a place of peculiar sanctity, where a great fair is held, where animals are sacrificed in front of a rock.
- 8. Dewalwara on the Purnâ, 16 miles S. from Ilichpur. Temple of Narasimha, of great age, with steps to the river and a ghât. Near it is Karaśuddhi Tirtha—where Narasimha is said to have cleansed his hands after destroying Hiranyakaśipu. There is also a temple of Vithal Rukhmâyi, and a mosque.

3.—DARYAPUR TALUKA.

- 9. Daryapur, 25 miles S. of Ilichpur. A private house belonging to the deshmukh, built some sixty years ago by Bahâdur Râo: this is one of the best houses in the district and contains some handsome carving. There are several temples and mosques outside the town; information wanted respecting them.
- 10. Uprây, 18 miles S. of Ilichpur and 12 N. E. of Daryapur: A celebrated tomb called Shâh Dâwal in memory of a Musalman named Shâh, and a Mhâr named Dâwal who came from Hindustan some two hundred years ago, and are buried here. Hindus and Musalmans alike worship here.

11. Anjangânw Bâri, 16 miles W. S. W. of Ilichpur, on the Shâhnar river. Temples of Vithobâ and Śiva; a haveli of brick and a mosque.

IV .- AKOLA DISTRICT.

1.—AKOLÂ TÂLUKA.

- 1. Patur, 18 miles S. of Akôlâ. In the side of a low hill east of the town is a plain rock-cut temple. It is of Brahmanical origin. Here are also the shrines of a Musalman Pîr and of a Hindu Sâdhu.
- 2. Piñjar, 24 miles S. E. of Akôlâ and about 18 mîles W. of Kârinja. A fine Hemâdpanti temple bearing a Sanskrit Inscription (a).
- 3. Bârsi Tâkli, 11 miles S. S. E. from Akôla and 12 miles W. from Piñjar-Another fine Hemâdpanti temple said to be one of the finest of the kind in Berâr, with an inscription over the entrance (a).
 - 4. Yela. A small but well carved Hemâdpanti temple (a).

2.—AKOT TALUKA.

- 5. Kutåsa. A well preserved Hemådpanti temple, covered by a thick plastering of mud (a).
- 6. Dhârur, N. of Akot: the tomb or dargah of Pîr Namâd Aulia Ambia on the banks of a stream below the Narnâla hill, with a lofty dome.
 - 7. Gâwarda. Tomb of Shâh Dâwal, built about 160 years ago.
 - 8. Malegânw, 20 miles W. S. W. from Akot: a noted dargah.
- 9. Akot, 30 miles N. of Akôla: some private houses, masjids, temples, &c., worthy of notice, where some good carving is to be seen.

3.—Bâlâpur Tâluka.

- 10. Shâhpur, near Bâlâpur; the ruins of the palace built by Prince Murad Shâh, son of Akbar, who died here in 1599 a.p.
- 11. Bâlâpur, 6 miles S. of Pâras and 16 miles W. of Akôlâ. Just outside the town on the high bank above the river Mun, the Chhatri of black stone of Râjâ Savai Jayasingha who commanded under Aurangzeb: it is 25 feet square and 38 feet high. Also a temple of Bâlâdêvî. The fort is the largest and one of the strongest in Berâr, and has an Inscription on the gate recording its erection by Ismâil Khân in 1757. The Jamâ' Masjid is 90 feet long and was built according to an Inscription in 1622 A.D.
 - 12. Jâmbâd: a noteworthy dargah.
 - 13. Dhânâpur : another noted dargah.

V .- BULDANA DISTRICT.

 Dêwalgânw Râja, formerly Dêwalwâdî, 16 miles N. E. from Jâluâ and 60 miles S. of Buldâna. The dêvasthân of Bâlâji is the most celebrated in Berâr, the kângi or offerings amounting to above a lakh of rupees. BULDANA. 239

Dêwalghât on the Panigangâ, 7 miles W. S. W. from Buldâna. Numerous Hemâdpanti temples in ruins, having been destroyed by Nâsiru'd-dîn, one of Aurangzeb's chiefs, about A.D. 1700.

3. Fatehkhelda, formerly Shakar-khêlda, 12 miles W. of Mekhar. An old masjid of excellent architecture (a).

Inscription :-

The date in the last words "may the house of God be for ever firm" is A. H. 980 (A.D. 1581).

4. Lônar, 12 miles S. of Mekhar: a place of great antiquity, with a lake about 5½ miles in circumference. Numerous Hindu temples, one of which has evidently been a Hemâdpanti if not a Buddhist structure. Below this temple is a tank with steps and terraces leading down to it. The water flows through the carved head of a cow and is fabled to come underground all the way from the Ganges. People of all castes bathe together in it. Below the Hindu temple is the salt lake, leading down to which there has been a magnificent flight of steps, a large portion of which still remains.

The finest temple is outside the village to the south, within a mud wall. Like those of Ambarnatha and Somanatha, the whole exterior is one mass of sculpture, and the eaves and some of the borders are very beautiful; but though the quantity of sculpture is so great, the subjects are comparatively few,—gods of the Hindu pantheon, dancing girls and musicians, obscenity in its grossest forms, and all the paraphernalia of debauchery. Many of the groups that were entire thirty years ago have been knocked off, to please the modest foreigner. The next Hemadpanti temple is to the north of the village and midway between it and the temple and tank; it consists of a portico with small wings at each end, open in front, but enclosed on the other side and supported by three rows of pillars with pilasters opposite each column in the third rank. It measures 102 feet by 20 feet, and there has been an enclosed building in line with one of the wings.

Halfway along the road to the salt lake is another very pretty temple; and there are four others on the margin of the lake.

All these temples probably belong to about the 12th century A.D. (a).

5. Mekhar, 50 miles N. E. from Jalna and 278 miles W. of Sirpur. The temple is on the low spur of a hill projecting from the lower or west side of the town. It consists of a square court 21 feet 10 inches on each side, descended to by two steps on each face, and is surrounded by a triple colonnade, consisting of 60 pillars in all with 32 pilasters against the outer wall, one opposite to each row of pillars. The entrance is by a small door on the east face. Including the colonnades the length is 73 feet 4 inches and the breadth 72 feet 94 inches.

The columns in their general style belong to about the 12th century. The base and lower third or two-fifths of the shaft is square; on each side there rises from the plinth to the top of the base a triangular facet, and this ornament is repeated on the neck of the pillar. The next member is a deep octagonal band carved with leaves, above which the shaft is circular but broken by a square block carved on the faces with geometrical patterns. Above this block the shaft is carved with scotias and toruses. The capitals are shallow and spread rapidly out to a thin square abacus. The capitals are surmounted by a sur-capital of the quadruple bracket sort so common in the medæval Jaina temples. The style and construction of the roof also is identical with the oldest Gujarat temples. The columns are nearly equidistant, varying from 6 feet 5 inches to 7 feet 1 inch, and are about 8 feet in height. The central slabs of the roofing are usually ornamented with rosettes. No lime is used throughout the building (a).

انما المو صنين --: Inscription :-- On the Monim darwaza

اخوة فاصلحو بين اخويكم وا تقوا الله لعلكم ترحمون

This is only v. 10 of Ch. 49 of the Quran, namely :- "Verily the true believers are brethren; wherefore reconcile your brethren; and fear Allah that ye may obtain mercy." It gives no date as stated in the returns.

6. Malkapur, a railway station in the north of the district. Has an old masjid.

Inscription :- On the town gate called Chandiwes :-

كبل الباب عبل معمد معالى خان سنر ۱۱۴۲ "[The] completion of the gate [is the] work of Muhammad Ma'âly Khân (in the year 1142 (a. D. 1729).

7. Piplikothi, 12 miles from Buldána: a fine example of a Hemádpanti

- 8. Pimpalgânw Râja, 10 miles S. of Nândura and 20 N. E. of Buldána : an underground rock-temple of Renukâ-dêvî, about 30 feet deep.
- 9. Sindkhêr, 17 miles N. E. of Jalna. Hemadpanti temple of Nîlakanthêśvara is a very old structure to the south-west. It contains an inscription partially effaced, being some feet under water in the tank. There are also several palaces, such as the Mahâlbâg, Mahâkâl, and the dêshmukh's palace (a).
- 10. Jaypur Kotlî, 14 miles N. of Buldâna. Two old Hemâdpanti temples; the finest is in the centre of the village and the smaller one outside at a short distance to the south-east. The general plan of the larger temple is in the form of a cross, with the longer arm to the west, and the entrance to the east. The portico which formed the east end, however, has now almost entirely fallen away. The south wing contains two small recesses, the outer one open at the top; the corresponding one in the north wing is only an enclosed recess containing a linga and salunkha. The central area of the temple is 15 feet 11 inches square, of which the floor is slightly raised, forming a sort of square dais, at the corners of which are four columns 8 feet 8 inches in height, of the mixed square and round form in vogue in the 13th century, and supporting an architrave 15 inches deep over which is a frieze of 1 foot in height. This is ornamented with geometrical patterns on both faces and rosettes in the centres of the under sides. From the frieze rises the usual Hemadpanti dome, ornamented with chaste shell-pattern sculptures. It is quite in the Jaina style of architecture of the early part of the 13th century (a).
- 11. Rohankhêda, 7 miles N. of Buldâna. A small but exquisitely carved masjid (a).
 - Jurgodh near Chikli. A Hemâdpanti temple.

I have engressed in these returns portions of a paper which I prepared for the late Major R. Gill in 1871, and which was mostly printed in the Proceedings of the Bengal Asiatic Society for February 1873.

BASIM. 241

13. Amdapur, 20 miles S.E. of Buldana. About half a mile to the south of the village is a small hill bordered on the south and south-east by a deep picturesque ravine. On the summit of this hill stands a fine modern temple dedicated to Bhavani, the shrine being curiously lit from above in such a way as to throw the full light upon the image, while the spectator sees it only through the almost dark mandapa.

Near this temple are some fragments of a colossal statue. These are a pair of feet $6\frac{1}{3}$ feet from toe to heel, and a hand to match, so that the statue may have been from 50 to 60 feet high. This enormous figure has not been a monolith but built up in pieces, as is evident from the heel being separate from the forepart of the foot which includes the ankle.

Near them is another pair of feet somewhat smaller. The villagers say a fine Hemadpanti temple formerly stood on the site of the present shrine, but was destroyed to make room for the new one (a).

- 13. Dhotra, about 30 miles N. by W. of Lonar. About half a mile south-east from the village stands a very fine temple, and near it are the remains of a splendid tank. The mere ruin of a second lies to the west, and a third, much smaller but perfect, to the north-west on the outskirts of the village (a).
- 14. Sâtgâm, 24 miles W. of Dhotrâ. There are five Hemâdpanti temples here. The principal one is just outside the west wall of the village and almost adjoining it. On the north side are the remains of a small but beautiful temple, which appears to have been originally in the same enclosure. The other three are within the village walls. The largest of them is merely an oblong apartment containing the linga and chavaranga and an image of Ganêsa. There has been a verandah in front supported by four columns, and the entrance has been elaborately sculptured. In the middle of this verandah is a large figure of Nandi. The next in size has four columns supporting the architrave; but the backs of the posterior pair being only rough-hewn, this may have been only the portico of another temple. The fifth is only a cell with Hemâdpanti pilasters on each side the entrance (a).

VI.-BASIM DISTRICT.

- Bâsim, 50 miles S. by E. from Akôlâ. Temple of Bâlâji and its tank, about a hundred years old.
- 2. Sirpur, 12 miles E. N. E. from Båsim. (1) The shrine of Antariksha Pårśvanåtha is a very sacred resort of the Jaina Bhâtiyas. It is traditionally assigned to Råjå II, and has an underground shrine and curiously carved ceiling. (2) A small but ancient Jaina temple, with pendents richly carved. (3) A short distance to the west of the village is a Hemådpanti temple. It is entered by porticos on the north, south and east sides. The doors are 5 feet 4 inches high and 2 feet 9 inches wide and the porticos are 10 feet wide by 9½ feet deep. These have had two pillars in front and a pilaster on each side the door. In the north portico a third pillar has been subsequently introduced to support the front cross beam which had given way. In the middle of the mandapa are four pillars 9½ feet high and 2 feet 3 inches square at the base, enclosing a square of 10 feet 9 inches, in the centre of which is a low circular dais 7 feet 11 inches in diameter. There are also pilasters against the walls corresponding with the pillars (a).

- 3. Mangrul Pir, 20 miles N. E. from Båsim. Dargahs of Badru'd-dîn and Shanam Sāheb, said to be about 400 years old. The principal dargah is well endowed and enclosed by a wall with bastions.
- 4. Pusad, 33 miles S. E. from Bâsim. Two old Hemâdpanti temples worthy of examination, and the ruins of some others and a fine tank (a).
- 5. Anjeuni:—Several temples, and two miles south-east is a temple on the edge of a ravine (a).
- 6. Sakêgâm:—A small temple partly in ruins with some beautiful ornamentation (a).
- 7. Haunda-Nâganâtha:—south of Bâsim: An ancient temple covered with sculptured figures (Trans. Lit. Soc. Bom., vol. III, p. 356) (a).

APPENDIX.

INSCRIPTIONS FROM GUJARAT.

The following Inscriptions collected in Gujarat when these Lists were being printed, are here printed for future preservation. They have been transcribed from the facsimiles and translated by E. Rehatsek, Esq., M.C.E.

Inscription over the central mihrdb in Muhāfiz Khān's mosque (ante, p. 146, No. 12):—

Translation.

"Allah, who be blessed and exalted, has said and in the Hadith [the prophet has said]:— Who builds a mosque for Allah, Allah will build a castle for him in paradise." This edifice [was built] in the reign of the Sultan of Sultans, Shamsu'l-mulûk wa'l-haq Naşiru'd-dunya wa'd-din Abu'l-Fath Mahmûd, son of Muhammad Shah, son of Ahmad Shah, son of Muhammad Shah, son of Muyaffir the Sultan, for Jamalu'd-din the son of Shaikh Mu'inu'd-din al-Quraishi, who received from the same Sultan the title of Muhafiz Khan; on the fourteenth of the month Rajab in the year eight hundred ninety-seven [13th May 1492]."

2. On the entrance to the court of Muhâfiz Khân's mosque is the following:

مجد چو دروازه را کشت باني

مجد چو دروازه را کشت باني

مندایا کناهش همه مغو کردان نکه دارش از انت اسانی

Translation.

"As the wonderfully good and renowned Qutb Khan has become the architect of the mosque-gate, O God! pardon all his sins and preserve him from the calemity of heaven."

3. And on the other side of the entrance :-

تاریخ تانکه که خیر جاری چون بسجه از محافظ خان نیک هد مجایب برکه شکر سرشت مال تاریخش چو پرسیدم زفیب گفت هانف چهنه آب بههت

"Chronogram of the auspiciously inaugurated Tankah.
When in the mosque of the good Muhafiz Khan,
The wonderful reservoir of saccharine nature was completed,
I asked for the chronogram of the year from the invisible world.
A celestial herald replied:— The fountain of paradise-water 1059 [begun 15th January 1649]."

As some slight mistakes were made in Prof. Blochmann's decipherment of the inscriptions in Rant Shehpari's (p. 146, No. 6,) and Dastur Khan's (p. 147, No. 18,) mosques, when copied in 1874, the readings of these two inscriptions are here given afresh:—

4. From Dastûr Khân's masjid1:-

"It is the first of the month Rajab in [nine] hundred and fifteen [26th October 15097."

7. On Qutbu'd-dîn Shâh's Mosque¹ (ante p. 147, No. 23), over the central mihrâb, is the following Inscription, which however has been brought from elsewhere and inserted within the last few years:—

قال الله تبارك وتعالى ان المساجد لله فلا تد عوا مع الله احدا وقال النبي صلى الله عليه وسلم من بني مسجدا لله بني الله له بيتا في الجنة بني عمارة هذا المسجد في عهد السلطان السلاطين غيات الدنيا والدين المعامد محمد شاة ابن احمد شاة ابن محمد شاة بن المظفر السلطان العبد المفتقر الي الله المستعان اعني نظام بن هلال السلطاني المناطب بمختص الملك ميمنة قرين ابتغاء لمرضات الله وطلباء لجزيل ثوابه وكان ذلك بي التاريخ من هجرة النبوة سادس من شهر ومضان المبارك سنه ثلا ثه وخمسين وثما نما يه

Translation.

"Allah, who be blessed and exalted, has said:—'Verily the mosques belong to Allah, therefore do ye not invoke any one with Allah.' And the prophet, upon whom be the benediction of Allah and peace, has said:—'Who builds a house for Allah, Allah will build a house for him in paradise.' The edifice of this mosque was constructed in the reign of the Sultan of Sultans Ghiyathu'd-dunya wa'd-din al-Muḥamad, Muḥammad Shah, son of Ahmad Shah, son of Muḥammad Shah, son of Muṇammad Shah, son of Muṇaffar the Sultan, by the slave who has need of the aid of Allah. I mean by Nizam the son of Hallalu's-Sultanî who bears the title of Mukhtişu'l-Mulk Maimanat-qarîn, desirous for the approbation of Allah and hoping for his abundant reward. This was [indited] in the era from the exile of prophetship, on the sixth of the blessed month Ramadan in the year eight hundred and fifty-three [24th October 1449]."

8. On Nawab Shuja'at Khan's tomb (p. 148, No. 27,) is an Inscription in which no name of the person buried is given; it is as follows:—

Translation.

"In the name of Allah, the merciful, the clement! No God but Allah, Muhammad the messenger of Allah. Say, O my servants, who have transgressed against your own souls, despair not of the mercy of Allah; for Allah pardons all sins, because he is forgiving and merciful.\(^1\) Date of his decease, Thursday the fourteenth of the month Safar, in the year one thousand one hundred and thirteen of the prophetic exile [14th July 1701].\(^1\)

9. The following Inscription occurs over the central mihráb of Bîbîjî's mosque at Râjapur (ante p. 148, No. 31):—

Translation.

"Allah, who be exalted, said, 'Verily the mosques belong to Allah, therefore do ye not invoke anyone with Allah.' And he to whom be salutation [i.e. Muḥammad] said:—'Who builds a house for Allah, be he exalted, Allah will build a house for him in paradise.' This noble Jami' mosque [surnamed] 'Mistress of the world,' [Makhdāmat Jehān,] was built by the great Sultan Qutbu'ddunyā wa'd-dîn Abu'l-Muzaffar Aḥmad Shāh, son of Muḥammad Shāh, son of Aḥmad Shāh, son of Muḥammad Shāh, son of Muṭaffar the Sultan; and the Hijra date of the building of this mosque is Rabî' II. in the year eight hundred fifty-eight [April 1454]."

10. On the east of the mosque is a Randah, with some good open lattice work, and containing a marble qabr or tomb on which are the following Inscriptions round the base: (1) on the east side,—

قل اللهم مالک آلماک توتي الملک من ثشاً لا و تنزع الماک من تشاً لا و تعا من تشاً لا و تذل من تشاً لا بيدک الخير انک علي کل شي قدير [و] فاة ذو القعد [د] سند احدي ستين و ثما نما يه

"Say, O Allah, possessor of the kingdom; thou givest the kingdom unto whom thou wilt, and thou takest away the kingdom from whom thou wilt; thou exaltest whom thou wilt, and thou humblest whom thou wilt. In thy hand is good, for thou art almighty. Decease [in the month of] Dhu'l-Qa'dah in the year eight hundred and sixty-one. [October-November 1457.]"

(2) On the west side,-

Translation.

"Allah hath borne witness that there is no God but he; and the angels and those who are endowed with knowledge [profess the same] dealing righteously. There is no God but he, the mighty, the wise. Verily the religion in the sight of Allah is Islam."

(3) On the north end,-

الله لا اله الا هو الحي القبوم لا تاخذة سنه و لا نوم له ما في السموات و ما في الارض من ذا الذي يشفع عنده الا بااذنه يعلم ما بين ايديهم و ما خلفهم و لا يحيطون بشي من علمه الا بها شاًء وسع كرسيه السموات والارض و لا يوه، حفظهما و هو العلمي العظيم

Translation.

"Allah! there is no God but he; the living, the self-subsisting; neither slumber nor sleep seizeth him; to him belongeth whatever is in heaven and on earth. Who is he that can intercede with him except by his permission? He knoweth their present and their past, and they encompass nothing of his knowledge except so far as he pleaseth. His throne is extended over heaven and earth, and the preservation of both is no burden unto him. He is the high, the mighty."

11. On the Queen Rajabai's tomb at Sarkhej [ante p. 149, No. 2 (5),] are the following Inscriptions: (1) at the top,—

Translation.

"In the name of Allah, the merciful, the clement! Assistance from Allah and a speedy victory; and do thou bear glad tidings to the true believers. Allah is the best guardian; and he is the most merciful of those that show mercy. O guardian! No God but Allah, Muhammad the messenger of Allah!"

³ This is the whole of the celebrated Throne verse called Ayyat-u'l-Kurn of the Qurán, ch., II,
v. 256, which is often also engraved on amulets and talismans worn on the person.

⁴ Qurân, ch. LXI, v. 13.

- 12. Inscription in the mosque in the Gaikowâd's Havêli. After the Bismillah we have the usual LXXII, 18, from the Qurân, and the saying of the prophet about the house in paradise; then:—

بني المسجد في عصر سلطان الاعظم ناصر الدنيا والدين ابو الفتح معمود شاه بن احمد شاه بن معمد شاه بن مظفر السلطان خلد الله ملكه قد مضي السادس عشر في شهر ذو الحجه سند ١٩٢

Translation.

"This mosque was built in the reign of the very great Sultan Nasiru'd-dunya wa'd-din Abu'l Fath Shah, son of Muhammad Shah, son of Muzaffar the Sultan, may Allah perpetuate his kingdom. Verily the sixteenth Dhu'l-Hijjah has elapsed. Year 892 [4th December 1487]."

13. Inscription in Bibî Achût Kuki's mosque (p. 145, No. 3). Exactly the same as the above, but after the words "may Allah perpetuate," the conclusion "his kingdom" being omitted, we have:—

العبد الراجي لرحمة الله المالك الملك تهليعه سلطاني المخاطب من حضرت الا علي والعلجا المعلي بدستور الملك يديم الله معاليه ابتغاء لمرضات الله وطلبا الجزيل ثوابه وكان ذلك في التاريخ من جمادي المخامس -سنه سته وسبعين وثمانما يه Translation.

"By the worshipper hoping for the mercy of Allah, the Malik Malik Tahlijah Sultan, surnamed Dastaru'l-mulk by the exalted refuge [i.e., the king] may Allah perpetuate his exaltation, desirous to obtain his abundant reward. And this was on the date of the fifth Jumada.....in the year eight hundred seventy-six [19th October 1472]."

14. Inscription on Darwish 'Ali's mosque (p. 159, No. 39):- No Bismillah, but only LXXII. 18; then:-

عن المسجد المبارك من شاه الاعظم بن معمود شاه بن محمد شاه بن احمد شاه بن محمد شاه بن احمد شاه بن محمد شاه بن معمد شاه بن مظفر السلطان خلد الله ملكه و دولته در ماه سفر و در سنه عشر وتسعمايه محمد شاه بن مظفر السلطان خلد الله ملكه و دولته در ماه سفر و در سنه عشر وتسعمايه محمد شاه بن مظفر السلطان خلد الله ملكه و دولته در ماه سفر و در سنه عشر وتسعمايه محمد شاه بن مطفر السلطان خلد الله ملكه و دولته در ماه سفر و در سنه عشر وتسعمايه محمد شاه بن مطفر السلطان خلد الله ملكه و دولته در ماه سفر و در سنه عشر وتسعمايه من شاه بن مطفر السلطان خلد الله ملكه و دولته در ماه سفر و در سنه عشر وتسعمايه مدر الله ملكه و دولته در ماه سفر و در سنه عشر وتسعمايه مدر الله ملكه و دولته در ماه سفر و در سنه عشر وتسعمايه الله ملكه و دولته در ماه سفر و در سنه عشر وتسعمايه الله ملكه و دولته در ماه سفر و در سنه عشر وتسعمايه الله ملكه و دولته در ماه سفر و دولته در ماه دولته

and prosperity...in the month Safar and in the year nine hundred and ten [between 14th July and 12th August 1504]."

15. Inscription in the court of Aḥmad Shāh's tomb (p. 147, No. 13):— The following five Persian distiches, flanked by two vertical lines which contain the whole of the throne verse (II. 256):—

درالف وشعب وشش بنهان کوتوالخان امد برون و رفت خراعان سوی جنابی هفتم ز ماه شعبان بود است کان عزیز در زیر خاک کرد رخ سپر مه نها ن جز دانه نکوی اندر زمین نکشت بخ دانه نکوی اندر زمین نکشت این حاتم ز ما نه بتو فیق مستعان فیض عمیم او بهمه خلق چون رسید گویند ذکر خیرش تا شرانس و جان ای خالق کریم برین تربت شریف باران لطف و رحمت از فضل بران

Translation.

"In one thousand sixty-six secretly Kûtwâl Khân
Came out, and departed walking to the mansion of paradise.
It was the seventh of the month Sha'bân' when that beloved one Concealed under ground his moon-like countenance;
He sowed but good grain on the earth.
That Hâtim of the period, by the grace of the helpful [God]
As his universal bounty extended to all mankind;
Even the wicked among men and genii praise him!
O gracious creator, upon this noble tomb,
Pour the showers of mercy and reward."

16. Inscription on the tomb of Mr. Ballantyne's child, in the court of Ahmad Shah's tomb.

Superscription :- The Kalimah, then the following two Persian distiches,-

Translation.

"On the sixth of the fasting month [Ramadan]
To the mansion of eternity Jojes [Joseph?] departed.
The Raudah became so full with the light of his spirit
That the full moon bore him envy."

Wednesday, 31st May 1656 A.D.

17. On a tomb in the court of Musa Suhagji's mosque, between the city and camp:—

This is a double inscription; the first part in English capital letters, thus,—
"To the memory of Subedar Peer Khan. Order of merit XIV. Regiment, N.I., who died on the 19th July 1860, aged 55 years. This is erected as a token of respect by the officers of his regiment."

The second part is in Urdu but begins with the Arabic Kalimah, and corresponds to the English with the exception of the words "the Saheb-loq of the regiment have given him much abru," which is not a happy rendering of "token of respect by the officers"; also the Hijrah date 1276 and 30th Dhu'l-Hijjah is added. The whole text is as follows:—

18. Inscription in the Shahpur mosque (p. 147, No. 20):-

This consists of the following two Persian distiches, with the words "written by Dust Muhammad Sakhar" on the intersection of the bars which separate the lines in the shape of a cross surrounded by a frame:—

Translution.

"The axis of the period, Shaikh Hasan built a mosque, That there religious people may pray for the Shaikh. When the Shaikh built this exalted edifice The date of it became rfdå bnåy shaikh."

- 19. Another Inscription in the same mosque, in one long line, is broken in a few places, but contains Qurân IX. 18 complete, and nothing else.
- 20. Inscription in the Herâti mosque, near the Dehli gate (p. 160, No. 73). This begins with Qurân LXXII. 18, followed by the usual saying of the prophet about the house in paradise; then we have:—

¹ The words in italics give 1254, which began on the 27th March 1838.

"The construction of this blessed Jami' mosque [took place] in the reign of the reigning Sultan Nasiru'd-dunya wa'd-dîn Abu'l-Fath Mahmûd Shah, son of Muhammad Shah, &c.,... May Allah perpetuate his kingdom. By the worshipper hoping for the mercy of Allah, the Malik Malik Ghanî [an illegible word] Sultanî who received from his most exalted majesty the title of Maliku'l-barr and Qawwamu'l-mulk, may his exaltation be permanent, desirous of the approbation of Allah, and craving for his abundant reward; on the sixth Dhu'l-Qa'dah in the year eight hundred and eighty [4th March 1476]."

21. Inscription in 'Inâyat Shâh's mosque,—a ruined brick masjid near the Shâhpur gate (p. 160, No. 74).

It begins with Quran LXXII. 18, like the above, but the usual saying of the prophet is omitted; then we have:—

Translation

"The confider in the gracious Allah, Nåşiru'd-dunya wa'd-dîn Abu'l-Fath Maḥmûd Shâh, son of Latîf Shâh, son of Muṇaffar Shâh, son of Muḥammad Shâh, son of Ahmad Shâh, son of Muḥammad Shâh, son of Muṇaffar Shâh the Sulţân. For the sake of worship Shams Khân built the mosque for God. The year nine hundred and six was found to be the date of the building [Began 28th July 1500]. Written by 'Abdu'l-Haiy, the son of 'Alî."

22. An Inscription over the central mihrâb of mosque behind Shâh Aliji's Raudah (p. 160, No. 63) contains only Qurân LXXII. 18.

23. Over the left mihrab, Shah Aliji's mosque, Rohilwada :-

This is a rather ugly specimen of writing, but appears to contain the pedigree of the prophet, and terminates with a date. As however in the trouble of decipherment le jeu ne vaudrait pas la chandelle, only the beginning is here given:—

Translation.

"Muhammad the messenger of Allah, upon whom be the benediction of Allah and peace, [was the] son of 'Abdu'llah [who was the] son of 'Abdu'l-Mutallah [who was the] son of Håshim [who was the] son of 'Abd Munaf [who was the] son of Qusaiy [who was the] son of..."

The first half of the last line is :-

سند احدي و ستين و تسعما يه

"Year nine hundred and sixty." [Began 18th December 1552.]

252 APPENDIX.

24. Over the right mihrab, in Shah Aliji's mosque, Rohilwada.

This contains nothing but the pedigree of the penultimate king Ahmad, thus:—

المعتصم بالله الرحمن غياث الدنيا و الدين ابو المحامد احمد شاة ابن عم محمود شاة بن لطيف شاة ابن محمد شاة بن محمود شاة بن محمد شاة بن محمد بن مظفر السلطان خلد ملكه

Translation.

"The securely trustful in Allah the merciful, defender of the world and of the religion, possessor of laudable qualities, Ahmad Shâh, cousin of Mahmûd Shâh [III], son of Latîf Shâh, the brother of Bahâdur Shâh, son of Muḥammad Shâh [II], son of Maḥmûd [surnamed Bigarah] Shâh, son of Muḥammad Shâh [II], son of Ahmad Shâh [I], son of Muḥammad Shâh [I] the Sultân, may his kingdom be perpetuated."

Then come two distiches in mixed language which I am not bold enough either to transcribe or to translate, but give only the chronogram embodied in the last distich :-

مسجد جامع کي بيچ بتھايا نبي نور

As Ahmad, the penultimate king of Gujarât, who began to reign A.H. 961 [began 7th December 1553] was only eight years on the throne, and the kingdom was finally annexed to the dominions of the Mughal emperor Akbar in 969 [began 11th September 1561], the inscription appears to have been made even after the reign of the last king of Gujarât, Muzaffar Shâh III.

25. In the small mosque of Musa Suhag on the right side of the road to the camp (see above No. 17):—

بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم انها يعمر مساجدالله من امن بالله واليوم الاخر واقام الصّلوة واتي الزكوة ولم يخش الاالله فعسي اوليك ان يكونوا من المهتدين قال رسول الله صلي الله عليه واله وسلم من بني لله مسجدا بني الله تعالي له بيا في الجنة كتبه جلال في سنه ١١٠٢

Translation.

The Bismillah; then IX., 18, of Qurân complete; then the usual saying of the prophet that Allah will build a house in paradise for him who builds a mosque for Allah. Lastly:—"Written by Jalâl, in the year 1102." [Began 5th October 1690.]

Who was slain by the Portuguese in the island of Din on the 14th February 1537, as described by me in my article in the Calcutta Review (January 1882) "How the Portuguese obtained a footing in the island of Din."—E. R.

Then the following two Persian distiches :-

Translation.

"When by divine grace Ja'far
Built a mosque with elegant arrangements
Ahmad said for the date of it:—
He adorned the place of prayer."

The last hemistich gives the number 1101, although beneath the inscription we read:—"Year 1100."

26. Arabic Inscription on Dådå Harir's Wåv or step well (p. 149, No. 44). It will be seen from the inscription that this Wåv was constructed during the reign of the same king Maḥmūd, surnamed Bīgarah, under whose sway the Herâti mosque, that in the Gâikowâd's Haveli, Bîbî Achut Kuki's, Dastûr Khân's, and others were built. The illegible portion of this inscription probably contained the name of this king's Vazîr, Mâlik Malik Ghânî, which likewise occurs with variations in other inscriptions. What the figures 26 below may mean is unknown.

"Salutation to the Maker of creation! Salutation to thee, thou lord of the waters, Varuna! who art the cause of the forms of all living beings, who dost witness all deeds. (3) I adore Viśvakarman, the giver of all blessings, through whose compassion all men are able to perform their actions.

Hail! in the holy Gürjjara, in the holy city of Ahmadâbâd, in the victorious kingdom of the Pâdshâh Srî Srî Mahamûd,—there the Bâî, named Harîra, the chief superintendent at the gate of the king's palace,—in the middle of Harîrapura, situated to the north-east of Srînagara,—through (pity for) the thirst of the many coming from the four quarters, for the enjoyment of the eighty-four lâkhs of beings—of men, beasts, birds, trees, &c., and in honour of Paramêśvara,—in the current Samvat year 1556, and of Saka 1421, on Monday the 13th of the bright half of Pausha, (the Bâî) caused a well to be made, wherein, seeing the deep volume of ambrosial water, the milky ocean, as it were, took up its abode.

28. Inscription on the north side of the corridor in Jami' mosque (p. 145, No. 8). This consists of the following six Persian distiches:—

The last two lines contain some abbreviated words, and are incomplete; they are left untranslated.

It is [nevertheless] accessible like the Ka'bah of necessity [the throne of God to whom all the necessitous may apply].

Of the year of its construction Fa'id said :-

The purity of Mîrak's reservoir was effected by us."

[This last hemistich gives 1020, which year began 16th March 1611.]

29. On a doorway near Shâh Aliji's in Rohilwâd, Aḥmadâbâd (p. 160, No. 63):—

Above, some very large characters which may be read "Allah bin Muḥammad." Below are a number of words indistinctly jumbled together in one mass.

30. Inscription in the gateway of the Bhadr :-

This inscription consists of six distiches, about 5 feet long and 1½ broad. Each hemistich stands in a separate compartment and was carved in relievo in large beautifully flowing Persian characters, but appears to have been purposely defaced by some Vandal. Whether accidentally or not, the most legible words are only two, which seem to read "house of tyranny." Fortunately the date 1032 being on the margin, outside, was also left untouched; that year began on the 5th November 1622 when the kingdom of Gujarât had lost its independence, and had been already 52 years annexed to the Mughal empire.

31. Inscription from the entrance to the jail at Ahmadâbâd :-

Bravo! For the high edifice which in altitude Has excelled Saturn by the basis of its excellence In beauty and gracefulness it is like paradise. Ridvan | the gate-keeper of paradise] is worthy to be its porter. The top of it has received a complete Qaisariyah By order of Khan 'Adil the jewel of men. When of the invisible herald I asked for the chronogram, The exclamation came :- Place of goodness and beneficence. 1047" [Began 26th May 1637].

32. In the Borah mosque in Nova Mohallah, on a marble slab (p. 160, No. 72).

This inscription belongs to the reign of Ahmad, the founder of Ahmadâbâd and of Ahmadaagar; several mosques of Ahmadâbâd were also built during his reign, and it is not improbable that this was carried off from one of them and placed here.

The inscription begins with a Persian distich, and the whole of it is in that language as follows :-

یک ذره عنایت توای بنده نواز بهتر زهزار ساله خبرست و نماز در ایام دولت و نوبت سلط خلیفه العهد و الزمان الواثق المستعان بالله ناصر الدنیا و الدین ابو الفتح احمد شاه بن محمد بن مظفر شاه السلطان خلد خلافته وبد رافته عمارت کرد این بیت و بقعه شریف لطیف لله بنده امید وار برحمت افرید کا و حقیر ضعیف عالم کیر نوز دهم محرم الحرام سنه سته و عشرین و ثهانمایه

Translation.

"One atom of Thy grace, O cherisher of [thy] servants, Is better than a thousand years of gifts and prayers.

During the reign of the Khalîfah of the period who trusts in and asks help from Allah, Nâşiru'd-dunyâ wa'd-dîn Abu'l-Fath Ahmad, son of Muhammad Shâh, son of Muzaffar Shâh the Sultân, may his Khalîfate be perpetuated and his clemency spread, this house and noble, graceful locality was built for [the worship of] Allah, by the mean, feeble, adorer 'Alamgir who hopes for the mercy of the Creator. The nineteenth of the sacred month Muharram, in the year eight hundred and twenty-six " [24th December 1423].

33. In the Nova Mohallah mosque, right hand. It will be seen that this inscription belongs to the reign of Mahmûd [Bîgarah] whose name occurs on so many others. There is no Bismillah, but only Qurân LXII. 18, with the usual saying of the prophet about the house in paradise. Then:—

عمل السلطان الاعظم ناصر الدنيا و الدين ابو الغتے محمود بن محمد شاة بن احمد شاة بن محمد شاة بن محمد شاة بن محمد شاة بن مظفر شاة السلطان خلد الله خلافته - ثمان عشر بتاريخ المحرم سنه سته و تسعين و ثمانها يه

Translation.

"The work of the great Sultan, defender of the world and of the religion, possessor of victory, Maḥmūd, son of Muḥammad Shāh, son of Aḥmad Shāh, son of Muḥammad Shāh, son of Muṇaffar Shāh the Sultan, may Allah perpetuate his Khalifate[illegible]. Eighteenth of the month Muḥarram in the year eight hundred ninety-six "[2nd December 1490].

34. In Pîr Muḥammad Shâh's mosque:—
This is a distich with the Kalimah prefixed, and the name of a person with the date appended, thus:—

لا اله الا الله معمد رسول الله چراغ و مسجد و معراب و منبو ابویکو و عمر و عثمان و حید ر

Translation.

"No god but Allah, Muḥammad messenger of Allah Lamp and mosque and mihrāb and pulpit Abû Bakr and 'Umar and 'Uthmân and Haidar [i.e. 'Ali] Hadrat Mîr Maḥîu'd-dîn. Year 1135 " [Begun 12th October 1722].

35. In Pir Muhammad Shah's mosque. This consists of two Persian distiches between which the writer's name is inserted as well as the date, but for the sake of distinctness that line is given the last in the following transcript:—

خوشا مسجدي ساخت سيّد معمد كه مردي توانكرد ياد خليلي سؤد كو كعبد كني تو اماني كه تاريخ او كشته بيت خليلي كا تبد عبد الرحمن سند ۱۰۹۲

Translation.

"Saiyid Muhammad built an elegant mosque In which the most glorious [God] may be worshipped It is proper for thee to trust in the Ka'bah The date whereof is:—Bait Khaltli.

The writer of it was 'Abdu'r-rahman, year 1092."

This date is also the numerical value of the two last words, and their meaning is:—House of Khalili, namely of Abraham in his capacity of the Khalil, namely friend of God.

36. Left of central mihrab, Pir Muḥammad's mosque :
لا الد الا الله محدد رسول الله بحق ابوبكر و عمر و عثمان علم آلهي خير جامي با د

Translation.

"No God but Allah, Muḥammad the messenger of Allah. May it be prosperously inaugurated O Allah! by the merits of Abû Bkr, and 'Umar, and 'Uthmân, and 'Alî. In the year 1077 [Began 4th July 1666]."

37. Over a window to the left of the central mihrab, in Pir Muḥammad's mosque:—

نهاند بعصیان کسی در کرو کد دارد چنین سیدی پیش رو نبندارم کد سعدی را بیازاری وبکذاری کداوجز ساید لطفش ندارد درجهان جائے

Translation.

"No one remains plunged in sin who has such a Saiyid for his guide; I do not think you will injure and abandon Sa'dî, for he has in the world no other place, but the shadow of his favour."

38. At Shâh 'Âlam, over the door of the tomb (p. 147, No. 24):-

This is a wretched doggrel composition which contains no date nor information of any kind, and the beginning of it is quite sufficient for insertion in this place. It is as follows:—

بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم المئة چون جنة رسولابان جاي للنسان قد تعالي انعم و فيها علامات الجنان اي دار روي الجنة الفرد وس ببين روضه بزيور شاء عالم ماه جهان

Translation.

After the Bismillah:—"Beneficence is like paradise. Rasúlâbâd is a place verily bestowed by the Most High (God) upon man; it contains characteristics of the garden, that is so say the abode of the face of the jinnat of paradise. Behold the adorned Raudah of Shâh 'Âlam, moon of the universe." [Then follows a description of the beauties of the garden, &c.]

39. Round a tomb in the second Raudah at Shah 'Alam :-

مه شکر که شد خاک سرم در قدم دوست این میش که دارد که موا در قدم اوست

- "A hundred thanks, that my head has become the dust at the feet of the friend [i.e., at the feet of God]
- "Who has this life like that which I have at his feet."
- 40. Round the railing of the great tomb at Shah 'Alam :-

Translation.

"In the name of Allah, the merciful, the clement! Shah of the world, moon of the world, light of the world, Server of the world, Bådshåh of the world, the liberal of the world, the benevolent of the world, the Saiyid of the world, the Bukhari of the world, the Kh'ajah of the world, the Darwish of the world, the Sheikh of the world, the served by the world, the Amir of the world, the Wali of the world, the Avlia of the world, world, the chief of the world, the great one of the world, world, the axis of the axes of the world, the implored of the world, the aid of the world, the director of the world, the paragon of the world, the most noble of the world, the most great of the world, the most generous of the world, the beazle of the world, the most exquisite of the exquisites of the world, the first of the world, the last of the world, the extension of the world, the interior of the world, the present one of the world, the supervisor of the world, the arrived of the world, the perfect one of the world, the honour of the world, world, world, world, world, the intention of the world, the wished for of the world, the prayer carpet of the world, the lover of the world, the beloved of the world [the word world repeated 17 times], the arising of the world [5 times world, the praised one of the world, world, the honour of the world, the assistance of the world, the 'Ullamah of the world, the exalted benefactor of the world, the mercy of the world, the benefit of the world, the beauty of the world, world, world, the glorious one of the world, the Hajj of the world, the gracious one of the world, the grace of the world, the praiser of the world, the praised of the world, the implored one of the world, the marrow of the world, the joy of the world, the ardent desire of the world, the friend of the world, the answerer of the world, the Arabiser of the world, the 'Arif of the world, the asylum of the world, the argument of the world, the evidence of the world."

41. Over the central milirab of the mosque at Batwa (p. 150, No. 3):-This inscription is of the reign of Mahmud [Bigarah] like so many others it has no Bismillah, and begins with Quran LXXI. 18, followed by the usual saying of the prophet about the house in paradise; then we have:-

ا عمر عمارت هذه المحجد الجامع المبارك في عهد ناصر الدنيا و الدين ابو الفتح محمود بن معمد شاء بن احمد شاء بن معمد بن مظفر شاء السلطان بسعى العبد الراجي الي رحمت الله بشير سلطاني خواجه المخاطب من الغضرة الا على بغواص الملك - بني في عشر مغر سنه اربع و سبعين و ثمانها يه

Translation.

"The edifice of this blessed Jami' mosque was renewed during the reign of the protector of the world and of the religion, the possesser of victory, Mahmud son of Muhammad Shah, son of Ahmad Shah, son of Muhammad, son of Muzaffar Shah the Sultan, by the efforts of the worshipper hopeful of the mercy of Allah, Bashîr Sultânî Khâjah who obtained from his most exalted majesty the title of Khasu'l-mulk [one word is not clear]. Built on the tenth Safar, year eight hundred and seventy-four" [10th August 1469.]

Inscription inside Batwa mosque :-

درین چاه سنک بای خاره مدفون است

Translation.

"In this well gravel is buried."

An inscription on a loose stone at Batwa consists of the following three Persian distiches :-

که زو کشته بنامي دين موسسس نمودة صحد با حوض نغيس بي سال بنايش گفت هادي بگو مسجد شده بيت المقدس

يعهد دولت شايسته خاني بتوفيق الهبي ناظر ادراك

Translation.

"During the incumbency of governor Shayistah Khan Who laid the foundation of the edifice of religion, By the divine grace the spectator has Beheld the mosque with the exquisite reservoir.

Concerning the year of its construction the guide said, Say:—The mosque has become the holy house [i.e. Jerusalem] Year 1063."

The numerical value in the last hemistich gives 1064, whereas the figures sculptured are 1063, which latter year began on the 2nd December 1652.

44. On a loose stone No. 2 at Batwa, after the Bismillah we have Qurân LXXII. 18, and then the following Persian line, which makes a distich:—

منور شد جهان زین چهار گوهر ابوبکر و عمر و عثمان حیدر

Translation.

"The universe was illuminated by these four jewels, Abû Bekr and 'Umar and 'Uthman, Haidar."

45. On a pillar of the porch of the great Raudah at Batwa:—
This consists of the following two Persian distiches with the name of their maker under them as follows:—

قطب عالم که بست شاه افلاک از روضه فزود جاه افلاک زین پیش کلاه اسمان بی سرپود شد کنبذ او سر کلاه افلاک خانه زاد این درگاه جلال بن صعبد بن جلال شاچی گفته

Translation.

"Qutb'Alam who is sovereign of the spheres
Has by the Raudah augmented the glory of the spheres.
Ere this the vault of the sky had no crown;
His Gunbad [sepulchral cupola] became the crown of the spheres.
Composed by the born slave of the family Jalal ben Muḥammad ben Jalal Shahi."

The following four inscriptions (46—49) are from 'Abdu'l-Wahhâb's mosque (p. 160, No. 66):—

46. Over the left mihrāb we have again the usual saying of the prophet about the house in paradise; but as it occurs here in a more elaborate form than hitherto, it may not be quite superfluous to insert the whole of the inscription:—

"In the name of Allah the merciful, the clement! The prophet, may Allah bless and keep him! has said:—Who builds from lawfully acquired property, for Allah, be He exalted! a house in which Allah may be worshipped, Allah, be He exalted! has built for him in paradise a house of pearls and rubies."

47. A Persian distich :-

مريد و معتقد حضرت محى الدين بصدق خواجه شهباز انكه د هر شود

"A disciple and confidential of Hadrat Maḥîu'd-dîn In truth Khājah Shahbāz as the world will exist."

48. A Persian distich :-

Translation.

"To the joy augmenting Raudah of Shah Ghiyathu'd-din Malik Sarirat Saiyid Jalil abundance of greetings."

49. A Persian distich :-

Translation.

"With permission and approval Amajid Din departed With what appeared the proper way of his departure."

The preceding three inscriptions, now on loose slabs, evidently constitute one piece, which is however not satisfactory either in meaning or in style, as must be evident also from the English translation.

50. Two Persian distiches :-

Translation.

"When Ruknu'l-haqq [pillar of the truth] from the mansion of the world went, In a moment he into the shade of the Taba [name of a tree in paradise] went. An invisible herald gave notice of the year of the arrival:—

Hence to the highest paradise he went. Year 1200" [4th Nov. 1785—23rd Oct. 1786].

51. On a fallen stone in Bâba Laulvi's Raudah :-

والده معمد جعفر ولد سيد معمد علي بن سيد معمود سادات بارة ساكن كيهتورة ه

Translation.

"In the name of Allah, the merciful, the clement! No God but Allah, Muhammad the messenger of Allah. Muhammad, 'Ali, Fâțimah, Husain, Haşan.

That daughter of Zuhra [planet Venus] has herself pronounced the chronogram; the option which was sufficient was completed well. Year 1117. The mother of Muhammad Ja'far, son of Saiyid Muhammad'Ali, son of Saiyid Mahmad Sadat Barah, inhabitant of Kîhtûrah."

The above-named year 1117 began on the 25th April 1705, and the three last words با خير شد constitute the chronogram.

- 52. Two Persian distiches on a Qâdhi's tomb near the Madrassah give in the last hemistich, a chronogram, but as the piece is rather obliterated, and requires guesses, I shall not attempt to translate it; it appears to be one of value.
 - 53. In Qutb Shâh Divân's masjid near the Kâch Masjid in Ahmadâbâd :-

بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم الدخلوها بسلام امنين بعهد دولت قاهرة و ايام مملكت بمه خسد و قاجدا خديو نامدا رسلطان

Translation.

"In the name of Allah, the merciful, the clement: 'Enter ye therein in peace and security.' [Quran, Sarah XV., v. 46]. During the period of the conquering monarchy and in the days of the permanent reign of the crown-wearing celebrated Khidîv, the Sultân of the Sultâns of the age, the abolisher of unbelief and of rebellion, the protector of the world and of the religion, Ahmad Shâh, son of Muhammad Shâh, son of the sale shâh son of the sale shâh shâh, son of the sale shâh

"On the fifth day of the month of Magha in the Samvat year 1555 (in the reign of) the king Pådasåha (Pådshåh) Śrî Mahimud.

"(1) Om. Salutation to Vinayaka: Salutation! In whose family was Môkalasimha the sovereign king of Dandahideśa, a Vaghêla, equal to Indra in power, who protected the assembly of Bhagavatas;

"(2) His son was prince Karna, an earth-ruler, of unequalled valour, like Karna, for having attained a great battlefield, the enemies were slain by him the archer.

"(3) An uprooter of enemies, Mûlûrâja, lord of the earth, sprung from that king, even as Rainukêya" from Bhrigu.

"(4) The best of kings, famed as Mahipa, was his unrivalled son, even as Yudhishthira was of Pandu.

"(5) The king Vîrasimha, most graceful in body, was Mahîpa's son, as Râma was of Dasaratha.

² Parasarama the son of Renuka.

в 761-67

"(6) The two kings Varasimha and Jêtra were (like) the two brothers Râma and Lakshmana, and were the sons of Mahîpa.

"(7) The king Vîrasimha, the lord of Dandâhidêśa, shone beautifully like Indra with his desire-fulfilling creeper.

"(8) This Vîrasimha had a queen named Rûdâdêvî, resembling queen Ramâ (Lakshmî), who caused this well (vâpî) to be made by the best of masons.

"(9) Hail! After fifty-five years added to fifteen hundred of the era of the king Vikramarka have passed, Rûdadêvî, the queen of the valorous Vîrasimha and a very good daughter of the ruler of Vena, (?) causes this well, which is like the Ganges, to be made.

"(10) The sun standing in the region of Kubêra (north) on Wednesday the fifth of the month of Mâgha, the Sukla fortnight, in the Uttarâ Nakshatra (asterism), in the Karana called Bava and in the Siddha-yôga, (the lady) called Rûdâ who has her husband for her god, made this good and great well.

"(11) This well creates a doubt in the minds of all as to whether it is the divine lake Manasa, or the celestial river Ganges, or Kailasa itself.

"(12) This well by its niches adorned with the images of celestial damsels creates a doubt even in the minds of gods, whether it is heaven, or a celestial mansion, or the great daughter of Jahnu.

"(13) The queen Rûdâ, the foremost of virtuous women, the poets' desirefulfilling tree, like Sîtâ rendered her and her husband's family illustrious by her praiseworthy actions.

"(14) She was a queen by whom a karôr of coins were at once bestowed as (if it were worthy as) a straw upon wise kings. (?) No other queen, nor the Kâmadhênu nor the Kalpavallî can be named as an equal to the queen Rûdâ.

"(15) It is said that for this well 5 lakhs of tankas were brought from the royal treasury by the queen Rudadevi.

"(16) In the good village of Adâlaj, Rûdâdêvî, the beloved queen of Vîra-simha, made a well adorned with hundreds of rooflets.

- "(17) Hail! While the year 1555 of the era of the king Vikrama and 1420 of the Saka was current, in the Ashadha month and Sisira season of the Uttarayana, on Wednesday the fifth of the light fortnight of Magha in the nakshatra of Uttarabhadrapada in the Yôga called Siddhi and in the Karana named Bava, the moon being in the Mînarasi (Pisces), in the victorious reign of Padshah Mahamûd, the queen Rûdâbaî, the faithful wife of Vîrasimha—Mahîpa's son, the lord of the country of Dandâhi, a Vâghêla, the crest-gem of all kings—made a well at Adâlij for the benefit of all. The overseer was Maham, the son of Bhîma of the Srîmâlî caste. The money spent in building the well was 500,111, or in round figures five lâkhs only—May this continue firm during the existence of the sun and moon!"

56. Epitaph on the end of a tomb, among those known as the Dutch tombs at Kankriya tank. It is engraved in Armenian capitals, and reads thus:—

Ays e dabanes Tarviztzi Shamiri orti loussy hoki Tavout Khanin ar atz pokhvetzau.. EJH Gamar ZA.

Literally: —" Jesus Christ: This is the tomb of the Tabrizian, Shamir's son, the illuminated soul of David Khan. To God he was removed.. in 1170, Gamar 11" (30th July 1720).

Or more freely:—"This is the tomb of the illuminated soul Dawud Khan, son of Shamir of Tabriz. He was removed to God.. on the 11th of Gamar in 1170."

2. INSCRIPTIONS FROM CAMBAY.

No. 1. Over the north entrance of the Jâmi' mosque (p. 135, No. 21 (1)). It appears from the date at the end of this inscription that this mosque was built in the first year of the 19th Pathân Sultân of Hindûstân, before Gujarât had become independent and had its own kings.

After the usual Bismillah comes Sûrah LXXII., v. 18, of the Qurân, to which also the saying of the prophet, that "for him who builds a mosque for Allah, Allah will build a house in paradise," is added. Then the inscription continues as follows:—

هذا ما وقف الله و غايه بني هذا المسجد الجامع و المبارك و مكان الجمعيه و كله من خالص عاله مما الله من فضله و كرمه خالصا لله تعالمي في عهد السلطان العالم العادل محمد شاه بن تغلق شاه السلطان خلد الله ملكه و سلطانه العبد الضعيف الراجي الي رحمة الله تعالمي و منته محمد البوتما ربي حصل الله موامه و د لل في الثامن عشر من المحرم سنه خمص و عشرين و سبعما يه

No. 2. Over the central miḥrâb in the Jâmi' mosque.

After the Bismillah comes Sûrah IX., v. 18, of Qurân complete, and nothing more.

No. 3. Over the south mihrâb in the Jâmi' mosque.

Sûrah III., v. 16, of Qurân and beginning of v. 17. Exactly the same as in the set of inscriptions from Râjâpur Tomb, west side.

No. 4. Over the north mihrâb in the Jâmi' mosque, Sûrah XXXIV., v. 36, complete, and nothing else.

No. 5. [Facsimile No. 207.]

This is a Persian inscription and about the worst of the lot both in caligraphy and in style. It was written during the reign of the 20th Pathan Sultan of Hindustan and pretends to be poetical. After the usual Bismillah we have before the text the following superscription:—

بنا كرد اين مسجد را بندة حضره سلطنه سلطان فيروز

"This mosque was built by a servant of the majesty of sovereignty Sultan Fîrûz [a few words illegible of the title]."

بعهد سلطان ظفر خان گستری بانی بنا کرد این مسجد عادل چون سلطانی وسنه بخمس وسبعین دهفت مد از هجرة محمد که این مسجد مرمت کشت بررونق سبحانی خدا رحمت کند بربنده کو اندراین مسجد گوید بر جان و دل دعا خیر بربانی

And in the year seven hundred seventy-five from the Hijrah of Muhammad [Began 23rd June 1373]

This mosque has been repaired for the worship of God [lit., adornment of the glorious].

May God have mercy upon the worshipper who in this mosque Utters from soul and heart a prayer for the architect."

No. 6. On the tomb at the Jâmi' mosque, Cambay—upper and lower band together.

Contains Qurán, Sûrah XXXVI, vv. 28-42 inclusive, complete—the upper beginning with v. 28 and the lower with v. 36.

² This cognomen may be read also in several other ways on account of the absence of diacritical points,
¹ May also be read Al Shustari,

No. 7. On a reservoir in the court of the Jami' mosque, Cambay :-

Translation.

"The repairing of this reservoir and of the water-channel to the basin was completed in the year one thousand and thirty [Began 26th Nov. 1620] by the meanest of the worshippers of Allah, the director 'Alî the son of 'Abdu'n-nabî al-Baghdadî."

No. 8. On a mosque in ruins at the back of Kh'ajah Khidhr's tomb (p. 134, No. 7).

After the superscription بسم الله خير الاسماء 'In the name of Allab, the best of names," come the following seven Persian distiches in elegant Persian caligraphy :-

"That Khidîv of the period Mûmin Khân, Defender of the religion of him who is prince of men and angels, The servant who is always ready to sacrifice his life for him, Attained felicity hereby that he Constructed the reservoir for the thirsty-lipped That the lord Husain may become his intercessor. The creator and the creatures are pleased with the building Whereby the victory of Badr and Husain is glorified. The shore of the sea and the sweet fountain ! Contemplate the union of the two seas! The chronogram of this auspicious edifice Occurred to my heart in the twinkling of an eye; The celestial herald said, take the name of the Imam 82 And quaff limpid water to the memory of Husain 1219 [Began 12th Apr. 1804.]" No. 9. Tomb of Kh'ajah Khidhr, Cambay.

The upper portion of this inscription is wanting, since what is left contains only the beginning of Sûrah II., v. 256, and the end of it. Also beginning of Sûrah II., v. 285, and end of Sûrah II., v. 289, completing Sûrah II., the intermediate portions having no doubt been on a portion of the inscription, which is lost. The adjoining figure will better explain what is meant.

No. 10. Tomb of Khâjah Khidhr, Cambay, about a mile west of the town.

There is no Bismillah, but only "Allah has said, &c.," as before, Sarah LXXII, v. 18, with the saying already mentioned of the prophet, appended.

مه ق الله بنا هذا المكان المبارك وكان ذاك -خواجه خضر - سنه احد وسبعين و سبعها منه

"Then cultivate her passion and beware of neglect, because lust is not discarded with muteness and becomes dumb. And regard her whilst she is pleased with practical demonstrations; and if she desires to love the guardian, she will not poison. How many a pleasure which was delightful to a man is lethal, because he does not know that the poison in the medicine is the worst of treacheries in hunger and in repletion; and often wretchedness results from the evil of potations, because the flow of tears from an eye already saturated with heat and with music is a prohibition to restraint. Accordingly resist concupiscence and Satan, and disobey them, and they call for advice; therefore ponder. Obey neither their suggestions nor their behests, for thou knowest the fraud of altercations and judgments. I ask pardon from Allah! Words without deeds are attributed to a progeny which is followed by consequences blamed at last. The fruit however which thou hast desired to cherish, perished and is dead. But are not my words to thee :- Endeavour to cherish thy neck, and not love of death voluntarily. I allude only to matters established by command | Fard | and do not discard those sanctioned by usage [Sonnat] which has been transgressed. Who revives transgressions so that even his ancestors have suffered indignity; who repents but nevertheless dallies, his entrails are raked with pain, and he is buried under stones like a luxurious man, who has abused his wealth unto his own destruction!"

unless with some intentions of lust which pass my excuse; and when the shedding of tears although not given up, clears away, the doubt of my case has ceased. My secret is not hidden from slanderers, nor is it my custom to shirk the trouble of advice, and to conclude it, but the lover pays no attention to it. The nobility of justice is in the mind which has meditated on advice...[Again several imperfect sentences] I would have concealed with concealment a secret which appeared to me from him. I have a mettle which I subdued. Who restrains once, is restrained like the mettle of horses by bridling. Do not therefore augment her abundant lust by sins. Verily food strengthens sexual heat, and concupiscence is like an infant whom youthfulness impels to the love of sucking, but if thou weanest him he is weaned."

3. On the central grave-stone in the same tomb is a legend consisting of two lines:—

1st, the Kalimah with the Bismillah prefixed.

2nd, "In the name of Allah and by Allah, and with the religion of the messenger of Allah."

4. On the grave-stone east of the central one in the large tomb at Sôjâli is another, exactly the same as the preceding, which, however, I here give in Arabic:—

4. INSCRIPTIONS FROM DHOLKA AND BHAROCH.

Of ten of the inscriptions from Dholka it is not worth while to give separate descriptions, as they contain only the profession of faith; each is inscribed within akind of pointed arch resembling the top pieces of tomb-stones under which verses of the Qurân occur and the epitaphs; under these Dholka ones, however, there is nothing. All are more or less ornamental, and only one of them exceeds two feet in length, being more than five long, and contains, besides the central arch with the profession of faith, two lateral compartments with the word Allah in large characters. All these are from the mosque of Qaḍhi Balâl Khân at Dholka.

The six long slips marked K, M, N, O, P and Q, copied by hand from an inscription painted upon board panelling, now much obliterated, run round the inner walls of the mosque, beginning from the south end of the west or back wall.

K, at the south end of the west wall, ends with the words "Who is he that can intercede with him?" of Sûrah II, v. 256, of the Qurán; a few words of the beginning of this verse are wanting. The remaining portion of the verse was no doubt on L, which is over the miḥrâb.

M, on the north end of the back wall, contains the beginning of Sûrah I, but the latter part of the slip is now blank.

N, on the west end of the north wall, bears the latter part of Sûrah II, v. 251, and the remaining part is filled in with a benediction upon Muhammad.

O, on the central portion of the north wall, is almost totally blank; and the few letters at the beginning and end of the slip do not allow of identification with any verse from the Qurân.

P, on the east end of the north wall; on this are legible only a few letters at the end of the slip; the rest is now blank.

Q, on the north end of the east or front wall, still bears part of Sûrah II, v. 285, which being towards the end of the Sûrah, it may be presumed that the whole of it had been completed on some of the remaining panels, which could not be copied because the letters have disappeared, or nearly so.

From a stone built into a brick supporting wall in Qâdhi Balâl Khân's Masjid at Dholka.

"In the name of Allah, the merciful, the clement. Allah, who be exalted, has said [in the Quran LXXII, 18]:- Verily the mosques belong to Allah, therefore, do ye not invoke any one with Allah.' The edifice of this mosque wasduring the reign of his majesty the Sultan Abul-mujahad Muhammad, son of Toghluqshah and during the period of Malek-ulmulak-ushsharq Rokn-uddaulatvuddyn-fattâh Sirdâr [or Server] yekdilkhâs—constructed by Mofakhr-ullomrâ muqarrab-uddaulat-vuddyn Hillal Mollay [or Maleky], the architect being the slave A'bd-ulkarym Latyf. Dated the twenty-seventh of the month Dilhejjah, in the year seven hundred and thirty-three" [8th September 1333.]

The following three inscriptions are from the Taku Masjid at Dholka, and bear the same date in the reign of Firuz Shah III, the 20th Sultan of the Pathân dynasty of Hindûstân, whose name occurs also on each of them. The name of the individual at whose expense this mosque was constructed is also mentioned in each of the inscriptions and was Muffarrah [exhilarator], who is also called by the title of Mufakhr-ul-khovas [the boast of, or the chief of favourite courtiers] and Mufarrah Sultani. The first and second inscriptions are in Persian rhymes, and the third in Arabic prose.

INSCRIPTIONS FROM GIRNAR.

INSCRIPTION No. 1.

Over the west door of the temple of Vastupåla and Têjahpåla on mount Girnår is an oblong slab containing the following thirteen lines with about 120 letters in each. The characters are mostly distinct and the writing on the whole fairly correct.

bright half of Phålgun.

"Thakur Chandapa, an inhabitant of Anahilapura and of the Pragvat family, begat Chandaprasada, who begat Sôma, whose son was Aśarajahis son, by Kumaradevi, was the great minister Vastupala, younger brother of Luniga and Måladeva and elder brother of Tejahpåla,-his son was. Jayatasimha, who was born like a royal goose in the lake-like womb of Lalitâdêvî. Before the Samvat year 79 Jayatasiinha was trading as a banker in Stambhatirtha, karors of new temples were caused to be built and many old ones repaired at great and renowned places of pilgrimage, such as Satruñjaya, Arbudâchala, &c., in the prosperous cities of Anabilapura, Bhrigupura, Stambhanakapura, Stambhatirtha, Darbhavati, Dhavalakkaka and other places, by the great minister Vastupåla and by his younger brother Têjahpâla. In the year Sam. 77-Vastupåla who had obtained the leadership of a pilgrim party by the favour of the lord of gods manifested in virtue of the solemnities at such holy places as Satrunjaya, Ujjayanta, &c., who had obtained authority in the kingdom by the favour of Vîradhavala Mahârâja son of Mahârâjâdhirâja Lavaṇaprasada, who was shining like the sun in the heaven of the Chaulukya family and was blessed by the favour of Sarada (Sarasvati) with a son, and his younger brother Tejahpala was earrying on banking transactions with the cities of Gujarât of which Phayalakkaka was the chief, in the year Sam. 76.

Translated by Mathuradas Amritalal, Esq., High School, Junagadh, and revised by Col. J. W. Watsop. The translations are not critical, but give the general sense of the inscriptions his is an epithet of the Jinas, of the Buddhas and of Siva,—meaning "all-knowing."

"Similarly the famous Vastupala has caused to be built this new and splendid temple of the Mahatirthavatara with a mandapa adorned by twenty Tirthankaras such as Ajitanatha, which were religiously inaugurated by his holiness Vijayasenasûrî the ornament of the sacred seat of Bhattaraka Haribhadrasûrî who occupied the office of Amarasûrî, and by Anandasûrî a pupil of Sântisûrî, who again was a pupil and son of Bhattaraka Mahendrasuri, of the Nagendra division, -for the augmentation of his own merit and that of his wife Lalitadevi, the daughter of Kahnada by Ranû of the Pragvat family. On this great holy place, the famous Ujjayanta adorned by Nêminatha the lord of the gods, and graced by various traditionally recounted places of pilgrimage, -the famous Ashtapada, a pillar called Sukhodghatanaka containing the images of the happy Soma his grandfather, and of the venerable Aśaraja his father-both mounted on horsesof the famous Neminatha with three decorated arches, and of his ancestors. elder brother, younger brother, sons, &c.; the gods graced by the worshipful Nêminâtha on four summits known as Ambâ, Avalôkanâ, Sâmba and Pradyumna; two Jinas and the four gods, viz. the famous Rishabhadeva the first Tirthankara who was incarnate on the great holy place of Satrunjaya, the famous god Pârśvanâtha who appeared in the flesh at Stambhanakapura, the famous Mahavîradêva who established himself as a deity at Satyapura, and the famous image of Sarasvatî who was incarnate in Kasmîra, with a culogistic inscription,—were established and all set up by him (Vastupala)."

(Slôka.) "There is this difference between a flood of nectar and Vastupala, the best of ministers,—the first restores the dead, the other restores the dying on the earth.

"Let (Kubêra) the giver of riches, (Vishņu) the dear lord of Lakshmî, and Siva the supreme ruler, be where they may—for though able, they do not satisfy the poor with treasures of enjoyment, while the famous Vastupâla every day sprinkles the earth, withered by the fire of poverty, like a fresh rain cloud with golden riches. O brother, what is the use of talking about sinful and wicked ministers who have nothing in their mind but malice against the people? Sing then by hundreds the virtues of Vastupâla who observes a vow of universal good as Karņa did in times of yore. After Bhôjarāja ascending above the sun was gone and Muñja became sole lord of the dominion in heaven, there now stands only the famous Vastupâla to wipe off the trickling tears of the needy.

"O chief minister of the Chaulûkya line, the sound of thy glory is heard with hairs visibly on end and tears of joy even in the three worlds—for though polluted by Kali the earth has been sanctified by thee with temples, wells, charitable places to give water to the thirsty, ponds, gardens, lakes, &c.

"May the celebrated minister Tejahpâla long be glorious-Tejahpâla by whom we pass our happy days free from anxieties as by a Chintâmanî gem.

"May this man who is like a tree of paradise and a father to Lavanasimha and in charge of the state seals of the son of Lavanaprasada enjoy the ministership for a hundred ages.

"In olden times Bali was pressed down by the foot of Vishnu, the enemy of the demons, from the earth; now the same is done by the hand of Vastupala. .d

"His wife Lalitâdêvî had by this best of ministers a sonnamed Jayatasimbauself sessed of modest virtues, as Sachî, the daughter of Pulôma, had Jayanta bearnate "These (ślókas) are (the composition) of the Thâkur Sômêśvarach by him priest of the king of Gurjara.

"Jaitrasimha surnamed Dhruva of good intelligence, son of Vajedusion, why in a Kâyastha family in Stambhatîrtha, has written the eulogistic ie? Why, O

"This inscription has been carefully engraved by the ingenious Kumara-simha, the son of Vahada, a mason by profession.

"May this inscription by the favour of Amba and Nemi, the support of the

INSCRIPTION No. 2.

This is on the west door of Vastupåla and Têjahpåla's temples. It is in 14 long lines. The first part is rather fobliterated. The prose-text is the same as in the preceding with very slight modifications, but the ślókas are new.

(Slokas.) "O Kalikala, why is thy mind weary? O World-delusion, why dost thou not smile? O Thirst, why art thou with a blackened face? Why, O multitude of obstacles, is thy attempt not crowned with success? (They answer) what answer, friend, can we make but that our remedy does not progress well as the army of virtue has been greatly strengthened by the good deeds of Vastupåla.

"How can this man be described by me?—a man whom his relations look upon as the moon, the needy as the object accomplished, and enemies as the deity of destruction.

"He is a minister by whom the natural enmities between wealth and learning, superiority and subordination, and pride and humility, have been laid at rest.

"With what or whom can we compare the famous minister Vastupala? For if (we compare him) with a lamp it continually sucks up oil (affection) and brings forth a sooty dirt; if (we compare him to) the moon it is always inclined to the diminution of his disk (circle) and envies the rise of the sun (friend), when the sun with torch-like rays does not bear the light of another luminous body.

"How many have not come in the course of this world like travellers making a temporary halt? how many do not go away? and how many will yet not go? But Vastupâla, the ocean of admirable genius, destroys all rogues, and keeping the treasures of merit in his hands, nourishes the earth.

"He, the best of ministers, bore the yoke of the king Vîradhavala's kingdom and the famous Têjaḥpâla beld a share in lifting the burden of his brother......

"Here the minister Têjahpâla, making an unrivalled lake of nectarial water which purified Satrunjaya, satisfied the host of the immortals.

"These are composed by Srî Maladhâri Narachandrasûrî.

"Kâyastha Jayatasiinha surnamed Dhruva, of Stambhapuri, the son of Vâjada, the son of Aṭaka, who was the son of Sahajiga, the son of Vâliga, has written this (inscription).

"Engraved by Purushôttama, the son of Bakula Svâmî, the grandson of Sômadêva, head of the engravers of Vishņu's temple and Siva's bull.

"This is the eulogy of Vastupala, the great minister.

"This is a temple of the virtuous Sokhuka, the wife of Vastupala, the great minister."

half of Phalgun.

"Thakur Chandapa, an inhabitant of Anahilapura and of the Pragvat family, begat Chandaprasada, who begat Soma, whose son was Aśarajahis son by Kumaradevî was the great minister Vastupala, the younger brother of Luniga and Mâladêva and elder brother of Têjahpâla—his son was Jayatasimha who was born like a royal goose in the lake-like womb of Lalitadevi. Before the Samvat year 79 Jayatasimha was trading as a banker in Stambhatîrtha, karôrs of new temples were caused to be built and many old ones repaired at great and renowned places of pilgrimage such as Satrunjaya, Arbudâchala, &c., and in the prosperous cities of Anahilapura, Bhrigupura, Stambhanakapura, Stambhatirtha, Darbhavati, Dhavalakkaka and other places, by the great minister Vastupåla, and by his younger brother Têjahpâla. In the year Sam. 77-Vastupåla who had obtained the leadership of a pilgrim-party by the favour of the lord of gods, manifested in virtue of the solemnities at such holy places as Satrunjaya, Ujjayanta, &c., who had obtained authority in the kingdom by the favour of Vîradhavala Mahârâja son of Mahârâjâdhirâja Lavanaprasâda, who was shining like the sun in the heaven of the Chaulukya family and was blessed by the favour of Såradå (Sarasvatî) with a son, and his younger brother Têjahpâla was carrying on banking transactions with the cities of Gujarât of which Dhavalakkaka was the chief, in the year Sam. 76.

"Similarly the famous Vastupâla has caused to be built this new and splendid temple of the Mahâtirthâvatâra with a maṇḍapa adorned by Tîrthankaras such as Ajitanâtha, religiously inaugurated by his holiness Vijayasênasûri, the ornament of the sacred seat of Bhatṭâraka Haribhadrasûri, who occupied the office of Amarasûrî and by anandasûrî a pupil of Sântisûrî, who again was a pupil and son of Batṭâraka Mahêndrasûrî of the Nâgêndra division—for the augmentation of his own merit and that of his wife Sokhukâ, daughter ôf Kahnada by Rânû of the Prâgvât caste. On this great holy place the famous Ujjayanta adorned by Nêminâtha the lord of the gods, and graced by various traditionally recounted places of pilgrimage such as the famous Ashtâpada,—a pillar called Sukhod-ghâṭanaka containing the images of the happy Sôma his grandfather, and of the venerable Âśârâja his father—both mounted on horses, himself (Vastupâla) and his younger brother (Têjahpâla) being both mounted on the same elephant—of the famous Nêminâtha with three decorated arches, and of his ancestors, elder brother, younger brother, sons, &c.; the quadruple gods graced by the worshipful Nêminâtha, on four summits (known as) Ambâ, Avalôkanâ, Sâmba and Pradyumna, two Jinas and the four gods, viz. the famous Rishabhadêva the first Tîrthankara who was incarnate on the great holy place of Satrunjaya, the famous god Pârśvanâtha who appeared in flesh at Stambhanakapura, the famous Mahâvîradêva who established himself as a deity at Satyapura, and the famous image of Sarasvatî who was incarnate at Kaśmîra, with eulogistic inscription,—were established and all set up by him (Vastupâla).

(Slôkas.) "May this Vastupâla, the sole place of safety, be prosperous and long-lived—he who has surpassed the minister of Indra by prudence and has fully adorned the earth with palaces whose foundations touched the very root of the earth and whose tops nodded in the sky, with lakes, and with white monasteries of Svêtâmbaras and with green gardens of pleasure.

"O Vastupâla, Bali has sent thee a message that he has been much pleased by hearing from Nârada, who visits the three worlds, that though frequently solicited thou dost not extend thy anger to the needy, dost not give them sparingly, and attachest no importance to thy praise; that, in short, thou art not intoxicated by the pride of riches, and thou mayest long be happy.

"We think the lord of gods has come to the earth under the name of Vîra (dhavala), the destroyer of his enemy's armies, and therefore the desire-fulfilling tree of paradise, under the disguise of Vastupâla, and Brihaspati, the preceptor of the gods, under that of Tejahpala, dwell about him.

"O minister of the king of the Chaulûkya line, thy glories, as if to ascertain whether there exists anywhere else a man who may be brave, generous and sweet-speaking like thee, have gone in all directions seeking in every house and every town.

"Alas, three yugas have somewhere departed and the production of virtuous men has ceased; the time now prevails of Kali, when the sages are harassed; men do not perform good deeds and rogues are plying at large. Under these circumstances, O Vastupala, Siva has now heard that thy attention is solely directed to the removal of universal distress—do as it may please you.

"Who have not gone to the place of Yama depositing their treasures in the ground? But, O Vastupâla, thou delightest in giving them (treasures) to hungry people roaming here and there in all directions.

"O lord of the boar, hold the earth in thy tusk! O sun, illumine her! O clouds, sprinkle water upon her, and O Vastupåla, protect her with thy charitable gifts; for the Creator has assigned these duties to you.

"O Vastupala, images of Siva visibly reside in thee; for thou art the soul of the world; thy glory is ever spreading (like the wind); thy face is lotus-like (like the sky); thy friendship, O best of ministers! is firm (like the earth); thy fame is sweet (like water); thy patience is dark-destroying (like the sun); and who has not declared thy hand to be of nectarial power (like the moon) and thy body bright (like Agni)?

"Though the Vedic knowledge fares not well in any place, though no one takes a word of Smriti into his ears, though kings are misers and there is so much expense in the house, yet I feel not the least concerned for all that so long as Vastupâla lives. .

"Thou dost not listen to the word of the wicked, manifestest no anger and turnest not thy ambition to an improper object. By this, O Vastupâla! though living on earth thou treadest Kali underneath thy feet.

"As a rule, offsprings follow their father; how then, O Vastupala, can thy glory be doubtful, sprung though she is from thy all-knowing self?

292 APPENDIX.

"By the famous minister Vastupala watering the earth with nectarial charities, the pride of Bali and Kalpataru has been greatly lowered.

"Among the elephant-like courtiers of the king, Vastupâla possesses the good qualities of a Bhadra; for no intoxicated spirit ever comes out of him, though the profusion of gifts flows apace, just as a Bhadra is not maddened though rutting secretion flows profuse.

"Only one elephant was obtained from the ocean by many gods: while O Vastupala, many elephants from the ocean (i. e., countries on the seashore) by one wise man (i.e. yourself). Vastupala thou hast pleased thy master first with streams of wealth, then with horses, and now thou, who art the ocean of virtuous deeds, hast pleased him with numerous elephants.

"Vastupala, thou hast indeed measured the depth of the ocean; for having thence conveyed a number of elephants, thou hast placed them at the gates of thy master.

"These (ślókas) are by Thakur Sômêśvara, priest to the king of Gujarat.

"Kâyastha Jayatasimha surnamed Dhruva inhabitant of Stambhapura, the son of Vâjada, the son of Atuk, who was the son of Sahajiga, the son of Valiga," &c., &c., &c.

Translation.

"Salutation to the holy Nêminâthadêva. May those gods of holy places who are jewels on the crests of the eighteen mountains, whose feet are washed by streams of radiant light proceeding from hundreds of coronets on the heads of prostrating gods and whose images are unrivalled—May those gods of holy places give excellent and evil-devouring riches to you.

"In the auspicic year of Vikrama 1288, Wednesday the 10th of the bright half of Phâlgun.

"Thakûr Chaṇḍap, an inhabitant of Aṇahilapura and an ornament of the Prâgvât family, begat Chaṇḍaprasâda, who begat Sôma, whose son was Aśârâja—his son by Kumâradêvî was the great minister Vastupâla the younger brother of Luṇiga and Mâladêva and elder brother of Têjaḥpâla,—his son was Jayatasimha, who was born like a royal goose in the lake-like womb of Lalitâdêvî. Before the Samvat year 79, Jayatasimha was trading as a banker in Stambhatîrtha, karôrs of new temples were caused to be built and many old ones repaired at great and renowned places of pilgrimage such as Satruñjaya, Arbudâchala, &c., and in the prosperous cities of Aṇahilapura, Bhṛigupura, Stambhanakapura, Stambhatîrtha, Darbhavatî, Dhavalakkaka and other places by the great minister Vastupåla and by his younger brother Tejahpåla in the year Sam. 77-Vastupala who had obtained the leadership of a pilgrim-party by the favour of the lord of gods, manifested in virtue of the solemnities at such holy places as Satruñjaya, Ujjayanta, &c .- who had obtained authority in the kingdom by the favour of Vîradhavala Mahârâja son of Mahârâjâdhirâja Lavaṇaprasâda, who was shining like the sun in the heaven of the Chaulûkya family, and was blessed by the favour of Sarada (Sarasvatt) with a son, and his younger brother Tejahpala was carrying on banking transactions with the cities of Gujarat of which Dhavalakkaka was the chief.

"Similarly the famous Vastupâla has caused to be built this new and splendid temple of the Mahâtîrthâvatâra with a mandapa adorned by twenty Tîrthankaras such as Ajitanatha, religiously inaugurated by his holiness Vijayasenasûri, the ornament of the sacred seat of Bhattaraka Haribhadrasuri, who occupied the office of Amarasûrî, and by Ânandasûrî, a pupil of Sântisûrî, who again was a pupil and son of Bhattaraka Mahêndrasûrî of the Nagêndra division. (Slokas.) "Let there be continuous salutation to holy Bali and Karna, whose charity though unseen has been the object of so much fame; consequently the people are worthy of worship, and the great minister Vastupâla's charity which the people see with their eyes so great that even the world itself can scarcely contain it.

"Many learned men adorned with diadems, bracelets, rings, frontal marks, armlets, garlands and silken robes presented by his (Vastupala's) hands became so changed that they with great difficulty and many oaths could persuade their partners of their identity.

"The son of Virôchana may extend (give) his gift of charity; Bhas, Vyas, &c., their riches of poetry; Prithu, Raghu, &c., their vow degravery; and the instructor of the army of gods may lend his intelligence; but, Vastupala, we know not from what source thou hast derived thy prideless manners.

"Who knows the extraordinary deeds of Vastupala as they really are-Vastupala whose danas (presents and punishments) are unceasing equally upon his implorers and enemies?

"With what epithets of greatness should the great minister Vastupala be praised, whose ways of giving alms, at once destroying the stamp of poverty, have strung together the words giver and needy in the whole world and made them useless!

"Thinking that he gave little to supplicants, who being satisfied by his first gift did not like to return, he stood calling after them with hands outstretched to give many times more than the first amount.

"Thinking that the world is soiled by the muddy vices of Kali, and that tottering virtue would stumble at every step without a path to walk on, he, the great minister, has made places of charity as a pavement for the old religion to walk on.

"What new variety do not the glories of Vastupala assume! They have the splendour of geese on the lotus; the brightness of a heap of foam on the lake, and beauty of spotless pearls on the sea shore; they look like moonlight in nightblowing lotuses and spreading white as flowers in gardens attached to the house.

"Alas, O lord of heaven, a great misfortune! 'Well, who are you?' (he says) 'a keeper of the garden of Paradise.' 'What is your affliction?' he asks; 'somebody has taken off the desire-fulfilling tree from the garden of your highness.' He replies: 'No, say not so; I have, out of special grace to men, sent it down to earth, which it now graces under the name of Vastupâla.'

"The whole river system being rendered white by the up-and-down waves of the great minister Vastupåla's glories, the pilgrims to the holy Ganges, mistaking every river for the real Ganges (whose water is white) wander here and there with minds very much perplexed and limbs exhausted and slackened with fatigue.

"Who is not fortunate when the minister Vastupåla is nigh? Vastupåla, whose face, if once falling within the sight of stealing poverty, is a positive command for its departure, whose eyes if favourably cast are nectar showers to his friends, and whose kind conversation always turns upon the lucid and unrivalled discussion of the Supreme Being.

"His victorious younger brother, who never displays unholy anger in his eyes and by whose shelter the virtuous at once get rid of their troubles, is known by the name of Têjaḥpâla, and he looks like the embodiment of final beatitude to the virtuous on this earth.

"He is the attraction of riches, hindrance of misfortune, restraint of worldly desires, and the cause of sending glories to the utmost boundary of the points of the compass. He causes the exploits of his enemy to swoon away and is death to the thief, injustice. These six qualities are self-existent in this minister.

"These are by Narendrasûrî Maladhârî," &c., &c.

first Tîrthankara who was incarnate on the great holy place of Satrunjaya, the famous god Pârsvanatha who appeared in flesh at Stambhanakapura, the famous Mahavîradêva who established himself as a deity at Satyapura, and the famous image of Sarasvatî who was incarnate in Kasmîra, with eulogistic inscription—were established and all set up by him (Vastupâla)."

of learning, virtue, glory, prudence and a crowd of other qualities.

"Though he is endowed with seven qualities, nobility, valour, learning, wisdom, wealth, charity and judgment, all beginning with V^1 , yet is influenced by no passion.

"May Vastupala, this son, live for ever, created for the discharge of charitable duties is not only the earth but even ships and oceans.

"We see in Vastupala both the enjoyment of poetry and also other joys and happiness.

"The tree of paradise grew on the celestial mountain which is inaccessible, the cow of heaven fled out of sight, and the desire-fulfilling gem hid itself in the ocean; who else then can compete with Vastupâla's charity and solely call himself meritorious? If none, why should not Vastupâla be called the only unrivalled distributor of charities?

"How cannot this great minister Vastupâla, bearing as he does so much weight of religious duties, be the abode of praise (in matters of politics) when he has Têjahpâla white as.....and possessed of intelligence to understand all things, to put himself to the administrative yoke as a partner? (literally, as a second bull).

"While Vastupâla, the bearer of ambrosial water and supporter of the people, is day and night raining with various silver plenties which are the results of his excellent good qualities, pure as moonlight cleared of clouds, the people are living through his protection.

"Vastupala is fully convinced within himself that riches are restless because they had connection with the turning of the churning mountain; the love of women, with eyes active like the gazelle, is inconstant because it depends upon the amorous play of eyebrows; and that life is uncertain because it consists of the breath—and that therefore duty alone is firm.

"Who can well describe the proper form of Têjahpâla and Vishnu, who protect the three worlds on their shoulder?

"The wife of Vastupâla was by name Lalitâdêvî, who gave birth to a son named Jayatasimha, who was not wanting in justice.

"Jayatasimha placed his youth immoveable, between his body and evil passions.

"This is the composition of Chandrasûrî Maladhârî.

"Jaitrasimha, surnamed Dhruva, is the copyist, and Kumarasimha the engraver," &c., &c.

Translation.

"Salutation to Sarvajnya. May those Tîrthankaras be always the cause of manifold blessings to you—the Tîrthankaras who are the jewels on the crown-like summit of Samêta mountain, whose glories are exalted by having humbled the pride of smiling Cupid, whose brilliant splendour is like that of the Fort of Sivapuri, and who are mines of many excellent gems such as the know-ledge connected with eternity.

"In the auspicious year of Vikrama 1288, Wednesday the 10th of the bright half of Phalgun.

"Thakur Chandapa, an inhabitant of Anahilapura and of the Pragvat family, begat Chandaprasada, who begat Sôma, whose son was Aśaraja,his son by Kumaradevi was the great minister Vastupala, the younger brother of Luniga and Måladêva and elder brother of Têjahpâla,-his son was Jayatasimha, who was born like a royal goose in the lake-like womb of Lalitadevi. Before the Samvat year 79 Jayatasimha was trading as a banker in Stambhatirtha, karôrs of new temples were caused to be built and many old ones repaired at great and renowned places of pilgrimage such as Satruñjaya, Arbudåchala, &c., and in the prosperous cities of Anahilapura, Bhrigupura, Stambhanakapura, Stambhatirtha, Darbhavati, Dhavalakkaka and other places by the great minister Vastupåla and by his younger brother Têjahpåla. In the year Sam, 77, Vastupala who had obtained the leadership of a pilgrim-party by the favour of the lord of gods manifested in virtue of the solemnities at such holy places as Satrunjaya, Ujjayanta, &c., who had obtained authority in the kingdom by the favour of Vîradhavala Mahârâja, son of Mahârâjâdhirâja Lavanaprasâda, who was shining like the sun in the heaven of the Chaulûkya family and was blessed by the favour of Sarada (Sarasvatt) with a son, and his younger brother Tejahpala was carrying on banking transactions with the cities of Gujarat of which Dhavalakkaka was the chief in the year Sam. 76.

"Similarly the famous Vastupâla has caused to be built this new and splendid temple of the Mahâtîrthâvatâra with a mandapa adorned by twenty Tîrthankaras such as Ajitanatha, religiously inaugurated by his holiness Vijayasenasûri, the ornament of the sacred seat of Bhattaraka Haribhadrasûrî, who occupied the office of Amarasûrî, and by Anandasûrî a pupil of Santisûrî, who again was a pupil and son of Bhattaraka Mahêndrasûrî of the Nâgêndra division. For the augmentation of his own merit and that of his wife Lalitadevi, the daughter of Kanhada by Ranu of Pragvat family-on this great holy place, the famous Ujjayanta adorned by Nêminâtha the lord of the gods and graced by various traditionally recounted places of pilgrimage such as the famous Ashtapada, -a pillar called Sukhodghatanaka containing the images of the happy Sôma his grandfather, and of the venerable Aśaraja his father—both mounted on horses—of the famous Neminatha with three decorated arches, and of his ancestors, elder brother, younger brother, sons, &c.; the quadruple gods graced by the worshipful Neminatha on four summits known as Amba, Avalokana, Samba and Pradyumna; two Jinas and the four gods, viz. the famous Rishabhadeva the first Tirthankara who was incarnate on the great holy place of Satrunjaya, the famous god Parsvanatha who appeared in the flesh at Stambhanakapura, the famous Mahaviradeva who established himself as a deity at Satyapura, and the famous image of Sarasvatî who was incarnate in Kaśmira, with a eulogistic inscription,-were established and all set up by him (Vastupála)."

(Slokas.) "O Vastupala, the crown of the highly religious circle, whence does thy flood of glory partake of unholy character, for it deprives Brahmans of money and the moon of its light and surpasses the father of Parvati (or stretches far beyond the Himalaya); it entertains no fear of heaven (fears no enemy or rival); it takes delight in despising the hermits (considers to have achieved its object in surpassing the geese.)

"Near the illustrious city of Stambhatirtha the ocean had been dried up by the enemies making a grand display of their wrath, with dust raised by their war-horses in the army from the trodden earth. But the same was again filled up by the river flowing water of perspiration from their bodies, which were heated by the burning rays of Vastupala's prowess.

"How should not Vastupâla, the son of Âśârâja, be amply deserving of praise? For with his brother of equal ability shining on the right side and himself on the left, he bears on his shoulder as easily as in sport the heavy load of the administration chariot entrusted to him by king Vîradhavala, who is brave in making a triumphal march in all directions.

"His (elder) brother, baving a face shining like the dark-destroying moon at night, was from the spread of his radiance called Luniga in the proper sense of the word (of lovely body—'lâvanyânga') and I suspect he has been (bodily) carried off by celestial damsels simply because they thought the god Cupid had been made incorporeal by the anger of Siva while this man was Cupid incarnate.

"His second brother Malladêva shines like a royal goose in this world, for he is attached to virtuous deeds as the bird is red in feet with a graceful gait; he has attained great reputation by being a leader of those devoted to Brahma as the bird has by being a vehicle of the same deity; he takes delight in pure minds as the bird does in the pellucid lake of Manasa without taking muddy ways; and he has two sides (maternal and paternal) unsullied as the bird has two white wings.

"The famous Vastupala is virtuous, devoted to poetry of nectarial essence, and is sweet in giving instruction by his firm understanding. The heaven resembles a bee in the lotus cup of his knowledge; and is like a deer in the moon of his fame, and looks like Vishnu in the ocean of his greatness.

"In the milky ocean of his glory the moon is a drop of water; the celestial river, a lump of foam; the lord of light is a spray of coral; and Vishnu is the sky (enveloping the ocean). Kailasa, heavenly elephant, Siva, and the snowy mountains are the pearls, and the moonlight is its crystal sands.

"There shines Tejahpâla, who is richly great in possessing a taste for know-ledge (?), who fills all the desires of Dakshinâ with abundant wealth, and whose genius may well compare with that of the lord of Lôpâmudrâ who had been the cause of giving free course to the sun by stopping the huge increase of the Vindhya mountain infested with elephants, as it (genius) is a hindrance to the prosperity of his hostile king possessing many elephants.

"There are on earth the meritorious Punyasimha the son of Malladêva, Jaitrasimha of best renowned the son of Vastupâla, and Lâvanyasimha the son of Têjaḥpâla. These three make up as it were the four feet of merit, which is one-footed in Kali.

"These are by the famous Udayaprabhâsûrî Bhaţţâraka of the Nâgêndra division.

"Jaitrasimha, &c., copyist.

INSCRIPTION No. 7.

This is on a wall near the first entrance door of Nêminâtha's temple on the left side of the main road and a little way off from the fort-gate. The inscription is incomplete on the stone and the first parts of the first six lines are broken away. The characters are large and distinct, but the writing is very incorrect.

and to satisfy the desires of the meritorious, supplies many mango fruits, and has a lap graced by a son, as if to fulfil the wishes of men for a hundred sons.

"5. May the gods Guru, Mêghanâda, Indra, &c., give their desired proximity to those who busily engage themselves in the faithful performance of religious deeds on the great mountain-king Ujjayanta now-a-days.

"6. This country of Saurashtra, the best of lands, though perpetually adorned with various tarthas, gardens, rivers, forests and charming palaces and with countless citizens enjoying manifold comforts extended by kings, possesses an unrivalled ornament in the mountain king Raivata.

"7. O mountain of the immortals, be not proud; for how many like the sun, moon, &c., have not been set wheeling round thee notwithstanding they bear thee infatuate love? Let therefore Raivata alone be praised, by whose very sight living beings become free from delusion and enjoy great happiness and pleasures.

"8. Furthermore on this mountain the family of Hari may be compared with bamboos; for the family had a great abode on this mountain as the bamboos have many stalks bending down; the family had celebrated Parvas as the bamboos have great knots. The great members of the Yadava family Sivangaja, Achyuta, Bala, &c., though themselves pearls among all saints, derive spotless beauty from this mountain.

"9. In the royal race of a king named Yadu, of terrible valour, there was a family which possessed many excellent qualities and was celebrated as the illustrious Yadavas. There flourished, in the order of succession, the famous Mandalika who sat on the throne bowed down to by many kings, and who made a temple to Nëminatha with heavy plates of gold.

"10. His son was Râjâ Navaghana, who wielded a new strong sword against his enemy, who was a fresh cloud shower to his forest-like people, and who looked pleasing by his fame white as camphor.

"11. His son was Mahipâladêva, a great king, before whose liberality the heavenly cow, the desire-fulfilling jewel, and the tree of Paradise were easily reduced to submission, and who caused a temple of Sômanâtha to be built at Prabbâsa.

"12. Afterwards there flourished a king called Khangara, a fire in the trees of his enemies, an ornament in the splendour of his royal family, and a stream of water to the creeper-like world.

"13. Then succeeded the handsome king Jayasimhadêva, whose eyes were wet with the fatigue caused by the pleasure of the enjoyment of his crown-land, which was as it were a beautiful woman; who was a moon of the ocean of justice, and the fear of his enemies; whose greatness was exalted by solemn vows, and whose feet were washed by the water of the rays issuing from the diamonds of the crowns of those kings who bowed before him.

"14. After him shone Mokalasimha like a lion to tear down the elephants of hostile kings. He was a royal goose in the mental-lake of the virtuous, and his light was borrowed by the suu in the sky.

"15. Next to him came the king Mêlagadêva, who satisfied the most worshipful lord of the gods by his virtuous deeds, and who resembled a bee in the lotus-foot of Bhavanatha and possessed an unsullied body.

"16. Then came the king Mahîpâladêva, who was like a sun to illuminate the dignity of his predecessor, a maker of prosperity and of extraordinary power by his excessive splendour. He overstepped the best of kings by imposing royal dues in all directions as the sun spreads his rays over mountain summits all about. He drove out the owls of hostile kings, and was prepared to destroy the darkness of immorality.

"17. The son of the above-named was the famous Mandalika, who was like the lion in creating fear among his elephant-like enemies, and whose splendour was like that of a diamond in the crown of the best of monarchs, and whose glory, comparable to the waves of a heavenly river uninterruptedly flowing and ready to go beyond the sea, is yet spreading in all directions.

"19. The arm of king Mandalika desirous of gathering good renown, is ever victorious-arm which is a post to the circle of which to tie a young beautiful elephant of victory, a bridge to cross over the ocean of miseries and a banner on the house of bravery; it is a handle to churn the curd of the battle-field; an eastern mount to shoot the rays of the sword-like sun, and a cause of wholesale widowhood to the wives of his hostile kings.

"20. O enemies, out of compassion I will make you to hear a word of It is this-at once making yourself free from pride, seek the service of Mandalika, the king of men; for the tread of his horse's hoof raises so large quantity of fine dust, which at once concealing the sun obscures the face of the earth.

Of what importance then are you before him?

"21. There is wisdom of Brahma in making the heavenly cow a senseless beast, the celestial gem a shining stone, and the tree of Paradise a lump of wood, from their very birth; for had they been made with the sensibilities of life, what would have been the state of their hearts troubled with shame at your liberality. O Mandalika!

"Thus ends the description of the family of the king. "Now begins the description of the famous Sana.

"He was a depository of welfare, an abode of unlimited affection of wealth, a treasure of religion, and a shining ornament on the crest-jewel of the earth, his best wife, and builder of wells, ponds, lakes, gardens, Jaina temples and Saiva temples."

INSCRIPTION No. 8.

This inscription is on the wall of a chapel facing to the south, on the left side of the path leading to what is called the Hathipagala (the elephant's foot).

18. Why can he not be surpassed? In what does his greatness consist? By whom was the universe created? What do two meritorious persons do with their riches?

What did Mandalika do to his enemies?

¹ Sloka 18 is made out by Vallabhaji Acharya to be a kind of acrostic, the last reply Srirajarajisritah containing the answer to the acrostic. The first reply is Sritah, or the 1st and last syllables; the second is Ratan, or the 2nd syllable and the final syllable; the third is Ajdtah; the fourth, Ratah; the fifth, Jitah; the sixth, Sritah; and the seventh, the entire answer S'rîrâjarâjiśritah. The ślóka is as follows:-

One of the corners of the stone is broken off. The characters are faint and indistinct; the middle part is entirely obliterated.

On entering the first gate of the fort there is a temple in the south-east on the right side of the main road. On the back of the temple which is on the kund or pool is a broken pillar, on which there are five images, one in the middle and four on the upper part. The middle one bears the following name:—

महामासश्रीगेल क

"The famous Gellaka, the great minister."
Of the upper four images the first bears

श्रीसलवण

"The famous Salakhaṇa." The second has श्रीरास्वदेव

[&]quot;The famous Râsvadêva."

The third and fourth have the names obliterated. There are some ślókas too, but they are hopelessly illegible.

INSCRIPTION No. 20.

There is a raised square-seat under a tree in the compound of what is called Humada's holy place. On the edge of the seat the following occurs:—

- "Salutation to Vinayaka; he, who, being solely won by devotion, is not accessible to the best of sages, hermits or gods with all their contemplations, sacrifices and charities—may he protect the world!
- "There was a king named Mandalîka in the family of the Yâdavas, who conquered the Mudgala (Moghal) and was served by many friendly kings with rich tributes. His son was Mahîpâla. His son Khengâra, the nourisher of the world, was a great supporter of musical science. He conquered twice nine islands (continents) and established a great idol of Sômanâtha. His son was Jayatasimhadêva, who satisfied the Brâhmans with land, gold and other gifts. After him came the king Muktasimha, who properly controlled the rules of social divisions and acted by exploits like a lion let loose upon his elephant-enemies.
- "The son of the above was Mandalika, who was a holy place for the purification of wine-drinking Yadavas, who looked upon the wives of others as his mother and who was a warlike soldier in the battle-field.
- "His younger brother Mêliga was of large intelligence. His son was Jayasimha, whose vows consisted of the pledges of security to the terrified. At one time in his reign, which protected many members of the Yâdava family, a large army of the Yavanas came to the frontier of Jinjharakâta. This he defeated and spared the remainder according to the rules of justice: and Dâmôdara, the son of the famous Pâti Narasimhadêva, who daily performed six ceremonies and six Krashna, constructed this unbroken mansion for the good of the pilgrims and hermits to save his own ancestors. INSCRIPTIONS NOS. 38 AND 39.

There is a blocked-up gate in the east wall of the town-fort, where there are some hand-prints of virtuous women. There are also some nineteen inscriptions, seven in the east and twelve in the west walls. The place is accessible from the side of a stone-quarry.

On the west wall :-

ए स्वस्ति संवत् १५२१ वर्षे श्रावणशादि १५ मोमे ठा-कुरश्रीसा[नण] सुतपारिक्ष ठाकुर [श्री]सतीवाहरणादे ॥ देवमतीसिंहमहंमक्षं-व्ह - - -

Translation.

"Tuesday, the 15th of Śrâvaṇa Sudi, Sam. 1521; a virtuous woman named Raṇâdê, the wife of Pariksha, the son of Thakûr Sâjada.....dêva, Matisimha and Maksha....."

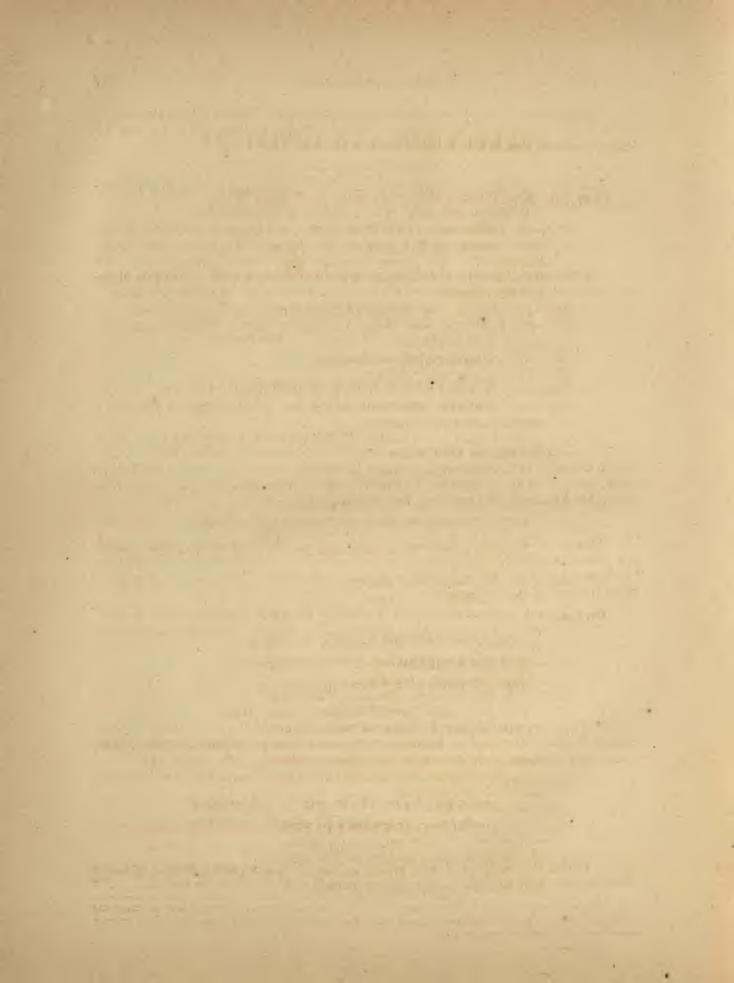

On the east wall :-

स्वास्त संवत् १५१९ वर्षं ज्येष्ट शादि १० शुक्रे जालहराजा-तिमांडवियानयता भाषांसतीबाई [स्यण]

Translation.

"Friday the 10th of Jyêshtha Sudi, Sam. 1590; a chaste woman by name Rayana, the wife of Jayatâ, a custom-master and Jahalarâ by caste....."

^{*} These inscriptions are without verbs. Probably Sati, which is an adjective, may be made the predicate with a copula understood, and then the inscriptions would mean that those women sacrificed themselves or became Sati.

CORRECTIONS AND ADDITIONS.

Page 12,-Kôd Táluka: Mêdur is 3 miles S. E. from Mâsur. 8. Rattiballi: add Also a temple of Vîrabhadra.

134, line 3, after (a) insert:

This temple is said to be an exact copy of one at Bhavka
(No. 5, p. 138).

No. 5, add—This temple is said to be an exact copy of the temple of Galtesvar at Thasra (p. 134). A mile distant at Abhlod is a temple containing some Sanskrit inscriptions (a).

No. 6, add-At an ancient tank are some old Sanskrit inscriptions, said to belong to the reign of Siddharaja (a).

No. 7, add—Two or 3 miles S. E. from Jhâlod on the Machhan river are some very old temples, called Panchaswa, with inscriptions (a).

4. GODHRA TALUKA.

8. Rattanpur, between Godhra and Pali station: an old temple containing a sculptured screen (a).

9. Tuå, 3 miles S. of Rattanpur: remarkable hot springs and some old temples.

139, 3. Ahmadnagar: of the palace two fragments remain, much dilapidated. The south front has an arched entrance and three windows much destroyed, and a finely carved balcony window on the east; the northern portion has similar windows on the east and north. Near it is a well built circular well now dry. (2) The kund is descended by two zigzag stairs on the east side with 45 steps in all. On the south-west is a stair ascending straight to the ground level. The kund was surrounded by a single corridor on the east and north sides, and is 293 feet square inside the pillars. On the west the corridor has three rows of pillars, with rooms behind, the central one having a finely perforated screen in front. On the south side is a small porch in the centre, and the lobby to the stair. (3) The Jami Masjid is 92 feet by 351 inside, with three domes and stone Mihrabs. In front are three small latticed windows with toranas in front, lighting the stairs to the roof. In the end walls, in the front and back aisles are perforated windows, and also four in the back wall in the lines of the narrow aisles. The mimbar has seven steps and no canopy. The kangras have all fallen, and there are no minarets. (4) A Wav or step well built in Sam, 1578, A.H. 928 (A.D. 1522) by Abu-nasr Muzaffar Shah, has a Sanskrit inscription on one side (a good deal injured) and a Persian one on the other. Forty steps 8 feet 10 inches wide lead down to a platform on the rock whence steps wheel round the sides down the well, which is about 39 feet square; on the left corner opposite the platform a narrow stair also leads up to the ground level. (5) In the town is a Jaina temple of Chandraprabha, well carved and in excellent preservation, with an outer open Mandap on 12 carved pillars and with a raised square platform between the inner four. The inner Mandap is on 8 engaged pillars. The whole measures 551 feet over all. In the right corner of the court is a smaller Mandap on wooden pillars, and with a good face to the street. (6) The temple of Mahâvîra is the one most in use: it is in a very confined area and the pillars and walls are painted red. (7) The fortifications are mostly fallen and the stones are carried off or sold for building purposes: there are some 8 gates, the one principally used is very handsome, but narrowed by a modern inner arch.

Page 157, 18, Parântîj. The remains here are of no importance: in a small dilapidated mosque, is the following inscription on a marble slab, in two lines:—

بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم قال الله تعالى و ان المساجد لله فلاتد عومع الله احد اين بقعه شريف بنا كرده درهمودود در در عهد فيروز شاه سلطان خلد الله ملكه در ماه رمضان سنه اربع و ثمانين و سبعمائه

Translation.

In the name of Allah the merciful the clement. Allah the most high has said:—"Verily the mosques belong to Allah, therefore do ye not invoke any one with Allah" [Kurân ch. LXXII., v., 18]. This noble location was built by Hamû-dûd, in the reign of Firûz Shâh Sulţân, may Allah perpetuate his kingdom; in the month of Ramaḍân; year seven hundred and eighty-four [November 1382].
